TRUTH TRIUMPHS.

Washington Citizens testify for the Public Health.
A truthful statement of a Washington citizen, given in his own words, should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use the tested kidney medicine.

A Washington citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.
Could you demand more convincing proof of merit?

Mrs. Lina Arthur, Sr., 528 Second street, Washington, N. C., says: "I suffered greatly from dull, nagging backache. I could hardly get around at times, and was afraid to move on account of the knife-like twinges in my loins. My kidneys were weak and no doubt, caused all the trouble. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and I began using them. They removed the trouble. I am willing to confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills."
Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Arthur had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

PLOT OF ANCIENTS

James Balke Describes First Militant Plot of History.

Reveals Story in Summarizing More Recent Explorations and Excavations in Egypt—Tells of Harsh Intrigues.

Washington, D. C.—What was probably the first suffragette plot in history is described by James Balke in a communication to the National Geographic society, at Washington, D. C., summarizing the more recent explorations and excavations in Egypt which have done much to reveal the history of an ancient world power.

"We have a very full record of the process against certain ladies of the harem of King Ramesses III of the twentieth dynasty, which exhibits the harem intrigues in all its familiar features," writes Mr. Balke. "Officials of the harem are bribed, messages are sent out to officers of the troops from the secluded ladies, inviting the help of the army to overthrow the king and set up a pretender, and the resources of witchcraft are called in to insure the success of the scheme. In this case even the discovery of the plot did not end the machinations of those concerned. The judges in the trial were tampered with, and the result was a highly discreditable exposure of the corruption of the Egyptian bench as well as that of the harem."

Continuing his discussion of the position of women in ancient Egypt, Mr. Balke says:
"Though there are certain features, such as their loose ideas in the matter of consanguinity, which shock our modern sense of morality, the ideas and practices of the ancient Egyptians in respect to the position of woman are remarkably advanced and rational, comparing very favorably with those of the great nations of classical antiquity. Woman was to the Egyptian the slave of man or the minister of his pleasures; she was his companion, his fellow-worker on very equal terms, often his adviser, not infrequently his ruler."

"There existed in the Egyptian mind a sentiment that could almost be called reverence for womanhood, particularly in respect of its great function of motherhood—a sentiment which is much more akin to our modern western view than anything else that we meet with among ancient peoples. The mother was respected for her supreme share in the life and upbringing of her children, and for all the self-sacrifice which is essentially involved in true motherhood, and from the very earliest days the child was carefully indoctrinated with the duty of reverencing and loving the mother who bore and nourished him. So strong was this sentiment that on the tombs of the Old Kingdom the mother of the deceased is as a rule represented together with his wife, while the father rarely appears. In noble Egyptian families the general, though not invariable, custom was that the heir of the house was not the eldest son, but the son of the eldest daughter. Under the middle kingdom this rule prevailed to such an extent that the inheritance passed from one family to another through heiresses. He who married a heiress gained for his son the inheritance of his father-in-law."

"Men of the upper classes had their harems. Pharaoh himself appears in all ages to have been the possessor of a large harem. Under the empire the harem was supervised by an elderly matron, and was administered by high officials—the governor of the royal harem, the scribe of the royal harem, the deacon for the harem—while a number of slaves watched over the ladies and guarded them from the outside world. The scale to which such an establishment could attain is illustrated by the case of Amenhotep III. When the King of Mitanni sent him his daughter Gilukhpa in marriage, the young lady was accompanied by a train of 317 maidens, who were no doubt added to the royal harem."

Loses Its Charm.
It's difficult for a newly married man to generate much enthusiasm over his bride's beautiful hair after he has seen her pile it on the bureau for the night.

Unpleasant Passenger.
A large snake boarded a steam tramcar the other day as it was nearing the village of Balnearia, Italy. It raised its head and hissed at the passengers, some of whom fainted. The conductor struck the reptile on the head, causing it to fall on the track. The car was then driven over its body.

Right Age for an Actress.
In "The Diary of a Beauty," published in the Woman's Home Companion, appeared the following: "The stage is an ungrateful profession, and no woman can count on her public one day after she can no longer appear thirty-five years of age."

Fortunate Indiana.
In a composition dealing with the habits and customs of American Indians, a boy deeply impressed with their free-and-easy life wrote the following: "The Indians had few laws, but they were well violated."

Danger of Too Much Talk.
Don't talk too much. Just after you have talked a man into buying, if you keep on talking you will talk him out of buying.—Atchafalpa Globe.

Why the Boiler Rumbles.
That noisy rumbling and clattering in the kitchen boiler after the gas water heater has been lighted for some time has scared many a woman. The editor of Monthly Gas Chat says it need alarm no one, as it is caused by the expansion of the water as it is heated from the top of the boiler. The cold water below, rushing up to displace
