

Bee Men Glad Of Assistance

Extension Bee Specialist Will Be Visiting This County This Fall; This Work Has Been at Standstill Several Years

The many Brunswick county farmers who are interested in bee culture, as well as the several more who make an out-and-out business of producing honey, are looking forward to the late summer or early fall when the new Extension Bee Specialist is scheduled to meet with them.

This official, recently secured by the State, is A. M. Stephens, from Canada. Mr. Stephens, with a lifelong experience among bees, replaces C. L. Sams who died four years ago. Following the death of Mr. Sams, the State was without a bee specialist for nearly four years.

Among the Brunswick farmers who produce honey, having anywhere from 25 to several hundred hives each, are J. W. Martin of the Whiskey Creek Apiaries at Leland; County Commissioner M. B. Chinnis, Leland; W. A. Mintz,

P. D. Mintz and Layton Mintz; Freeland; L. S. Holden and Homer Holden, Bolivia; County Agent J. E. Dodson, Ash; J. L. Stone, M. L. Holden, Shallotte; and many others whose names cannot be recalled at the moment.

Two Defendants Out Under Bond

Three Others Charged With Being Involved In Safe-Robbery Cast Are Still Being Held In Jail

Two of the five Robeson county persons against whom probable cause on a robbery count was found in a recent session of the Recorder's court, have been released from jail under bond. Emma put up $300.00 for Mrs. Emma Willard, and the appearance of Jabo Willis at the next term of criminal court was guaranteed by a $500.00 bond.

They were charged, along with two other women and a man, with breaking into the store of Obie Sharp, near Shallotte. From this store they allegedly took a 250-pound safe, containing about $2,000.

Marketing Plan Is Outlined For Wool Producers

Pool To Be In Operation Only During Week Starting July 7th

RALEIGH, June 29.—A concerted effort to assist North Carolina wool producers in marketing their wool will be made next month, for the first time, through an arrangement made by the State Department of Agriculture, with the North Carolina Farmers Cooperative Exchange.

Details of the arrangement were announced today by Robert S. Curtis, sheep marketing specialist of the department, and E. W. Kenyon, director of marketing for FCX.

During the week beginning Monday, July 7, all that a farmer has to do to find an outlet for his wool is to take it to any one of the 37 FCX warehouses in North Carolina. Upon depositing his wool at an FCX warehouse, the farmer will receive a receipt.

Curtis said checks should be received by the growers within two or three weeks after FCX receives the wool. He emphasized that the wool pool would be in operation only during the week beginning July 7.

FCX will handle the wool on a non-profit basis, but will retain a small fee to cover handling expenses.

"In the past, many farmers have not been able to dispose of their wool," Curtis explained. "Others have found it necessary to sell to concerns which handle wool only subordinate to their main operations, with the result that the per-unit cost of handling the wool has been excessively high and farmers consequently have had to take an unduly low price."

"No longer will a farmer have to hold his wool for several years because he cannot find a market for it. All that he needs to do is take it to any one of the FCX warehouses during the week beginning July 7. Because of the scarcity of storage facilities, wool cannot be received except during the week designated, and all wool brought to an FCX warehouse in that week will find an outlet based upon the best prices prevailing in the wool markets of the world."

FCX warehouses are located at Whiteville, Fairmont and Lumberton.

Comets Defeat Wallace Stars On Sunday 15-5

Local Semi-Pro Slams Out 13 Hits To Take Eighth League Win Of Season; Council And Proctor Homer

The Whiteville Comets jumped on Bill Tuttle, new flinger for the Wallace All-Stars, for 13 hits and 15 runs to take their eighth game of the year in the Eastern State league 15-5. The win puts the locals back into a tie for first place as Masonboro dropped their tilt to Bladenboro 12 to 11.

The locals scored in every inning except the second when Wallace took their only lead of the game 4-2. The Comets tied it up in the fourth inning when Wilbur Council hit his first homer of the season into deep right field with none on. The Comets then tallied three in the fifth, four in the sixth and three more in the seventh to end the scoring. Council, Ray, Harrelson and Proctor with two for four and Neilson with two for three led the hitting attack of the Comets.

The Wallace team got five hits off Dave Neilson with Huffham and Walker getting two for four to lead the losers in that department. Tuttle, the losing pitcher, did not retire a single Whiteville batter via the strike out route. Hardison relieved him in the seventh inning and gave up three runs and hit two Whiteville batters. Bud "Mud" Heath was beamed by one of Hardison's fast ones in the seventh but finished the game without a miscue.

Proctor's homer came in the first inning when Wallace's right-fielder lost the ball in the high grass and Proctor raced all the way around chasing Buck Hardee, who had singled, in ahead of him.

In addition to buying on the Tabor City market, Mr. King has Board of trade membership on the Fayetteville, Mebane, Boone and Wilson markets in North Carolina, the South Boston market in Virginia and the upper Marlboro market in Maryland.

Announcement of the new business connection was made following Mr. King's return from the Maryland market where he has been buying for several weeks.

Vets Urged To Register Now For Fall Term

Veterans Planning To Enter College In Fall Term Should Arrange Immediately For Entrance

Southeastern North Carolina veterans who plan to attend college for the first time next fall under the G. I. Bill were advised today by the Veterans Administration to arrange immediately for entrance into the school of their choice if they have not done so already.

Another peak registration in institutions of higher learning is forecast by the Veterans Administration for the beginning of the next school year, according to Robert S. Matthews, Jr., Contact Representative in charge of Wilmington's VA Contact Office, 125 Customhouse.

All indications point to an increase over the current peak of approximately 1,200,000 ex-G. I.'s now enrolled in these institutions. Veterans who wait until the last minute to apply for entrance, are taking a chance of being "shut out."

The Veterans Administration also urges veterans who expect to enroll in school under the G. I. Bill for the first time next fall to apply at once for their Certificate of Eligibility. Application forms may be obtained from the nearest VA Office.

The VA explained that when a school accepts a veteran's Certificate of Eligibility and forwards it to the Veterans Administration, it becomes the basis for payment of the veterans tuition, fees and supplies to the school, and subsistence allowance to the veteran.
