Season Caught

An early season freshwater fishing story comes from Postmaster L. T. Yaskell, who brought in a big-mouth bass weighing 5 pounds 8 ounces Monday afternoon. The fish and weight are vouched for.

What preceded the catch is the Postmaster's own story. It He was not expecting the fish to be striking and he was casting only for pleasure and practice from the banks of a small lake between Southport and Orton. A huge bass rose and struck so suddenly and viciously it snatched the rod and reel out of his unsuspecting hands. He avers he waded out (and he had wet pants to prove it) and retrieved his property. The a short time later he was hook, ed and landed during a return engagement.

a predatory cat in the woods one afternoon last week concluded that maybe he would have done better to have shot his dog and kept the cat. But that's getting ahead of the story.

A couple of years ago when there was some little discussion throughout the state relative to the scarcity of quail, W. B. Keziah wrote State Commissioner J. D. Chalk a lengthy epistle in which he ascribed the cause for the diminishing supply of game birds to the ever increasing

"Just why some people who shrink ih horror from the thought of killing a litter of kittens will bundle up these same kittens and turn them loose out in the woods is a mystery to me", wrote Keziah about it", he stated, "the predatory housecat is responsible for the tremendous shortage of quail." It is significant that within a short time a number of large placards prepared by the state department for distribution throughout North Carolina bore the picture of a cat, and the wording "The Birds' Worst Enemy".

The afore-mentioned local hunter was one of a Southport group who blamed forces for the shortage of quail. But when he spied a black cat stalking something about fifty yards up a sand road from him he remembered the admonitions of Keziah and blazed away at the animal, which was more than two miles from the near-

Suggests Three Lane Highway

Hugh McRae, Who Owns onsiderable Property In Brunswick And Who Is Interested In Section, Makes Suggestion

WRITES ABOUT THE RIVER ROAD

Says That Great Area For Industrial Expansion Will Be Opened Up Along River Front

This week the Brunswick Counand best things to help Brunswick county would be a three-

It was stated that such a road would open the whole west side of the Cape Fear River from Navassa to Southport to manufacturing industries needing deep water. And it has also been suggested that such a road may be needed in the future in furtherance of the governments activities for National Defense.

The suggestion came from Hugh MacRae, colonization expert of Wilmington. Mr. MacRae has become nationally known during the past few years for his success in developing real estate for both farming and industry. In a letter to W. B. Keziah of the local Chamber of Commerce Monday, Mr. MacRae stated he would be glad to do what he could to influence industries and other undertakings in utilizing the resources of Brunswick coun-

Both Churchill Bragaw of Orton Plantation, a director of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Keziah have been earnest advocates of a hard surface River Road for the past three years. However, neither of them had such a thing as a three lane road in mind unless it has been quite recently.

Last week, with National Defense activities here very much in mind, Mr. Keziah wrote the newly organized Brunswick county defense committee and suggested - that one of the greatest possibilities for good by the committee was in urging immediate surveying and early construction work on the River Road.
