County Superintendent J. T. Denning Reports That Some Vacancies Still Exist In Various Faculties

LELAND PRINCIPAL

W. R. Teachey Has Been Named To Succeed Mr. Denning As Principal Of Waccamaw School

September 4 has been definitely set for the opening Brunswick county schools according to County Superintendent J. T. Denning, who stated that everything appeared to be shaping up fine for the season. The Waccamaw school still has a shortage of four teachers, and other school are short one or two. Part of this shortage may be attributed to the change in principles and the fact that the rew principle a M E. Smith, of Leland, at Waccamaw has not yet had time to adjust himself.

Young Deer Finds Himself A Home

It is a far cry from being forced to share your lunch bag with your little brother and having more of your favorite food than you can possibly handle, but that is just the position that Tony, a buck fawn on the D. R. Johnson farm at Winnabow, now enjoys.

Some dogs barking on the Covill farm nearby frightened the little fellow into a garden enclosure from which he could not escape, and when his mother and brother took off without him, there arese the matter of what to do about young Tony. The Covills decided that the Johnsons, with their herd of cows, were in better position than they were to raise a deer, so an exchange was made and Tony is now a boarder at the Johnson Dairy. What's more, he's a willing guest, as he is given the run of the place, and even though again about milking time.
