March Of Dimes Program Going On Last Week

G. O. Rogers Notes Satisfactory Progress But Urges No Let-Up In Conduct Of Drive

SCHOOL CHILDREN PLAYING BIG PART

Response Reported To Be Genuine And Sympathetic To Appeal For Aid Against Dread Disease

Satisfactory progress in the Brunswick County March of Dimes was reported this morning by Principal G. O. Rogers, county chairman, who said that it appears likely that Brunswick will meet its $1,120 quota. He cautioned, however, against over-optimism and urged no one to neglect making their contribution.

Sparked by the school children, solicitation has covered much of the county, with school children taking pride in seeing that their coin folders are filled with dimes. In other parts of the county, community chairmen are conducting active campaigns.

Response is reported both genuine and enthusiastic, with everyone expressing a willingness to contribute their share in helping to combat this dread disease of childhood. Mr. Rogers said that the sympathetic response of the public to the fight against infantile paralysis makes the conduct of a drive to collect funds for it relatively easy.

"The thought of children being maimed for life by a disease of childhood stirs the emotions of everyone of us," she said, "and human nature arises with enthusiasm to any effort to prevent such catastrophes."

The campaign in Brunswick county will continue through January 31. Last year Brunswick county contributed over $1,800 to the March of Dimes.

As is always the case, the schools of the county are rendering a major contribution in the

Johnson Lauds OPA Veterans

Declares Board Members Gave Fine Example Of American Democracy

RALEIGH—Brunswick countians who began their fifth year of service on OPA Price Control Boards this month were lauded today by OPA District Director Theodore S. Johnson for their work in the past and reminded that that work is far from being finished.

"Board members who gave so untiringly of their time and energy to the rationing of scarce commodities are the people who made rationing programs a fine example of American Democracy," Johnson asserted.

OPA continues to need the assistance of unpaid volunteers, on local boards to meet the tremendous inflationary threat that is many times greater now than it was after World War I Johnson said.

Reviewing the history of the organization of local boards following Pearl Harbor, each governor was asked to set up an organization to ration tires in his state by January 5, 1942.

Less than one month after the war began, he continued, approximately 7,500 local rationing boards, manned by 20,000 volunteer workers, were receiving applications and issuing ration certificates for tires.

This original army of 20,000 volunteers soon increased to 76,000, and another 200,000 men and women volunteered to assist the local boards regularly, he said. These volunteers—merchants, bankers, factory workers, doctors, housewives, high school boys and girls, teachers, office workers, and farmers—gave a specified amount of their time on a regular weekly schedule.

With everything but sugar now off the rationing list, OPA has changed the official name of its local organizations to Area Price Control Boards, Johnson said.

The district director stressed that while goods are scarce and in great demand these Price Control Boards will greatly need the support of the volunteers who worked so efficiently on price control during the war.
