

SOUTHPORT SCHOOL
The boys basketball team formed a basketball social club. It was decided that the club would meet once a week at the Army & Navy building. The officers were elected as follows: President, Johnnie Simmons; vice-president, John D. O'Daniel; secretary, Bill Shannon; treasurer, Norton Munn. We all hope the club will be successful toward its goal of boosting moral and cultivating a good fellowship among its members.

SQUAD ENTERTAINED
The boys basketball squad met Wednesday night at 6:30 at the home of Coach Lingle. The guests were served dinner by their hostess, Mrs. Lingle, assisted by Mrs. Thelma Willis.

WILL MEET
The King's Daughters will meet on Thursday night at 8 o'clock with Mrs. R. T. Woodside.
CHURCH PLAY
A two-scene drama, "The Substitute" featured the evening worship service at Bolivia Methodist church Sunday. The following took part: "Mother", Ernestine Mercer; "Aunt Harriett", Louise Galloway; "Leo", Billie Kirk Lewis; "Helena", Anna Mae Swain; "Alice", Florence Swain; "Harmon", Arthur Knox; "Uncle Henry", Aubrey Lewis. Coach, Miss Brooks. The play carried a strong temperance lesson and was well received.

way with these words from the First Lady of North Carolina: "I christen thee Zebulon B. Vance. God speed thee, good ship".
mington was not without its som-Festive, almost gay, as it was the launching of the first 37 "Liberty" ships to be built in Wil-ber moments—a moment driven emphatically home by Capt. Edward Macauley, member of the United States Maritime Commission, principal speaker of the occasion.

NAVY NEEDING CLERICAL HELP

health and the enlistment in the Naval Reserve will be for four years with the obligation to report for active duty as the Navy needs their services.
Men enlisted in the reserve are not subject to military training as prescribed under the selective service act. An original uniform and medical facilities are furnished at no cost to the volunteer.
Those men interested in this branch of the Naval service should write to Captain A. G. Howe, USN (retired), Box 147, Charleston, S. C. This letter should state typing speed, rate of taking dictation, age, number of dependents, present position and rate of pay.

were scorching on the other. Finding a good stout shingle, the sentry set to work to dig in for his company. He made the sand fly on one side of the dune and in no time at all he had scooped out a pretentious resting place. It was about as wide as a church door but not so deep as a well. The excavated matter was thrown up windward, to serve as a wind break.
With chunks from the fire and aided by the plentiful supply of dry wood, Keziah soon had a hot fire going in the improvised bed. Soon the sands were white hot. Removing the fire, the hot sands were spread out more generally and a light sprinkling of cool dry sand was spread to alleviate the hotness.
Grabbing the blanket from the girls, one end of it was spread in the "bed" and they were told to hop in and they would be tucked up nice and warm. They hopped in, lay down on their backs and the other end of the blanket was tucked over both and under the one on the offside. The sentry then stood back to review his handiwork.

The results were immediate and surprising. Both girls arose from that bed as swiftly as a brace of wild ducks that had been shot at. The hot sand had quickly penetrated the cooling surface and had practically blistered their backs, as they had fallen asleep almost on the instant of turning in.
They were very clamorous for awhile, but the sentry quick ly made adjustments to the tucked them in again and the time they slept as soundly as two bugs in a rug.
