A dragline is now operating on the Roland Simmons farm near Exum, cutting two drainage canals. The combined length of these canals total over 3,000 linear feet. Big Alligator Swamp, which forms the west boundary on this farm, is being used as an outlet.
"I have a water-logged field on this farm that I seldom make a good crop on, and when I do I am often unable to harvest it due to poor drainage", Simmons told technicians assigned to the Lower Cape Fear Soil Conservation District. The technicians first made a preliminary survey to see if a good drainage system could be designed and what the approximate cost would be. The results of this survey was made available to the farmer.
"A canal of this kind is just what I want, one or two good crops from this field after it is drained will more than pay for it," Simmons said.
Engineering assistance and supervision was supplied by Soil Conservation Service technicians assigned to the District.
A preliminary drainage survey is being made for B. M. McKeithan, the owner of a farm near Bolivia. This farmer has had to almost abandon his farm due to poor drainage. Technicians assigned to the Lower Cape Fear Soil Conservation District, are

Morman Mission In This County

Chapel Recently Completed In Ash Community And Services Being Conducted Twice Each Sunday
Elder Henry Clifford Clark of Spanish Fork, Utah, and Elder J. Nolan Hanson of Dragerton, Utah, both ministers representing the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, are in Brunswick and Columbus counties doing full time missionary work. These young missionaries are only two from a total of some sixty five hundred men and women representing the church in missionary work throughout the world.
Before going into the field these missionaries were just members of the church who worked at various occupations or professions in regular daily life. When called by their church to fill a mission, they leave family, home and friends and go for a period of from two to three years to whatever place the church has called them. After the mission is over they return home to go back to school or to their previous profession or work.
Among these 6500 young men and women in the world at the present time serving as missionaries for the church, each one of them testifies to the world that God truly revealed a little over one hundred years ago, that He directly supervised the organization of His church and appeared and revealed Himself to the Israelites, as is related so many times in the Bible.

Morehead Boat Here Two Days

Big Menhaden Boat Owned By Phillips Interests Here On Way South For Few Days Of Fishing
The Mattie Phillips, big new menhaden boat owned by the Phillips Fisheries of Morehead City, spent Sunday and Monday here enroute to Fernandia, Fla., where she will fish for the next few months.
The Mattie Phillips is in command of Captain Ashton Willis, formerly of Southport and a skipper for the Brunswick Navigation Company during his residence here.
The Phillips interests owned and operated a menhaden plant at Southport until the beginning of the war. They still own their factory site here and Captain Willis says that there is talk of rebuilding their factory. He does not know if this rebuilding will be done this year, but is almost certain it will be ready for the 1951 operating season.

Attend Funeral Of Their Son

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Arnold have returned to Southport from Hazard, Kentucky, where they were called on the 15th of April when their son, James Lewis Arnold, was instantly killed when the plane he owned and was piloting crashed.
A passenger with him was also killed. A third man leaped from the plane and parachuted safely to earth.
Mr. Arnold, 29 years old and married, has been a frequent visitor to Southport since his parents bought the old Miller Hotel and moved here four years ago.

APC Provides Drainage Work

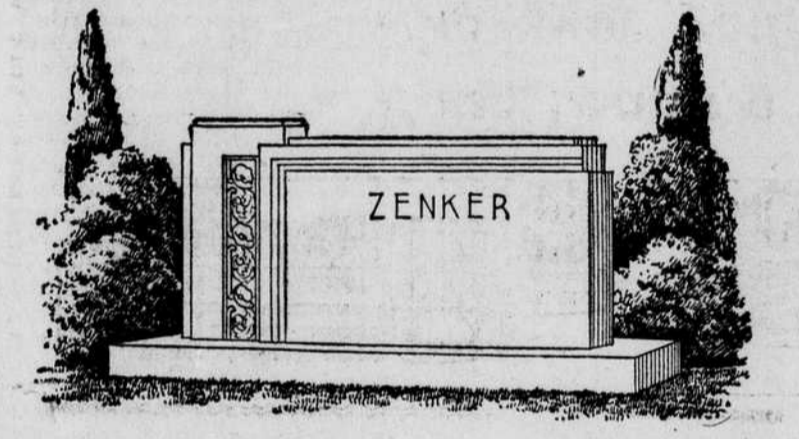

Planning Well In Advance Of Actual Work Urged By S. L. Purvis, Brunswick PMA Chairman
Planning well in advance of the time the work is to be done and making arrangements ahead of time in the case of dirt-moving conservation practices was advised today by S. L. Purvis, Chairman of the Brunswick County PMA Committee.
According to Mr. Purvis, assistance is again available for approved practices under the Agricultural Conservation Program. The 1950 APC provides assistance for the following dirt-moving practices in Brunswick County: Open ditch drainage. A payment of 10c per cubic yard will be made to the extent of any unused funds for the farm.
Mr. Purvis said that purchase orders may be used in obtaining the services of contractors with power equipment. Purchase orders, he explains, cover only the part of the cost approved for APC assistance. The farmer makes his own arrangements with the contractor for the balance of the cost.
Before assistance can be approved, the county PMA committee is obliged to make sure the conservation project planned, whether it be the construction of a terrace, installing a drainage system or a pond for stock water, meets standard specifications. The committee is responsible for making sure that the assistance provided does get a maximum of age of the Wilmington office. An analysis of the study indicated that the chief reasons for these losses were that workers and their families were not aware of their full rights and privileges under the Social Security Act, and to a lesser extent, that they received incorrect information from unofficial sources.

"In order to protect their interests," Avera said, "the worker should file a claim for benefits if he has worked under social security, has reached age 65, and has retired from employment under the law."
Avera pointed out that employers can play an important part in reducing benefit losses if they will inform their 65-year old employees, who are planning to retire that they may be eligible for social security benefits for any months in which they earn less than $15.00
Benefits are payable until a

but perfection is no trifle

To those who seek Perfection for their family memorial, the selection of the right material is no trifle—for upon its coloring, texture and durability, as much as upon the design selected, depends the beauty of the finished memorial.

We have memorials on display as well as photographs and sketches from which your choice may be made. Our experience as memorial craftsmen is at your service.

So sincere is the belief of each of these young missionaries in these declarations, and of their importance to everyone, that they spend the two to three years of their mission entirely at their own expense, receiving no monetary compensation whatsoever, neither from their church, nor from the people in order to tell others of the great Gospel message. They are entirely supported from their own savings or from parents or friends at home. In

Candidate For House Of Representatives

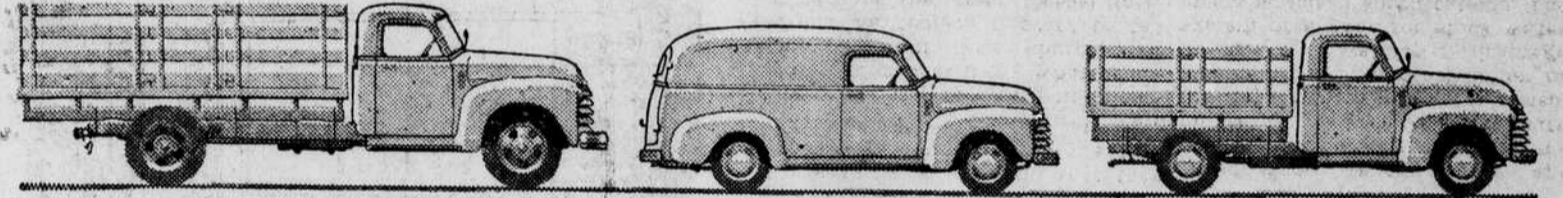

I am a candidate for the Lower House of the North Carolina General Assembly. I have in mind the interest of the people in Brunswick county to serve them in a greater way than I have in the last eleven years.

In 1939 I helped organize the Brunswick Electric Membership Co-operation. I served on the board of directors for 7 years.
Five years ago I organized the Farm Bureau in this county and people said it couldn't be done.

My Purpose For Organizing The Farm Bureau Was:
1. To maintain better prices for our farm products.
2. To help build new homes and better homes.
I realized that when the farmer makes money it means more business for the business man, it helps the fisherman sell his fish and the oyster man his oysters, the sawmill man his lumber. It also helps cold storage places and various other businesses. It means more money in circulation in the county.
As chairman of the Farm Bureau Telephone committee I see encouraging prospects for phones in our rural homes.
If the farmers, fishermen, business men, lumber men, and every good citizen would like to be well represented in the General Assembly and wish to have a representative who will be for better schools, better roads and highway safety and one that would not limit time nor cost when serving the people of his home county, then your support and vote will be greatly appreciated.
In case I am elected I will be asking God's guidance that I shall not dissappoint you in Raleigh.
