

Farmers Cooperate With AAA Program

Many Brunswick farmers are taking advantage of the liberal soil conservation payments offered by the AAA and are signing up for conservation materials at a great rate, according to J. J. Hawes of the Supply office of the AAA.

Mr. Hawes states that interested farmers will have until November 2nd to file their applications for Austrian Winter Peas, ryegrass, vetch and crimson clover seed. All orders must be in at the office not later than the above date.

Champion Of Clean Milk

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Clean milk and milk products will always command a good market, according to Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, who isn't worrying about farm supprises—either on his own 600-acre dairy farm-ranch near here, or on the nation's farm front. He believes the war actually stimulated the market for milk and milk products. Here he is shown examining one of the milking machines used on his farm. Anderson is particular about maintaining high standards of farm cleanliness because he is convinced that American farmers must continue to improve quality and production of their milk in order to hold the peak market. The Secretary milks about 150 cows.

R. & S. Will Soon Return To Leland

Amusement Company Will Be Back At Their Old Winter Quarters At The Brunswick River Bridge About November 1st

Filling an engagement next week at Shallotte will leave the R. & S. Amusement with just one more week on the road before returning to its winter quarters on Route 74 and 17, between Woodburn and the Brunswick River Bridge. At these winter quarters of the show Jimmie Raftery, the owner, has been acquiring valuable land and buildings. Away for several months while the show is on tour, his return to winter quarters is usually attended by much building activity in addition to the complete overhauling of the show and equipment preparatory to the next season. While at home last winter Mr. Raftery laid plans for the construction of a big night club building on a portion of his property near the bridge. Conditions prevented the start of this undertaking last year, but he hopes to be able to carry out the night club building plans this winter.

May Help With Better Housing

Owners Of Clarendon Plantation May Make Some Of Their Housing Facilities Available For Use

Feeling keenly the lack of facilities in Brunswick county for tourists, there is a possibility that Mr. and Mrs. Neil Thomas, owner of Clarendon Plantation on the Cape Fear, may open up accommodations this winter or in the near future. Besides the 16-room plantation house property which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas occupy as a residence, they have another nearby 8-room residence. For only the two people this is too much room and the couple, like many other Brunswick people, are aware of the shortage of quarters for tourists and hunters in this county. Clarendon is often described as one of the most beautiful homes in the Southeast by people who visit there. In addition to the fine home it has the most beautiful surroundings in its grounds. Situated right on the river it affords a beautiful view of and during the winter its waterfront swarms with ducks. The woods and fields also provide fine hunting throughout the seasons.

other hauls could be made with the sein during the afternoon the gill nets were made ready, each in the bow of a boat. The already tired fishermen then turned too for an hour or two of sleep in their "shacks," waiting for night and individual operations with the gill nets. The newsman happened around again at just about dark. The small landing was then found to be alive with fishermen, each with his own boat and net, ready to go out in the sound and try his own luck. They work without regard to hours, when and where fish are to be found. Many of them fish only at night with their gill nets, having neither ownership or a working interest with the sein crews and apparently with more faith in their individual operations. It would have been interesting to wait and see what the individuals brought in, but such a wait had possibilities of entailing an all-night stay there on the beach. Almost every boatman took a snack of food with him when he embarked on his lone voyage and some took frying pans for the purpose of creating their own provender. All of the boats had the traditional water jug in accordance with the rule of the sea and river that no boat shall put out at night or in stormy weather without having drinking water aboard. During periods of the year, headman Leonard said, when there are no fish the men work at different things, just anything that comes to hand. The soil near the coast is not very well adapted to farming but fine patches are found and about all of them do some gardening. They also work at carpentering, boat building and anything that comes to hand during such times when they cannot turn to their beloved fishing.

Mrs. Johnson Is Club Hostess

The Bolivia Home Demonstration Club met Tuesday afternoon, October 8th, at the home of Mrs. J. D. Johnson. Due to the absence of the president, Mrs. W. A. Kopp conducted the business session. Plans were discussed for the fall federation which will be held at the Bolivia high school November 1st. After the business session Mrs. Elwood Mintz, home agent, gave a timely and helpful demonstration on "What We Earn And How To Use It." Following her demonstration an open discussion was enjoyed by all on the topic, "What has home demonstration work meant to you this year?" Mrs. Johnson served delicious ice cream and cake to the following: Mrs. Frank Mintz, Mrs. Foster Mintz, Mrs. Olivia Russ, Mrs. Ada Reeves, Mrs. W. A. Kopp and Mrs. Elwood Mintz. One visitor, Mrs. Herring, also was present.

Building Boom Causes Theft

As pleasing as it is to him to see Brunswick county building up some methods are being adopted that are not satisfactory to R. D. White, of Shallotte. He would prefer that all building plans and arrangements be open and shut affairs. Mr. White recently figured in a transaction that was not open and shut. Some busy beaver of a builder busted into his warehouse and stole his 125 bags of cement, with which he was intending to do some building of his own.

Fishermen Busy Along

Four men composed this outfit. They were R. H. Leonard, J. J. Leonard, L. Leonard and S. D. Milliken. Where more than two persons operate a fishery there is always a headman, especially if the sein has individual ownership. When one man owns the sein a share of the catch goes to it, making one share more than the number of men working. If the whole group owns the sein the number of shares corresponds to the number of men working and all unite in the upkeep of the outfit.

R. H. Leonard was the headman at the fishery visited and it is understood his three companions all had joint ownership in the 150-yard sein. They were just completing a haul when the newsman arrived. Pulling their net to the bank it was found to have only about 50 or 60 pounds of medium sized mullets and a few spots. The weather was off for good fishing that day and the small catch was not especially disappointing.

As soon as possible after the fish were removed the net was made ready for another haul if any fish came along. The fish were not moving, however, and after waiting for an hour the net was taken from the boat and hung on its rack to dry in readiness for the next day.

In addition to the mutually owned sein all four of the fishermen had individually-owned gill nets, each about 45 feet in length. When it became apparent that no

Enough Food is no Accident

It is no accident that the largest crops in our history are being harvested this year when we, and the rest of the world, need them most.

In spite of war, loss of labor and little new equipment, the American farmer has again taken care of us and provided a life-saving surplus for abroad.

How do our farmers do it? How is it that only sixteen per cent of our people can feed all of us and go on breaking records in the face of circumstances which slow up industry?

There are three reasons: First, farmers work harder and longer than most other Americans. Second, they know how to make the best use of tools. And, third, they have a long-standing partnership with industry seeking to satisfy their urge to get more out of the land for the same labor. Farmers are still practicing the kind of enterprise that built America.

National thanks are due the farmer for the job he has done in the last five years. Universal respect is due him for his foresight in helping industry equip farms to meet a whole series of emergencies.

BUT... we should not crowd our luck, or the farmer's luck either. Too many farm tools are now worn out. Without new ones production may go down. Farmers need over eight hundred million dollars' worth of new implements and equipment. It is up to industry and labor to keep wheels turning to produce them, but any recurrence of strikes would prevent this.

America should see that the hard-working farmer gets what he needs.
