

MOONSHINER KEEPS BUSY IN STATE

IN SPIRIT OF WAR AGAINST HIM, MUCH LIQUOR IS BEING MADE.

A NEW RECORD

Revenue Officers Destroyed 109
Gallons During June. State Officials Also Destroyed Many.

Greensboro, July 15.—Whether the Grier law relative to liquor shipments into North Carolina is constitutional or unconstitutional, there is one law,—that of supply and demand,—that remains pretty safely unscathed upon its foundations. It seems to have a pretty good constitution—of its own. Neither the Grier law, which Judge Peebles says is against the law, nor any of the other measures of prohibition have had any appreciable effect on certain North Carolina distillers; and, recognizing this, the manufacturers of hockade liquor are keeping busy. They are sure of the demand; and they take their own chances on furnishing the supply.

Even before the Grier law became effective, internal revenue officials predicted that this state statute would add much worry, work and responsibility to the job as ordinarily enjoyed by an employee of the federal department. As the weeks and months have passed this prediction has been borne out more fully than was anticipated. There has not been a moment's rest for the field men in the Greensboro division which embraces the greater part of North Carolina as well as portions of South Carolina and Virginia. These men have worked valiantly to stem the ever-increasing tide of the hockade manufacture; but apparently as fast as the thin column of smoke over one spring branch is eliminated another arises over an adjoining stream.

In April, the first month of the Grier law enforcement, there was a record number of seizures in the territory of the division; another record was established in May; and there comes along now a record for June. The men in the field seized and destroyed just 106 illicit plants last month, 83 of which were operating in North Carolina territory. 23 were in South Carolina; but that state has a law similar to the one introduced by Mr. Grier. In the Virginia territory there was found but one still. It would seem that the moonshiners of the Old Dominion have moved down across the line, where the demand is greater.

The state officers almost everywhere in the state have been busy, too, and their work has not been without avail, as evidenced by reports of their seizures. As these men and the revenue have made onslaughts on the outfits of the hockade makers, there has been an apparent decrease in the supply of copper plants. The stills captured have been of every class of material imaginable. Sheet iron, galvanized iron, tin, or almost anything that can be soldered and will hold water has been pressed into service. Some of them are big ones, too, the officers finding beer in great quantities at a few of them. At one plant the officers poured out over 10,000 gallons, and at another almost 5,000. There was no whiskey left trying a round loose, however; less than a gallon was seized by the revenue men during June.

GO DOWN TO MEXICO IN THREE MONTHS

Local Men Says Army Officers at Morehead City Thought Intervention Highly Probable.

That the United States would be called upon to send troops into Mexico within the next two or three months was the opinion of the regular army officers at Morehead City, according to information given by a Washington man who attended the encampment. "It wouldn't surprise me at all if we were all down at Morehead City again within two months' time," stated the local man. "Those army officers are on the inside of things; they know pretty well what they're talking about. They all claimed that the possibility of intervention by this country was greater than the public generally thought."

MARRIED WEDNESDAY; BURNING BARE TODAY

Red Fate Overtakes Colored Romeo of Pitt County.

(Special to the Daily News)
Greenville, N. C., July 15.—To be married one day, and then placed behind prison bars two days later, has been the experience of John Ellis, colored, who Wednesday was united in marriage to Sallie Davis. Both parties reside about seven miles from town.

Ellis with another negro, John Hagan, came into town Wednesday to get a marriage license. They claimed that the girl in the case was over 18 years of age. The license was issued.

DISCUSS JUVENILE LAW ENFORCEMENT

General Secretary of Juvenile Association Spent Yesterday in Washington.

Rev. Crawford Jackson, of Atlanta, Ga., general secretary of the Juvenile Protective Association, spent yesterday in the city and conferred with the city officials regarding the new juvenile law, which has recently been passed in this State.

Dr. Jackson's visit to Washington was made principally in order to discuss with the recorder and other prominent men, the enforcement of the juvenile law. This law effects juveniles of eighteen years and under.

Instead of putting the youthful offenders in jail, the Juvenile Association insists that the best, most interested, tactful and persevering men in the community be chosen as chief probation officer, or "big brother," with a corps of capable assistants. This has been done at mass meetings in other cities, presided over generally by the mayor.

The organizations thus formed in each city have a two-fold purpose. They deal directly and in a salutary manner with the young offenders against the law, after getting the consent of the court to suspend sentence for a specified period for the purpose indicated; and to obtain adequate legislation, and further, as soon as possible, the employment by the city, county or state of a paid Probation officer, for all or part of his time as may be necessary. A number of these associations have been formed in other cities in this section of the country.
