

Soil Conservation District Notes

H. F. KIZER
Soil Conservation Service

"I lost my entire soybean crop in 1948 on one of my largest fields, due to poor drainage," said Rice Gwynn, Jr., a large farmer of the Longwood section of the county.

After this costly experience, he called in Soil Conservation Service technicians assigned to the Lower Cape Fear Soil Conservation District and had them to design him a complete tile drainage system for this field. He then secured the use of a tile trenching machine and properly installed an adequate tile drainage system eliminating every open ditch in the field. The tile was installed in the spring of 1949. The field was immediately planted in corn and an average yield of 52 bushels per acre was made. Oats were seeded in the fall of 1949, and has recently been harvested.

"This oat crop, one of the best I ever raised on the place, averaged a fraction over 78 bushels per acre", Gwynn, "and this hasn't been what you would call a good oat year as far as the weather is concerned", he added.

The field is now being seeded to an early variety of soybeans that will give summer cover on the land and another cash crop in the fall, plus soil improvement.

AN APPEAL TO VOTERS

I deeply appreciate the fine vote and support which I received as a Candidate for the Democratic Nomination for Sheriff of Brunswick County in the First Primary.

I am still in the race, and on Saturday, June 24, I need your help more than ever. I have served the county for years as a faithful servant and law enforcement officer, and now I am making this final appeal for your help in my behalf.

If you can and will help me, I shall be grateful; and my appreciation to you will be expressed in rendering you the best service of which I am capable.

Shrimp Fleet Is Operating Here

Boats Return To Southport Waters As Few Choice Shrimp Begin To Make Their Appearance

With only one exception, a big boat belonging to Wiley Wells, all of the big Southport trawlers that went to Key West and other Florida west coast points the first of the year are now back at Southport. Most of them fished at various east Florida and Georgia points as they came back. Rockville, and Georgetown, S. C., also got a share of attention in the return.

The last of the boats to reach home was the W. S. Wells and Dallas Pigott fleets. The Lewis Hardee boats returned a month ago, Paul Fodale's and Swan and Downing's, two weeks ago.

So far, the trawlers working here have only about made crews wages, but the boat production is slated to get heavier this week. The intuition of the boatmen that tells them where and when the shrimp will be is very seldom at fault.

Picking Begins At Nearby Farm

About 75 blueberry pickers started work Monday morning on the farm of Keys and Graham, two miles from Southport. In addition to the pickers a small force is working in the packing house. T. P. Keys, Sr., said Sunday that the crop was good for bushes just coming into bearing. The estimates for this year are for about 2000 crates or flats. Next year a larger acreage will come into bearing and the bearing bushes of this year will be larger and more productive.

An additional acreage is planted each year and after the 3rd year they add up to the producing acreage. A great deal of money has been spent in the development of the farm. One result is that the land is now worth about 30 times what it was when bought about six years ago. The farm has also been producing some very fine strawberries this year.
