WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the lower pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, heavy breath, yellow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

SYNOPSIS

Old Cyrus Martin, the head of the American soap trust, makes a bet of $50,000 with a friend, John Clark, a rival soapmaker, that his (Martin's) son Rodney would be making more money at the end of a year than Clark's son Ellery.

Martin takes his pretty secretary, Mary Grayson, into his confidence and anoints her co-operator. Rodney has been a spendthrift, and the father wants to make him reform and go to work.

Mary meets Rodney, and the son proposes marriage to her. Rodney tells his father about his proposal, and the old man utters great anger. He tells Mary he will disinherit Rodney.

Rodney defies his father, and Mary is deeply touched at the lad's genuine affection for her. Mary makes a financial bargain with Martin to encourage the son to go to work.

Ambrose Peale, press agent, meets Rodney and agrees to go into business with the lad on a salary basis. Rodney has resolved to go into the soap industry and back the trust.

"Why do the people jam the cabarets where they only serve champagne," begins Rodney excitedly. "Why do they crowd the restaurants where they put up a rope to keep you out? Why do they sit in the sixteenth row in the orchestra when they could have the third row in the balcony? Why do they buy imported clothes? Why do they ride in French automobiles? Because they're better? No; because they're expensive—because they cost more money. So all the cheap things they ought to be better. My boy, listen—the most expensive soap in the world!"

"My boy, I could kiss you!" cried Peale delightedly. "A pupil after my own heart—50 cents a cake!" cried Peale.

"A dollar, and we'll make it a warm, delicate old rose," sang Rodney.

"Each cake in a separate box, with a paper rose on the lid," said Peale.

"But what shall we call it?"

"Oh, rose," suggested Rodney after a moment.

"Rotten—doesn't mean anything," retorted Peale.

"Let's think," said Rodney.

"I'm thinking. I never stop," said Peale.

"The soap that made Pittsburgh clean," said Rodney.

"Too long. You need something catchy."

"I had an idea awhile ago," said Rodney—"the People's Soap."

"Not if you're going to catch the rich boys," said Peale.

Then suddenly Rodney remembered the legend in the old cookbook and cried out:

"Wait, wait! Listen! Listen close! The 13 Soap. Unlucky for Dirt."

"Son," said Peale joyously, "it's all over. The old man'll be on his knees in a month."

"We open the office Monday," Rodney sang out.

"Where's the office?" Peale inquired.

"Let's get one," said Rodney.

"With furniture and everything," said Peale. "And, say, you'd better call up your tailor and order a couple of business suits."

After this manner began the business of the great 13 Soap Company, which was to bring the Soap King Cyrus Martin to his knees and make Rodney a rich man in his own right so he could marry Mary Grayson.

The office of the soap company was opened with Mary working for the concern.

From time to time an undersecretary or typewriter struck her head through the door and announced some one. This young person opened the door now suddenly and announced with mingled glee and curiosity:

"The Countess de Brownell!"

Money, when you are chasing it up in the form of capital, is a real will o' the wisp. Now you see it within your grasp, and again your gaze is quite blank. None of the three conspirators in the room realized what was to come of the French and titled lady's interruption and only looked upon her as an inconvenient bore, to be disposed of as best could be.

"Oh, that dreadful woman again," sighed Mary.

The countess entered and came over to Rodney at once, speaking to him in French:

"Venez Monsieur Martin?" she cooed.

Rodney nodded.

"Ah, cher Monsieur Martin—je suis enchantée de vous voir."

"The dame's loony," said Peale in an aside to Mary.

"No; she's French," said Mary. "She wanted to see your father, and she doesn't speak English. I saw her up at the house."

"Well, let her talk to me," Rodney announced, remembering that he had taken a course in elementary French at Harvard.

"Say, can you speak French?" asked Peale, surprised and impressed by his new partner's accomplishments.

"Not very well, but I can understand it," said Rodney. Then, going over to the countess, he said blankly in English, "Fire ahead."

"Eh?" said the countess.

"Let me see. Oh, yes—parlez," stammered Rodney.

"Ah, mon Dieu—vous—vous—comprenez Français?" began the countess delightedly.

"Oui," said Rodney.

"You're tinnese, kid," put in Peale. The one French word was enough to start up the countess at her best gait.

"Je suis Madame la Comtesse de Beaurien—je desire parler a Monsieur Martin apropos des affaires du savon. Je voudrais obtenir l'agence du savon Martin pour la France," she rattled off in one breath.

"Wait a minute—wait a minute," said Rodney.

"What did she say?" asked Mary.

"She's a speedy spider, all right," said Peale.

"Would you mind saying that over, and say it slow?" asked Rodney of the countess.

"Eh?" said that lady again.

"Oh, repeats on all your phis—lente-ment," stammered Rodney.

"Je suis Madame la Comtesse de Beaurien—je desire obtenir l'agence du

SEVERE STORM COMING HERE

is Now in the Middle West and is Predicted to be Due in the East Tonight.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—A most extensive and severe storm of the winter is moving eastward from the Mississippi River and is moving eastward.

Temperatures this morning, the Weather Bureau reported, ranged from 58 degrees below zero in the Canadian northwest, to zero in the Texas pan handle, and in southern Utah, and northern Arizona, it was from 10 to 16 degrees below.

Snow and rain are predicted for tonight and Friday as the storm moves northward and a severe cold wave, the weather bureau says, may be expected through the upper Lake region, the lower Ohio Valley, and the lower Mississippi Valley tonight, and in the East Gulf states Thursday and Thursday night.

By Thursday night, and Friday, it is probable, the cold wave will extend to the Atlantic coast.

"Wait a minute—wait a minute," protested Rodney. Then, turning to Peale, he interrupted plausibly:

"She wants the agency for father's soap for France and is willing to pay 50,000 francs for the concession."

"How much is that in real money?" asked Peale quickly.

"Ten thousand dollars," said Rodney.

"Had I better tell your father?" asked Mary. But Rodney had an inspiration.

"No, no! Why not keep father out of this? We'll sell her the agency for the 13 Soap. That'd be another ten thousand for us. Peale, she's a gift from the gods!"

"Coffee Don't Hurt Me"

Can he get away with it?

The drug, caffeine, in coffee, about 2½ grains to the average cup, hurts many coffee drinkers, at some time of life, and often hurts them hard.

Caffeine is a powerful irritant that unsteadies the nerves, races the heart, disorganizes the digestive organs and plays havoc with the health of a large proportion of coffee users.

Of course, there are some who go on drinking coffee for years, without apparent harm, at least they don't suspect it, until the cumulative drug, caffeine, has got in its work. Isn't it the best plan to play safe with health—quit coffee and use

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink made of wheat and a small portion of molasses tastes much like mild, high-grade Java coffee, yet contains no drug or other harmful element.

Postum comes in two forms: the original POSTUM CEREAL, must be well-boiled, 15c and 25c packages; INSTANT POSTUM, the soluble form, can be made in the cup, at table, by adding hot water, 30c and 50c tins. Both kinds are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

The better health that follows quitting coffee has shown thousands

GAS BONDS ARE SAFEST KIND

As "necessity is the mother of invention," the gas companies, when forced out of the cream of the lighting business by the invasion of the electric lighting companies, succeeded in cheapening the cost of producing gas so that it could be used for cooking purposes. This use has greatly increased, so that today, instead of the greatest consumption of gas being on Christmas Eve, as was the case twenty-five years ago, it is now on the Fourth of July; in fact, if the gas companies had not been able to reduce the cost and increase the efficiency of that product so as to make it practicable for cooking purposes, there would have been re-organizations of a large percentage of our nation's gas companies since the invasion of the electric light.
