Fire Lines Good Insurance For Timberland Owners

(BY WM. S. EDMUNDS)
Hardly a business man is to be found who hasn't an insurance policy on his property, and most of them agree that it is a wise investment. An insurance policy has kept many a person from becoming destitute after suffering a disastrous fire which probably destroyed a home or business.

Unfortunately, the insurance companies do not write policies on timberland and if they did the premiums would probably be too high to make their purchase practical; however the timberland owner may provide himself with a policy whose premiums are very reasonable. This policy is in the form of firelines constructed around and through his timberland. Many a forest fire does more damage in dollars and cents than the fire which may destroy a dwelling house or a business.

An increasing number of timber growers are constructing these lines and are receiving high dividends for the small amount of time and money spent. Many are constructing them through the community project plan—one man perhaps furnishes a tractor, another a plow, others their labor and in one or two days cut all the lines necessary in a whole community. These firelines or furrows prove invaluable if and when a fire occurs and furnish a means of confining it to small area.

The lines may vary in construction. Even a double furrow plowed thru the woods or on a property line may help a lot, but an ideal fireline should be plowed solid to a width of eight feet to fifteen feet, depending on the character of the soil and the density of the growth. Their distance apart will depend entirely on how much results you expect.

The Forest Service will be glad to advise and assist insofar as they are able anyone interested in constructing a system of firelines. Now is the ideal time to do this job while the fall plowing is in progress and before the Spring fires start.

Park As Well As Drive With Safety

Director Of Division In North Carolina Points Out That Many Accidents Come From Careless Parking

"A driver's responsibility does not cease when he steps out of the vehicle he has been driving", Ronald Hocutt, director of the North Carolina Highway Safety Division, asserted this week in calling attention to several serious accidents recently in which driverless cars or trucks were involved.

In one of these accidents, Hocutt said, a truck which had been left parked on a slight incline without the hand brake on rolled down the grade, struck a telephone pole, and killed a lineman working on top of the pole. A driver delivering a ton of coal this fall got out of his truck to open the coal chute door and left the truck out of gear, with

4-H COOKING WINS

NORTH CAROLINA'S delegation to the 19th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 29-Dec. 7 includes Pat Graham, 16, of Fayetteville, Cumberland county, who was chosen for outstanding work in food preparation. . . . During her five years of club work, Assistant State Club Leader Frances MacGregor announces she won 13 placings on 26 exhibits, and earned $546. She has prepared 1130 meals and canned 777 quarts. This year Pat was president of the county 4-H council and editor of her school paper. . . . As state winner she has been given an all-expense trip to Chicago by Savel, Inc. which also provides six $200 scholarships for national winners. This is the sixth year of the contest, which is conducted in cooperation with the extension service.

the motor running. The truck rolled down an incline and pinned a woman against the house, killing her instantly. In Raleigh a few days ago, an oil truck driver left his truck parked next to the curb while he ran into a drug store to get some cigarettes. The truck rolled off down the street, smashing into the side of a house.

"Such accidents as these are utterly inexcusable," Director Hocutt said, "and they are due entirely to the carelessness of the drivers." Parking properly is a thing so easy to do," he said. "It is always advisable to cut off the motor and set the hand brake before leaving a parked vehicle. If parked on a downgrade, cut the front wheels into the curb; on an upgrade, cut the front wheel away from the curb. Drivers of trucks should always chuck their wheels before leaving their trucks parked on an incline, because a hand brake can not always be depended upon to hold a heavy truck. Even air brakes can not always be counted on to hold a truck parked on a grade, be-
