JAMES L. MAYO Proprietor. CARL GOERCH Editor.

WASHINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA, OCT. 16, 1915.

The circus has come and went, but while it was here we had more fun than we've had since Dad planed a piece of wood on our trousers for breaking his forty-dollar watch to see what it was made of.

By the way, we didn't see Crumpler, Biggs, Horne or Brittan in this section of the State last night. There's a little story about Biggs that is almost too good to keep.

"Hush, baby," she said, "look at the nice man making faces at you," and she pointed to Biggs.

And the funny part of it was, that Biggs was wearing his usual dignified expression when the lady made the remark.

THE CIRCUS SPIRIT.

Some persons howl about the circus—call it foolish amusement a waste of money and time, a bad place for children to be and form impressions. The fact remains, however, as was shown yesterday that the circus can do more in waking up a town and in putting everyone in good spirits than anything else in the world—unless it is a big ball game.

Everyone on the streets yesterday was wearing a smile that extended from ear to ear. Everyone joked with everyone else. There was a spirit of restless gaiety and anticipation in the air.

There were two beggars sitting along Main street. Both of them were crippled. They have been on our streets before but the nickle and dime that fell in their hats were few and far between.

The circus is always welcome in Washington. It brings cheer and joy for both old and young alike and, incidentally, it brings the crowds from all over this section to do their shopping here.

Washington has a right to feel proud of its new sewer system. There are few cities in the State that have a more complete or better system than the one which has been installed here.

We submit to the paragraphs the name of Alexi Khvosoff, the new Russian Minister of the Interior.—News and Observer. What in thunder are we to do with it—eat it?

JOYS AND SORROWS.

Thousands of persons in Washington yesterday were happy and cheerful because of the fact that the circus was here and afforded them an opportunity for a good time.

It seemed almost sacrilegious to be going to the circus and knowing that there were hearts in Washington that were heavy with grief because of the death that came Thursday; knowing that relatives and friends of the deceased were following the body out to the cemetery to the burial. No contrast could be more distinct.

Nevertheless, there were some whose hearts were in sympathy with the mourners at the funeral and who uttered a prayer that their sorrows might be relieved.

We added to our exchange list today, the Spring Hope Journal, published at Spring Hope, with H. B. Jones, editor. The Journal looks like a good live sheet and is well gotten up.

STOCK SPECULATORS.

Stock of the new Midvale Steel and Ordnance corporation is quoted on the street in New York at 120, although not a share has yet been issued. This speculative craze is probably what the organizers are counting upon more than actual profits from the operation of the plants.

It is useless to argue against this speculative mania for munitions stocks. The gambling instinct has been aroused. A few are going to make a lot of money and a great many are going to provide it for them.

ACCUSED OF STEALING

Prominent Resident of Vanceboro is Accused With Having Broken Into Store. (By Eastern Press) New Bern, Oct. 16.—Clarton Lancaster, a well known young white man of the Vanceboro section of Craven county, will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace H. C. Butler, at that place this afternoon on a warrant charging him with house-breaking.

The charge against Lancaster is that on last Wednesday he broke into the store of J. F. Brooks, near that place and took therefrom a quantity of merchandise.

After the robbery occurred, bloodhounds were secured from Washington and they trailed Lancaster to his home. The officers had no search warrant and they could not search the premises at the time. However, Lancaster was later placed under arrest.

Owing to the promise of the principals in the case, it is attracting much attention in that section.
