Men Seeking Jobs At Marine Base In Onslow County Should Apply At Employment Office In Their Home County

Raleigh, May 6.—General contractors on the construction of the Marine Barracks at New River in Onslow county, through Roy Barron, employment officer, advise that workers in the State register at their local employment offices and not flock to the area in the hope of getting jobs, it is announced by Director R. Mayne Albright, of the Employment Service Division of the State UCC.

These contractors will cooperate fully with the Employment Service in recruiting workers on the project, the director is advised. Their work will start next week and the force will be built up during the ensuing weeks until the peak is reached. Clearing has already started. Paul N. Howard has been designated general superintendent for the three contractors, Blythe Bros., Goode

Construction Co., and Harrison-Wright, all of Charlotte.

George Watts Carr, Durham, and J. E. Griener Co., Baltimore, engineers, have already designated the Employment Service as their labor recruiting agency, as have Doyle and Russell, contractors for general offices and warehouses, and other firms engaging in various work on the project.

Temporary tented quarters will be erected some three miles from Jacksonville to house 10,000 marines, while the permanent barracks are being erected about ten miles eastward on Route NC 24, toward Swansboro.

The Employment Service will handle placements on these jobs through its New Bern office by continuing the full-time temporary office already established at Jacksonville and by another full-time office at Morehead City. The Jacksonville office was established to cooperate with the Wilmington office in supplying workers for Camp Davis, anti-aircraft firing base, at Holly Ridge. Additional Employment Service workers will be assigned to these points as they are needed to handle the increasing numbers of construction workers to be recruited from over the State.

Horned Toad Is Captured Here

A genuine horned toad, the Texas variety, was caught on the sidewalk adjoining the Garrison lot one afternoon last week. At various times several of these little creatures have been caught at points in and near here.

Naturalists say that there are probably a great many of them in Brunswick county, having become introduced here through specimens being brought in from Texas and New Mexico.

That small grain can be produced in this county should visit the farm of W. A. Price near Southport; Bill Kopp at Bolivia; H. L. Clemmons, 5 miles north of Supply; W. C. Gore, Shallotte, between the school building and Rourke's store on the hard surface road; J. R. Simmons at Ash postoffice; W. B. Edwards on the Big Neck road near Exum; and M. O. Nelson, Jr., who has the Gaylord farms in charge in Northwest township.

Of course, small grain crops are suffering at this time for the lack of moisture, but taken as a whole, they are looking fine considering the season up to this time.

Expand Farming On The Island

More Land Is Being Cleared On Bald Head Island And Knowledge Gained From Crop Experiments Will Be Utilized

Around one hundred acres of the black lands on Bald Head Island will be cleared and added to those already under cultivation this year, according to Charles Matthews, manager of the place. He is very well satisfied with the farming experiments that have been carried on for the past two years. These experiments have now gone so far that he feels that he knows just what can be grown profitably on the island.

A year-round rotation of crops, garden and truck, has been mapped out, along with fruits and animal husbandry. The flock of sheep on the island will be rounded up in the next few weeks, sheared and bred to a pure bred Hamboulton ram, recently purchased. The plans are to have them drop their lambs in November for hot house lambs. This spring the ewes had a 100 per cent crop of lambs as a result of breeding with the pure bred ram.

Young Columbus County Man Is Ordained Minister Of The Gospel At Service On Sunday, April 27th

ACME, May 5.—The many Columbus County friends of Woodrow Robbins will learn with interest of his Ordination on Sunday, April 27th, at Goshen Chapel Baptist Church. Following the examination of Mr. Robbins by a Presbytery—called by Goshen Church for the purpose—and the subsequent unanimous recommendation to ordain by this body, a public service of Ordination was held.

Rev. B. R. Page, of Bolivia, preached the ordination sermon. This was followed by the charge to the church, and that to the candidate, both delivered by Rev. H. S. Strickland, of Wilmington.

Rev. Page then led the Ordination Prayer, during which the impressive Laying-On-Of-Hands ceremony was held.

Rev. H. F. Bean then presented the Bible given the candidate by the ordaining church, following which—after the hand of fellowship had been extended to the newly ordained minister—Rev. Robbins himself pronounced the benediction.
