TELEGRAMS FROM FRIENDS OF CHILD LABOR BILL WORRY SOME OF SENATORS

Washington, July 28.—One of the many telegrams received from voters in pivotal states which are worrying the Democratic leaders came from Thomas H. Powers of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and said: "I am one of thousands of independent voters who are as yet undecided how we shall cast our vote in November. We shall be governed both by pledge and by record in making our decision. We stand for social justice. Would it be advisable for your party to go before the people and merely pledge Federal child labor regulation when you might have the record of enacting such legislation? The Keating-Owen bill is on the Senate calendar. Why not save the kiddies now? This is a question that thousands are asking today and that we shall ask more pointedly when the campaign is launched."
This is the bill the National Child Labor Committee introduced which passed the House in February by an overwhelming majority and is being held up in the Senate by a small group of "cotton mill Senators."

pany gave yesterday to Captain Edward Kraft, member of the auxiliary relief committee of the Twenty-third Regiment, N. G. N. Y., which has headquarters in Brooklyn.

"The Government is making its own ammunition," Assistant Treasurer Many of the Remington Company, told Captain Kraft in explaining the company's stand.
"We have between 28,000 and 35,000 employees, and of these about 2,000 are with the National Guard at the border," Captain Kraft quoted Mr. Many as saying. "If we were to pay these men their wages it would amount to a very big sum."

Great Fleet of Aeros to Hunt U-Boat Liners
