CHECK FLASHER WANTED BADLY IN WASHINGTON

F. W. Harrington, reputed to be a tobacco buyer, is wanted badly by the police here and in Belhaven. His whereabouts up to the hour of going to press have not been ascertained. If apprehended doubtless he will find himself a sadder but wiser man.

Harrington came to Washington several days ago and deposited a check for $6,000, subject to his check in one of the banks of the city with the fact that he proposed to purchase tobacco on the Washington market this season. Subsequently he went to elhaven and made deposits there. After depositing his bonus check for money in the banks he proceeded to draw upon them and now the checks that he drew have been turned down.

While in Yeatesville, it is said, that he purchased an automobile from John Tankard and gave him a check for $700. Mr. Tankard called up the Bank of Belhaven and he was notified that the check of Harrington was good. Mr. S. W. Andrews, of Yeatesville, was given also a check. After Harrington had succeeded in swindling both Tankard and Andrews, he gave them a trip to Greenville, N. C., in an automobile and while riding around the town there Harrington was recognized and Mr. Tankard was put wise to the effect that Harrington had broke jail in Pitt county eight years ago. This information was the cause of an investigation. Harrington is now skipping to parts unknown.

WASH. LADY WEDDED ON LAST NIGHT

Miss Elizabeth Bright Married To Mr. Jas. H. Carter of Mount Airy, N. C. Take Bridal Tour

Beautiful in its simplicity was the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Williams Bright to Mr. James Hollingsworth Carter last evening at 9:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bright, on West West Second street.

The home, always attractive within itself for its genuine Southern hospitality, was last night a mecca for both beauty and gallantry and no bride ever pledged her troth carrying with her a more abundance of well wishes from those invited to witness the consummation of the vows. The bride, always attractive in manner, and bright in intellect, never was more attractive. With a clear voice she gave her heart and hand to him whom she had chosen for a life partner.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bright was brilliantly illuminated and decorated. The parlor where the impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. Milton A. Barber, rector of Christ's Episcopal church, Raleigh, an uncle of the bride, was a bower of flowers, ferns, palms, etc. and the soft rays of the waxen tapers made the scene one not soon to be forgotten. The couple were united, standing beneath an improvised altar and arch, decorated and festooned with the choicest of evergreens and "God's ideals of beauty."

Promptly at the appointed hour the soft strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, deftly played by Miss Florence Bright, the bride's sister, caused a hush to fall on all present and within a few minutes the party entered the parlor as follows:

Miss Corinne Bright, sister of the bride, with Mr. James Yokeley, of Mount Airy; Miss Ethel Kessinger, with Mr. John Marlon, of Mount Airy; Miss Essie Whitehead, Greenville, N. C., with Mr. William Graves, of Mount Airy.

The bride's maid of honor and sister, Miss Mattie Bright, entered the parlor alone. After taking her place the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. William R. Bright, who gave her away, next entered and as she reached the officiating clergyman was met by the groom and his best man, Mr. J. Edwin Carter, of Mount Airy.

The bride, always attractive, wore an exquisite gown of white crepe meteor, with veil caught with orange blossoms. She wore a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom. She carried a beautiful bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a handsome suit of pink crepe meteor, with a bouquet of white bride roses. All the bridesmaids were gowned in white, carrying bouquets of pink Killarneys.

Tuesday morning a portrait of the late Captain Charles F. Warren was presented to the North Carolina Supreme Court, the address of presentation being made by ex-Judge Stephen C. Bragaw, of Washington. It was accepted on behalf of the Court by Chief Justice Walter Clark. Members of the family attending the presentation exercises were: Mrs. Charles F. Warren, widow of the distinguished lawyer; Misses Elizabeth and Isabel Warren, daughters, and Lindsey C. Warren, a son, one of the rising members of the Washington bar.

The portrait was painted by Jacques Busbee, of Raleigh, and is a gift of Mr. Lindsey C. Warren, of the legal firm of Daniel, Warren, Manning & Kitchin. It is a very handsome piece of work and an excellent likeness of the subject.

Judge Bragaw, in presenting the portrait to the Supreme Court, said:

The Address.
Because of the high esteem in which I held him while he lived, and of my deep respect for his memory, now that he is dead, the privilege of presenting his portrait to this court has been graciously given me by the family of the late Charles Frederick Warren. There are many of his contemporaries—some still engaged in active practice at the bar, and others who add great strength and dignity to the bench of North Carolina—who could speak with more accurate and complete knowledge of his character and career, and more fittingly pay tribute to his memory; lawyers who, in the stress of combat have feared and felt his power in opposition or have leaned on his great strength in association; judges who have profited by his profound learning and exhaustive research and been aided to correct conclusions. But there is none who can speak from a heart more full than mine of kindly thought of him as he returns to us in remembrance today.

JUDGE BRAGAW. Who Presented Portrait of Late C. F. Warren to North Carolina Supreme Court.

Born in the town of Washington, in the county of Beaufort, on the 8th day of September, 1852, Charles F. Warren had but just attained to the full measure of intellectual strength and power, with a future filled with great promise apparently before him, when, on the 11th day of July, 1904, "the pallid messenger with the inverted torch beckoned him to depart."

An unusually useful life ended, a good man gone, a splendid citizen called to his everlasting home, when he had lived but little more than two-thirds of the three score years and ten allotted to man. But what a memory remains! It lives today, after more than ten years have passed, moves men with compelling force and keeps high the standard of morals in the relations of men, wherever its influence touches. No greater commendation can come to a member of the bar of his county than for some layman to say, "He reminds me of Warren."
