PREPARE SHEEP AND LAMBS Fitting and Showing of Superior Types of Farm Animals is of Great Value to Industry.

(ey G. C. HUMPHREY) Fitting live stock and showing Improved live stock is maintained. Beginning with the district or county fair, where the slive is of local interest, and passing to the larger shows of state, national and international scope, the fitting and showing of superior types of farm animals is of great value and importance to the live stock industry. It impresses upon the minds of all who see the exhibits a knowledge of the types and breeds of farm animals adapted to various purposes, and demonstrates the poesibilities in well breed and well selected animals when brought to the very best condition by proper feeding and fitting.

To promote this means of education, state fairs, associations and often times individuals directly or indirectly benefited, offer liberal prizes to encourage breaders to spend their time energy and means in fitting their animals for shows. Exhibitors, however, are usually benefited most by the ever, are usually benefited most by t art and skill which they develop and from the publicity they derive from showing them. To be able to show superior animals is the best kind of advertising a stockman can ploy. Such advertising is more to be sought after than the prise money of ferred as premiums. On the other hand, poorly selected and fitted animals detract from the educational features of the show ring, misrepresent and injure the breed represented, give the owner a poor reputation as a breeder and discourage, rather than enegarage, enlookers in selecting and rearing better live stock. Foundation of Cotton.

When the Leasowe lighthouse, Eng-land, was built on the sandy Wirral thore the builders were puzzled by the shore the builders were puzzled by farlack of a suitable foundation for the masonry town. As insentens way out of the difficulty was effected. In the vicinity an incoming ship, laden with a cargo of cotton, had gone ashore and had become a total wreck. The cotton was useless for its intended purpose, so the bales were salvaged and dumped into the sand at the point where the lighthouse was to be creeked. The fleety mass settled into the sand, and under compression became as solid as a rock, while its permanency was assured by its complete submersion. The stability of this strange foundation may be gathered from the fact that the flower creeks thereon stood, and whed its welcome light recylarly every night, for about a century and a half, only being extinguished two or three years ago, as it was no longer required. ack of a suitable foundation for ington, N. C., Poetoffis: After long thought I have decided to become a candidate for appoint-ment as Posimaster for this office.
