

Sanitation Will Be Stressed In Shellfish Work

Uniform Sanitary Laws Will Govern Preparation And Sale Of Oysters, Clams And Other Products For Market

LAWS EFFECTIVE HERE THIS FALL

These Rules Were Not Made With The Idea Of Working A Hardship On Fishermen, But In Interest Of Good Health

Beginning with the coming season, regulations promulgated by the Department of Fisheries and the State Board of Health, controlling shellfish sanitation will be enforced uniformly throughout the State. The rules which have been heretofore enforced from Morehead City northward on the State's Coast, will also be in force in the southern half in order to protect the public health and comply with the requirements of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Persons shucking oysters or shipping shell stock without certification by the State Board of Health will be subject not only to prosecution but also if convicted to both fine and imprisonment. The State Board of Health does not wish to work a hardship on any producer and while it is duty bound to work first in the interest of the public health, also intends to be of any possible assistance to any one wishing to engage in the business, by furnishing plans or advice as to preparations for meeting the requirements of the law.

Through its shellfish inspectors, E. C. Hubbard and A. W. Petty, the Board of Health has attempted to interest the various county boards of commissioners to furnish, with WPA assistance, shucking facilities for the local shell fishermen, but due to the financial condition of the local government, has met with little success. Hence, those desiring to engage in the business must make their own arrangements.

In contrast to past unsanitary methods of production when oysters were shucked in open buckets under any condition without any means of sterilization, and by any and everyone whether or not free from disease, shucking operations in the future must be so conducted as to produce not only a palatable but also a safe product.

Regulations governing the gathering and shipping of shell-stock will also be enforced.

Persons interested in handling oysters or clams in this section during the coming season should communicate with E. C. Hubbard, state inspector for the southern half of the coast, at Box 295, Morehead City.

Two Men Taken In Hit-Run Case

Lloyd Evans And Delbert Hewett, Of Boon's Neck Section, Arrested By Patrolmen

A door handle from an automobile picked up at the scene of an alleged hit-run automobile accident on the road between here and Supply has led to the arrest of Lloyd Evans and Delbert Hewett, of Boon's Neck section, in connection with the injury of Josh Howard, of Bolivia, last week.

Howard was struck down and suffered a dislocation of the elbow and other injuries one night last week by a car which he said side-swiped him on the road and fled the scene. Deputy Sheriff D. L. Ganey and state highway patrolmen found the door handle, which had been knocked off when it struck Howard.

The handle, highway patrolmen said, was traced to a small truck owned by Elmer Hewett, of Boon's Neck section. The owner told officers he had loaned the truck to Delbert Hewett and Evans on the night Howard was injured.

Both Evans and Hewett were brought here and lodged in jail; Evans being held for reckless driving, with injuries, and hit-run driving, and Hewett charged with leaving the scene of an accident. They have since been released on bail.

New Combination Licenses Here

State Hunting-Fishing Licenses Went On Sale In This County The First Part Of This Week

Hunters and fishermen properly licensed for the combined sports will be distinguished this year by a new circular chromium-brass badge for display on their person while in the field or along the stream bank. These badges are now on sale at the courthouse and at various places in the county.

"These new state resident badges for 1937-38, are the most attractive ever issued by the Department of Conservation and Development. Made of brass, with a sturdy fastening pin, the buttons are lettered and finished in stainless chromium. They are about the size of a silver dollar."

Joe Chalk, state game and inland fisheries commissioner said, "This combination hunting and fishing license should prove one of the most popular ones ever offered. Since the coming of good roads and automobiles, which allow quick travel into all parts of the State, county fishing and hunting boundaries have practically disappeared. By purchasing the combination license, residents sportsmen may fish and hunt in every county of the State without having to purchase another license," the Commissioner explained.

To hunters and fishermen, one of the attractive features of the new combination license will be the saving it offers. Purchased separately, hunting and fishing license cost North Carolina resident sportsmen $2.10 each. The new combination hunting and fishing license will cost only $3.10.

Q When is the best time to cut cowpeas for hay?

A. Cut when the first pods begin to yellow. This gives a hay of high quality with not too much woody material. Cure as rapidly as possible because over-curing causes the leaves to fall off and leaches out the green color.

- S. A. Tripp, Shallotte.
- Obbie Long, Ash.
- John W. Lancaster, Ash.
- S. B. Benton, Ash.
- H. H. Hickman, Shallotte.
