Why Requester is Strong.

Requester chose gets its sharp favor from caproic, caprylic and capric acids and their salts, which are formed by a sort of hydrolysis of the fat during the ripening period. This change is caused by a microbe called Penicillium roqueforti. These acids have a peppery taste.

Skeptical Judge.

A Jew in the Shoreditch (Eng.) County court expressed the hope that his hands might drop off if he was not speaking the truth. "You won't," said Judge Chas. "You managed to record for us that such things did happen, but the earth won't open now and swallow us up. I have heard men express the wish to drop dead if they were not telling the truth, but it never happens. We can never settle cases in that way."

Price of a Kid.

Cordova is full of fun, says Mr. C. Bogus Laffman, in his "Quiet Days in Spain," and in the leisurely pace of the life there the observer has time to see and appreciate all of it. In the market one day a small boy with a big apron and a pious manner was offering half of a small kid to a woman for a peseta. She objected that it was very tiny, and he fairly smothered her with, "Woman! Do you want half a bull for a tenpence?"

Microbes in the Air.

Many living microbes float in the air of dwellings, but in houses which are old, over-crowded and dirty the numbers are very much higher. These come for the most part from the sides and floor and not from persons, but they are much more numerous when the dust is disturbed than when the room has been quiet for a short time.

Antlers of Slow Growth.

When a stag loses its horns it returns to the dense woods, away from its kind, and remains secluded until it is again armed. The growth of the new pair of antlers is very remarkable. The young buck does not attain the fully-branched pair until late in life. The first set may have only a few branches, but the next year another point or more is gained, and so on, until, in several years, the animal may have—as in the case of a red stag caught in England—a pair of antlers with 60 points.

His Limitations.

Ed Chalmers, a Newberry clerk of court, was once approached by a politician who had managed to get himself appointed to a public position. "Ed," he said, "I want you to qualify me for office." The plain-spoken old Covenanter replied, "I can swear you, but all hell couldn't qualify you."—London Mail.

Marking Tools With Acid.

The American Machinist recommends the following etching fluid for marking tools: Mix one part of muriatic acid, one of nitric and four parts of water. The tool is coated with wax and the design is then scratched in.

Horns of the Rhinoceros.

In the rhinoceros we find a curious arrangement, the horns in some being easily moved, seemingly only held by the skin. They form terrible weapons, however, though totally different in their construction from the ivory tusks of the elephant, with which they are often matched, being formed of hairy, fiber-like matter. Some species have a single horn, while others have two.

Willing Demonstrator.

Rosemary—"I wonder how it feels to be back of a funny little mustache like yours." "Aurion—"I can't tell you very well, but I will cheerfully show you how it feels to be in front of it."—Judge.

Had It Figured Out.

The attention of the tourist in northern France was attracted to the following notice: "Pasture your horses here. Short-tailed horses, fifteen cents a day." On inquiring about the difference of price, the farmer remarked that anyone ought to know that, and explained that a short-tailed horse, had to chase the flies with his head, and while he did so he could not eat, while a long tailed one, not being thus handicapped, naturally ate a great deal more.

Laughs at "Neurasthenia."

Each day sees some cherished illusion knocked on the head. Among the latest to be remorselessly brained by the rough hand of the scientific investigator is the notion that the country is healthier than the city. A modern, a very modern, novelist represents a London physician as scoffing at what he termed the "neurasthenia joke."

Restoring White Enamel.

To cleanse and restore white enamel furniture that has become soiled or discolored, treat it thus: Mix one tablespoonful of bicarbonate of soda in one quart of boiling water; when cool, wash the furniture with the solution, using an old flannel cloth for the purpose.

Couldn't See Place for "Pa."

A prominent Virginian had died, and his daughter in arranging the house for the funeral had gone almost to an extreme in placing palms and ferns and plants in the drawing room—in fact, it had more the appearance of a wedding than a funeral. One of the old darlings came to pay his last respects. "Miss Mae," he said, "disurely is fine, all dese here trees, but, Miss Mae, where is you going to put your pa?"

Expletive Extraordinary.

The editor of the Interior was once criticized for his use of expletives; but he asserts his independence in the following choice sentence: "We are going to insist upon our copyright, and we warn whomever it may concern to let our expletive property alone. We will give a sample of it, so as to scare everybody: 'Oh, you old baldichino! you stary-eyed garogoy! you windy balcony! you crooked corbel! For a cent we would knock you into the middle of next week with the butt-end of a vestibule!'"

Virtue Follows Adversity.

Prosperity doth best discover vice; but adversity doth best discover virtue.—Bacon.

To Mend Celluloid Articles.

Wet the edges with glacial acetic acid and press them close together for a few minutes.

Means of Offense and Defense.

Many reptiles use their tails to strike down their game, while a large number of animals are supplied with pungent odors or secretions that are equally potent as a defense. In certain groups we find enormous horns and tusks that are intended entirely for purposes of protection. In some cases they are upon the top of the head, as in our cows or oxen. Again, as in the elephant or some cetaceans, they are highly developed teeth.

Value of Quotations.

"Our oratorical friend quoted a great deal of poetry." "Yes, and I don't blame him. The most discreet thing he can do is to put as much responsibility as possible for what he says on somebody else."

Weakfish Erratic.

Weakfish are erratic in temperament and movements. Today they are taken on a certain tide. Tomorrow they will bite on another. You never can tell. Fishing for weakfish, like all game fish, is a gamble. It is not like fishing for bottom feeders. In fishing for bottom feeding fish, you are always sure, more or less, of results. In fishing for game fish, you may get fish on a day when all the signs are against it, and get them in numbers.

Lesson From a Flower.

I saw a delicate flower had grown up two feet high between the horse's path and the wheel-track. One inch more to right or left had sealed its fate, or an inch higher, and west it lived to flourish as much as if it had a thousand acres of untrodden space around it, and never knew the danger it incurred. It did not borrow trouble, and invite an evil fate by apprehending it.—Thoreau.

Enemy to Industry.

Shop Forewoman (to great musician practicing on the French horn)—The factory over the way sends their compliments and will you switch off on to another note 'cos a lot of the 'ands 'ave mistook it for the dinner-bear.—Tatler.

Fishes Hog of the Sea.

The slab-sided, flat-bottomed fluke is not a game fish, but he is muscular, and when he decides to bore down to the bottom his flat shape aids him in giving a good account of himself. He is the hog of the sea, although he prefers that which is alive. After being hooked the fish will lie still and not move until the angler notifies him by hauling upward. Then the fluke gets busy.

Rats Great Disease Carriers.

Three different animals are plague carriers—the tarbagon or marmot (a rodent) of the trans-Balkal region, roughly embracing great sections of Siberia; the ground squirrel of California; the wild rat of Africa. The greatest mischief is done by rats that get into ships and then go ashore at the ports of call. The rats are bitten by fleas and the fleas in turn bite man. Rats also are carriers of leprosy, and it is thought that they may fall victims of cancer, both of which they can transmit to man.

How Rats Cause Fires.

The most common way in which rats cause fires, says Safety Engineering, is by gnawing away the insulating covering from wires used in electric lighting, where the wires pass under floors or inside of partitions. The insulating materials are used for nests, which rats build of combustibles in contact with naked wires.

More African Unrest.

From a letter in the East African Standard: "We have indeed reached the stage known as the last straw on the camel's back, and I, for one, am quite prepared, as one of the least component parts of that camel, to add my lot to the endeavor to kick over the traces. Let us unite and march in shoulder to shoulder and eye to eye, set sail for that glorious and equally well-known goal—'Who pays the piper calls the tune.'" No man of spirit could resist so stirring an appeal.—Punch.

South American Chinchilla.

Chinchilla, popular as a decoration for smart gowns, comes from a little South American animal of that name. It is a herbivorous rodent, much resembling the rabbit, except that its ears are short and its tail long, and its fur is of a matchless softness.

Shakespeare.

Shakespeare's purpose was to write dramatic pieces for playhouses of his day, to which he belonged, and by which he was paid in good coin of the realm. Being a very great man, and therefore able to "hold the mirror up to nature" with a force and fidelity never before possessed by a playwright, he made at one and the same time a good sized fortune and an over lasting fame.

Of One Mind.

Foxy Uncle (after leaving the carshop, showing his nephew the way to buy curies)—"There you are, you see When you're dealing with people like that just hargue the point a bit, and down comes the price ten shillings." Curio Dealer (to his nephew)—"There you are, my boy. When you're dealing with a man like 'im, and you see as 'ow 'e's going to hargue the point a bit, all you've got to do is to put the price up ten shillings and start with."—Sketch.
