LOCALS WIN ANOTHER GAME FROM TIGERS

Yesterday's Contest at the New Park Went for Twelve Innings. Final Score Was 3-2.

In a game which threatened some of the fans with apoplexy, heart failure and loss of voice, the Washington Wonders yesterday afternoon defeated the Aurora Tigers by the score of 3-2. Nine innings proved insufficient to settle the contest and the game went twelve innings before the winning run was scored. Aurora made their two runs in the first inning by touching Rivers up for a brace of hits and being assisted by errors. Rivers pitched for two innings and was then replaced by Haynesworth, who pitched top-notch ball for the remaining ten innings.

In the ninth inning, with the score 2 to 1 against them, the Wonders tied the score in sensational manner. Burrus was on second base with two outs. Webster was at bat with two strikes on him. Get that—two outs and two strikes. Manning sent over a fast straight one and T-Rall caught it squarely on the nose for a pretty single, scoring Burrus.

In the twelfth, Pickett and Powell singled and Burrus poled out the hit that scored the winning run. The Washington fans were tickled to death with the work of young Sherrod behind the bat. The youngster caught an excellent game and he will undoubtedly be retained as a regular. He can usually be depended upon for a hit or two every game.

Manning pitched fine ball for Aurora. The work of Richardson on second also showed up good. Red Litchfield and Reddin Thompson are earning the reputation of being the best fielders in this section. They both made some sensational catches yesterday.

They were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government and of embezzlement of government property, the charges growing out of the sale to Mexico constitutionalists of national guard equipment furnished by the war department.

TELLS OF CARGOES SHIPPED FROM HERE IN FORMER TIMES

Captain Parvin Explains the Nature of the Shipping from This Port Years Ago.

Editor Daily News, Dear sir: When I gave you the names of the sea-going vessels out of Washington from 1855 to 1861, I did not know that I would be called upon to explain what those vessels carried to and from Washington. But some of my younger friends have been to see me since the publishing of that list and have made the remark that they could not see where so many vessels could get cargoes here, winter and summer.

Now to ease the minds of these "Doubting Thomases," I will tell them what those vessels carried from Washington and brought back.

I have seen put on board the schooner Horenden 2,000 bushels of corn for New York, and finish her cargo with cotton. She usually brought back from New York a cargo of general merchandise. I was mate on the schooner, M. E. Parley when she had a full cargo consisting of 1,500 barrels of pine tar. I do not suppose that there is a barrel of pine tar now in Beaufort county.

In those days there were several thousand barrels of the tar shipped every month. A. A. Willard had one vessel, called the Pocomak, running regularly between Washington and Baltimore, carrying tar, resin and turpentine from here and bringing back general merchandise. Mr. Potts had two schooners running to Baltimore and two running to New York in the same business and he shipped a great deal of naval stores by other vessels.

S. R. Fowle also ran several vessels of his own and furnished cargoes of naval stores for a good many others. Frank Havens, Sr., ran one large schooner at the time, carrying cotton and corn to New York and bringing back general merchandise. Several of those vessels that I gave you the names of, ran to the West Indies. They carried out shingles, staves, North Carolina bacon and black-eyed peas and brought back sugar, molasses, salt, fruit and guano. Other vessels ran to South Carolina and Georgia, carrying cargoes of corn and peas and North Carolina bacon. They came back in ballast.

All of the cotton, raised in this section before the civil war, was carried in sailing vessels.

S. R. Fowle operated several turpentine stills, manufacturing raw turpentine into spirits of turpentine and resin. Joseph Potts and son operated three stills in the same business.

In your paper of the 16th inst., you published the names of the vessels I gave you as ships that "called" at Washington. That "called" was a mistake, for all of those vessels were owned by Washington men and were operated from here. In those days we also had three firms of commission merchants here. They were John Myers & Son, George H. Brown and Frank Havens. When the vessels that were owned here could not carry all the freight, those commission merchants would get the merchants up north to send them additional vessels.

Kansas, California And Missouri Are Ordered to Entrain

Officials Wait for Details of Fight Between Carranzistas and Americans. Will Take no Hasty Steps.

(By United Press)

Washington, June 22.—This morning, Washington was without official details regarding the fight between the Carranzistas and American troops at Carrizal. It is admitted, however, that General Gomez and many Mexicans were killed and wounded and that forty-five or more Americans were killed and many wounded.

The first order of the day was to command the Kansas, California and Missouri militia to entrain for the border as soon as their equipment and mobilization is complete.

Administration officials insist that no hasty step will be taken and that nothing will be done until Pershing's detailed report is received and it is known whether an act of war has been committed. Officials especially want to know who started the Carrizal engagement. All reports received from the Mexicans insist that the United States troops were the aggressors.

A message from Funston, received here this morning, states that it may be some hours before Pershing's report will be available, due to the fact that it has to come part of the way by courier.

Baker and Burleson conferred with President Wilson this morning. Upon leaving, both said that "we must be sure of details as to who started the fight. If the Americans did, they must courageously admit as much, but if the Mexicans did,—that is something else."

About the most important point in connection with the matter is the disposition of the troops taken by the Carranzistas. These officials here today said, must be released at once and future developments may entirely hang on this issue.

Border reports state that the condition in northern Mexico is increasingly alarming. The worst feature of it is the continued arming of the natives.

VILLA IN IS HIDING

El Paso, Tex., June 22.—Pancho Villa is reliably reported by high military authorities here to be making his headquarters near Guadalupe y Calvo, in southwest Chihuahua.

The merciless bandit, who at various times has been reported killed, seriously wounded or driven to the last of his resources, frequently makes trips into Durango and the Torreon district.

His headquarters is in the heart of the Sierra Madre range. The mountain fastness serves him as an excellent hiding place. Its remoteness and inaccessibility almost preclude his capture.

MILITIA SOON TO GO

War Official Says AM MILITIA WILL SOON GO BORDERWARD. Mexican Ambassador Receives Instructions What to Tell Lansing.

(By United Press)

Washington, June 22.—A war department official this afternoon stated that he "expected soon to order all the militia borderwards." The belief is that General Funston is already strengthening Pershing's column, which is believed to have been dispersed. Baker and Daniels this afternoon conferred at the capitol with military and naval leaders, the former with regard to the special resolution, authorizing the militia inside of Mexico. Chairman Hay expects to pass this resolution tomorrow. It will also authorize the President to order the militia into federal service during the present period of emergency.

The Mexican ambassador, Arrendondo, has been instructed by Carranza to ask Lansing for a discussion regarding the Carrizal fight and to tell Lansing that the Americans precipitated the battle by their apparent movement toward Juarez. The ambassador will also ask Lansing for an explanation and if the reported occupation of Casas Grandes by the Americans is true. His instructions are further, to explain that Carranza is anxious to avoid war, the latter having no intention of going to war over the last note by this country or the Carrizal battle.

Arrendondo sees Lansing. Washington, June 22.—Arrendondo saw Lansing this afternoon and delivered his instructions. He was told that the United States was awaiting details before any explanations could be made or any decision arrived at.
