Picture above is "Lena, the Hyena" as created by LeRoy Bannerman of Whiteville and student at the University of North Carolina. Bannerman's cartoon won first place at the University and entered in the national contest to select a cartoon characterization of Lena for Al Capps comic strip, "Lil Abner."

NCEA Asks For 20 Percent Hike In Teacher Salaries

The Advisory Budget Commission gets request from State Board of Education. W. Phillips, President of the North Carolina Education Association, has released the following statement concerning the request presented to State Advisory Commission by the State Board of Education. During the past two years the North Carolina Education Association has worked very closely with the State Board of Education in the hope that we might present a united front in our request before the Advisory Budget Commission and the Legislature for more adequate provision for the needs of public education in North Carolina. We are accepting our own program submitted to the Advisory Budget Commission on October 1 by the State Board of Education. In the matter of salaries it is our understanding that the appropriation requested will do the following: 1. Provide a 20 percent overall increase in salaries, the salary arrived at to be a base salary with no bonus or emergency salary included. 2. Provide an eleventh increment for teachers holding Class A certificates and a twelfth increment for teachers holding graduate certificate. It is significant that this program has the support of the following: State Board of Education, the Legislative Committee of the North Carolina Education Association, Presidents of the four major divisions of the NCEA, the Directors of The NCEA, our State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, who is a Director of the Association, the leadership of the Grange, Farm Bureau, Parent-Teacher Association, Association of State School Boards, Federation of Women's Clubs, and others.

While the appropriation requested is only for the biennium beginning July 1, the State Board of Education joins us in the hope that this salary increase will be provided as of January 1, 1947.

The Finance Committee of the State Board of Education agrees with us that should the cost of living continue to mount, proportionate increases should be provided by the Legislature.

All things considered, we believe that the program submitted to the Advisory Budget Commission by the State Board of Education is the best possible program that can be secured at this time. With this united front it is hoped that the Commission will not hesitate to provide it in full.

We have been tremendously impressed with the attitude of the State Board of Education and are convinced that under their leadership our cause will be in good hands. Our hope is that the program will receive the same unanimous support from the educational forces of the state generally that it has received from the leadership of the North Carolina Education Association and allied forces.

AUTUMN FISHING SUCCESSFUL... The "no closed season" ruling on warm-water species of fish, passed at the July meeting of the Board of Conservation and Development, seems to be meeting with the approval of sportsmen in this State as fall fishing is getting under way. One evidence of interest in autumn fishing is the increase in the sale of fishing licenses and of combination hunting and fishing licenses.

Reports from the fish and game protectors reveal that many anglers are meeting with success. In Catawba County, Protector James A. Fairchild declares, "Fishing is in full swing for the autumn spree. I have checked several good catches. Bass are being caught with mullet." A similar story is told by E. W. Caine of Robeson County who included, "The fall fishing has started in this territory and the anglers are making some fine catches of bass and blue bream." Catches of bass are reported in Currituck County by St. Clair Lewark. Further reports of successful catches include one from Protector Frank W. Mackie in Yadkin County of three fishermen on Dobbin Lake who had 15 crappie, and from Protector Walter Bray who cites a 9 1/2 lb. largemouth bass caught in Richmond County. According to Protector D. B. Bell, "there have been good catches of fish taken in Contentnea Creek recently."

The "no closed season" ruling abolishes the closed season on all species of game fish except trout, with the exception that spawning areas for other species will be designated and closed during the spawning season. Fishermen, get a license and enjoy this fall sport. The fish are there and they're still biting.

LEADER IN NEW FEDERAL AID PROJECT—Robert J. Wheeler, Jr. of Montgomery, Alabama has recently joined the Division of Game and Inland Fisheries as senior biologist in Federal Aid work to help in the initiation and development of a State-wide Wild Turkey Restoration Program. Mr. Wheeler has had several years of experience in investigation and management of deer and turkey in the southeast. He was formerly a project leader of a Federal Aid project dealing with turkey management in Alabama. He has a Master's degree in wildlife management received from Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

PLANS FOR NEW FEDERAL AID PROJECT... Tentative plans have been set up for a new Federal Aid project of the Division of Game and Inland Fisheries which will be concerned with a turkey management program. The turkey demonstration management area of 25,000 acres or more is yet to be selected; it may be set up on present holdings or, if the initial survey should so indicate, a new area may be selected for acquisition by lease or purchase. The purpose of the intensive management work is to develop concentrated populations of turkeys for trapping and transplanting to other potential turkey ranges. The selected area will serve as an experimental and demonstration area for turkey management practices, and these principles and practices of turkey management will be cited for private lands on which suitable agreements can be worked out.

$180 FOR ONE SQUIRREL... Yes, that's approximately what it cost one Richmond County hunter for one squirrel which he killed with an unplugged gun, and then resisted game and fish protectors who sought to inspect his bag and gun.

As Protectors W. J. Rivers and Walter Bray of that county approached him to take his gun after he had been placed under arrest, this hunter aimed his gun at them; but before he could fire, Protector Rivers succeeded in taking the gun. In court this so-called sportsman found guilty on four charges. For the first charge, he was fined $10.00 and cost—a total of $28.25. For the second charge, he was fined $10.00 and cost—a total of $27.85. For the third charge he was fined $15.00 and cost—a total of $30.05, and for the fourth charge, he was fined $10 and cost—a total of $25.05. In addition to these penalties, the court ordered his repeating shotgun confiscated, and all of his ammunition and his license revoked. The total cost to the defendant according to his own statement as to cost of shotgun, attorney fee, etc. was $180.

This case, however, was not the first instance where the game and fish protectors of the State have been assaulted while carrying out their duties. For the month of September, there was a total of five assaults. Chief of law enforcement, C. D. Kirkpatrick, points out that these protectors are not looking for trouble; they have no desire to embarrass hunters; they are simple doing their duty when they ask to see licenses, bags and arms. They are acting in the interests of the sportsmen for and with whom they are working.

Prior to coming to work with this Division he had occupied the position of teacher, biologist aide with the Tennessee Valley Authority, and senior biologist with the Tennessee Department of Conservation.

ALL OUT FOR SPORTS—especially hunting and fishing. Sportsmen are really taking to the fields and streams, and license sales are skyrocketing. The sale
