JAMES L. MAYO..... PROPRIETOR CARL GOERCH..... EDITOR

WASHINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA, MARCH 31, 1916.

"PHOOLISH FEELINGS."

When your wife happens to walk into a swell cafe and catches you dining with a strange "chicken."

Washington today extends the glad hand to her country cousins. We hope that all will have the time of their lives while in the city and will visit up just as often as they can.

HAIL TO THE PROGRESS.

Yesterday's issue of the Washington Progress contained a somewhat disparaging reference to the management of the Daily News.

It might be mentioned here, by way of explanation, that the Progress is the local weekly paper.

Our perusal of the bright and cheery editorial column of the Progress has shown us that the editor possesses a keen and subtle sense of humor and undoubtedly the paragraph we refer to was the result of one of his witty little outbursts.

We would hate to think or believe that the article was intended to be taken seriously, for we have the greatest respect and esteem for the Progress. It is one of the newest papers that comes on our exchange list and is filled with thoughts and philosophies of which Senators or Democrats might well have felt proud to have been the authors.

The editor has shown himself to be exceptionally progressive in the interests of both city and country. Unfortunately few persons appear to realize this, although he has been a candidate for many offices; he has usually been last in the race. It is hoped that they will change in their attitude.

Great and powerful has been, and is, the influence wielded by the Progress for the public good. It is true that it has neglected to wield this power in the local issues that have been brought up, such as the Red Hill road, the township bond issue and numerous other civic improvements, but that was probably due to oversight.

We are proud of the Progress and proud to think that Washington is the home of such an enterprising, energetic, aggressive and broad-minded paper. The local editors who make a practice of stuffing the wastepaper baskets in the past files with each issue should be ashamed of their inability to appreciate true greatness. However, we will not consider.

It is our hope that the Old Reliable Progress will keep up its good work and will continue each week to present our such an invaluable fund of humor, with and deep thought of which it, and it alone, is capable of producing.

THE ROAD QUESTION.

In another part of today's paper there appears an interview with James F. Wrenn, a road engineer, who has in charge the construction of the new highway being built in Craven county.

He asserts that the sand-lay road is an extravagant expenditure of money for Eastern Carolina that it will not "hold up" and will require attention at all times. In fact, he utterly disagrees with every idea which has been given out by W. S. Falls, State highway engineer.

Mr. Wrenn is probably right when he states that the Lillingston cement, clay and gravel road is more durable and requires less attention than a sand-lay road. There is very little doubt about that. The question that will arise uppermost in the minds of those interested in Beaufort county roads, however, is whether we can afford to build roads of the type recommended by him.

Whether it will be better to put down about a hundred miles of sand-lay road or twelve miles of the cement, clay and gravel road, is the problem that the bond issue commission will have to solve.

The foundation for road work in Beaufort county is poor. The land is low and with the average road, a heavy rain will play havoc. Pitt county is beginning to realize this.

We would like to hear from any of the residents in the township who care to express themselves on the subject as to which type of road they would recommend building. It appears to us that it is entirely a matter of quantity vs. quality. Which do we want?

THE MAYOR PROBLEM.

There is said to be considerable difficulty in finding a man to act as mayor of Washington and assume the duties which will fall to his lot when E. C. Kugler's resignation goes into effect next month.

This is not strange. The office carries with it a weight of responsibilities, considerable criticism and poor pay. It requires a large amount of time, good judgment and executive ability.

The city of Washington is the largest single corporation in Beaufort county and is also the wealthiest. The head of this corporation—the mayor—has, as his "losses," the entire population of the city. His salary is $600 a year. There are many other corporations in Washington—lumber mills and various mercantile establishments. The head of these corporations—the presidents—are responsible to only about half a dozen men—the board of directors. Their salaries run up to five figures. And yet, are not the duties of mayor equally as hard and as difficult as those of the president of some mill or hardware store?

If Washington would have its affairs looked after properly it should take steps to pay its mayors properly. It is ridiculous to expect a man to give up practically his entire time, and to devote his attention to his own business as well, for a salary that is lower than that paid the average laborer.

There Are Other Washington People Similarly Situated.

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Washington residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question.

W. H. McDevett, M. Harvey H., Washington, says: "I had an attack of kidney trouble, brought on by exposure and a cold settling on my kidneys. I was taken with a severe pain in my back and had to go home. For three days I was in bed. My back ached all the time, and the kidney secretions were scanty in passage and contained sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Davenport's Pharmacy, soon relieved me of all symptoms of kidney trouble."
