JAMES L. MAYO, Proprietor. CARE GOERCH, Editor.

WASHINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA, JUNE 21, 1915.

Newspapers rarely ever get any praise. Most of the time, they get their full share of the knocks and kicks and when a little ray of praise does come along it is like a rift of sunshine peeping through an angry cloud.

Using the Good Book as their authority, many persons predict that this war is ushering in the end of the world. But even that dire possibility fails to ruffle the dignified calm of our editorial person.

Looks as if the Washington merchants let several thousand dollars slip out of their hands in not entering bids for furnishing the cotton "Panther" with fuel and provisions.

THE EASY-GOING FELLOW.

There are three classes of people in a town: those who are opposed to everything that is brought up; those who are in favor of every measure that tends to improve the city in any way whatsoever.

It is this latter class that does more to keep a city from progressing than those who definitely oppose a proposition and who are not afraid to say so.

Sorry as we are to admit it, we've got that class right here in Washington. As long as they get their three square meals a day they don't give a whoop or a holler whether Washington blows up in the morning or is attacked by a fleet of German warships.

No wonder that the BUILDERS—the people who DO THINGS have such a hard time in obtaining results.

It has been suggested that a subscription be taken up for the erection of a monument to the first dog that is impounded under the new dog ordinance.

Some people wouldn't pay a nickel to see the statue of Liberty de a handstand on her pedestal and there are others who wouldn't pay a nickel for an advertisement, in spite of the fact that they are sure of getting more than their money's worth.

Sheriff Windley is making considerable improvement around the court house grounds. The property now presents a most attractive appearance.

"Hail to the Cherryville Eagle! It drives home with force an old truth as it says: 'Watch the boy who comes home from college just before the harvest and don't his overalls. He is sure to rise; he just can't be kept down.'"—News and Observer.

AN ORDINANCE.

Washington, N. C., June 8, 1915.

The Board of Aldermen do enact:

1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to permit his, her or its dog to run at large upon the streets of the city unless accompanied by its owner, either chained or roped. Every violation of this ordinance shall subject the offender to a fine of $10.00.

LITTLE TIPS ABOUT People You Know.

Owing to two dishes of cucumbers and a glass of rich creamy milk, which he disposed of last night before retiring, the editor of "Tips" spent a rather troublesome night and his repose was broken by a series of weird and fantastic dreams.

He dreamt that he went to heaven—that's weird right there. St. Peter looked at him suspiciously. "What right has an editor here," he asked sternly.

"That's all right, sir," answered the editor, "I merely wished to see what some of the citizens of Washington were doing here. Can't I see some of them?"

"Well, come along," responded St. Peter rather gruffly. "The first thing that struck the editor's eye was the mayor of Washington. He was chasing a flock of blind tigers and every time he'd catch up with one he'd wallop him over the head with a huge club that he was carrying. Maybe HE wasn't happy?"

A little further along the editor saw two prominent ladies of Washington, who have the reputation of being greatly interested in suffrage. Each was addressing large crowds and their remarks were frequently interspersed with loud applause. Maybe THEY weren't happy!

The editor, at some little distance, saw a brilliantly lighted street. There were lamp posts every five feet and each pole bore a powerful light. As the visitor drew closer he saw a single solitary man walking up and down the center of the street, his face flushed with pride and elation. It was the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Maybe HE wasn't happy!

Further along, the editor observed a beautiful baseball field. An exciting game was being played. Large crowds were present. Surveying the whole with an air of ownership, stood the agent for the Coast Line. Maybe HE wasn't happy!

The editor was about to continue his walk when he felt a touch on his arm. It was St. Peter. "Time's up," said that individual. With a sigh of regret the editor walked over to the elevator. The car appeared. "Down!" shouted St. Peter as the gate closed.

New Facts About Cancer.

A study of 1,000 cases of cancer of the stomach reveals the fact that this disease claims more men than women as its victims and that it occurs most frequently between the ages of forty and sixty years. Ulcer of the stomach, on the other hand, appears most frequently between the ages of twenty and forty years. In over 90 per cent of the cases of cancer heredity seemed to play no part whatever.

THE STIEFF Tone A Quality Tone

From every standpoint of tonal values the Stieff tone is a quality tone. Throughout the entire range of the instrument there is an evenness, a velvety smoothness that speaks the work of a master hand.

Stieff tone is a rare combination of unlimited volume and sympathetic singing quality.

Stieff is evidenced the imagination to conceive and the skill to produce an instrument of extraordinary quality.
