Two Booth line skippers, Capt. Q.
L. Beck and Capt. J. W. Couch (the Booths relieve their master imariners by sending them on leave to England after a certain number of trips into the South American interior), gave a sort of duet in the narradion of the wonders of the Amazon on board of their ships, their peculiar cargoss, their eligibility to fir the American flag if they chose, and their adventures on the river of rivers. They characterized Alexander P, Rogers' description of the country as faithful and sincere.

Captain Beck, who was just packing up to catch the Cunarder for Liver-pool, deried that the mosquito was a pest or peril on the Amazon. He said that for about three days in the navi-gation of the river it was necessary to shout up the passengers and use the obtained from Worthy & Etheridge points, it is no longer necessary for any woman to be humiliated because to shut up the passengers and use the mosquito ports, but this was the only stretch in the long journey out and hack for nine weeks in which there ens, and Capt. Beck said the difference between high and low water at Manaos was about 42 feet.

There is an old story about a crew that was dying of threst when its ship anchored in the mouth of the Amazon and the akipper didn't know it, and another captain, anchored near by, bellowed through his trumper, "Let down your buckets; you're in the mouth of the Amazon."

"Is that story true?" Capt. Couch was asked.

he replied. "I learned at "It is," he replied. "I learned at school that the Amazon carried fresh water seaward, and I put it to the test once. I was 167 miles from the mouth of the Amazon. I noticed that the water was discolored around the ship. I dipped some up and tested it in the hydrometer. That water dipped from the ocean was three-fourths fresh."

Porto Rican Crop Wanted Abroad But Not in United States.

spefruit and Goccanuts Offer Bi Opportunities for Investment, Although Sugar, and Tobacco Still Lead as Exports.

Washington, D. C.—The coffee raised in our island possession, Porto Rico, is in great demand abroad and the for-eign market places it at the top of the price list of coffees from all over the world, according to experts at the United States department of agriculture's Porte Rican experiment flation. However, the people of the United States have developed a taste for a different kind of coffee, and the preference of a great many people will have to be changed in order to obtain a larger market for Porte Rican coffee in this country. The cost of changing the sequired taste of the American seems too great to justify the attempt so Joing as such excellent prices are obtained elsewhere for the product. price list of coffees from all over the prices are obtained elsewhere for the product.

During the past year, says the new by-issued annual report of the department's station in Porto Rico, the value of the exports of coffee amounted to a great deal more than they ever have since the American occupation. Better calitivation and higher prices have enabled the coffee industry to show great progress, and planters are now following better practises in the selection of their seed for planting. The department's station is infroducing the so-called "Java" and other coffees which are yielding better than native coffee and giving a higher percentage of large and uniform grains. The coffee is grown for distribution to planters on the island and has been resulting in greater yields as well as in better prices for the planters.

Of the coffee exported during the past year, $5,378,346 worth went to foreign countries, while only $132,670 worth went to the United States. Although today there exists a benefit of tariff, the coffee is still following the old lines of trade established by tarti laws during the Spanish regime. It is a marked indication of the tright that trade established upon preference of tasts for a certain product is a most difficult one to change. However, associations and individuals are still striving to extend the market and to gain even a higher reputation for the coffee of Porto Rico.

The grapefruit industry which started from notthing ten years ago is now thriving in Porto Rico and promises good returns to the man with persevance, industry, and personal superverance, industry, and personal super-type of intensive farming, and is sure to increase to a much greater extent in Porto Rico as the trees which are already planted come into bearing. The value of the exports of grape-fruit last year ($726,687) was exceeded by the exports of two other fresh-fruit industries which have been established for a much greater period in the island. Organges were exported to the value of $740,010, and pineapples to the value of $1,142,007; $151,681 worth of canned pineapples was also exported.

worth or cannet strength of the cocoanuts in Porto Rico and there are extensive areas yet where these trees may be profitably set out. A reconnut grove, properly cared cared for yields a sure and steady income. Better cultivation, the growing of vegeta-bles among the trees, the utilization of seaweed and other manures, yield excellent returns over cost.

The value of exports of cocoanuts for the past year amounted to 5352, 390. Besides being interested in cocoanuts, the department's agricultural station has a number of other nutbearing trees on trial, both edible and oil-bearing, and it is hoped that some will prove profitable for cultivation there.

Although the other agricultural

Although the other agricultural products show such great promise, sugar and tobacco still continue to lead all others by a big margin. The exports of sugar during the last year had a total value of $27,226,905, while the value of the tobacco exports were, manufactured, $5,824,030; unmanufactured, $1,88,227.

Planters are now introducing improved varieties of cane, while the cultivation and fertilisation of the crop have been planted and others have been continuously planted to cane, so that yields have been feduced to a minimum. Many of these lands will now go out of cultivation.

Porto Rican tobacco, as well as sugar, is being improved in quality. This improvement is resulting in its finding a larger market and increasing prices. There is a large populastion skilled in certain lines of tobacco manufacturing such as cigar-making.
