CATHOLIC INFORMATION
"I Quit Going To Church..."
"Sure, I used to go, until my wife got laid up with T. B., and our little baby took convulsions and died. Then I decided that, if there is a God, He can't be worth bothering about."
That is a pretty tough nut to crack, we'll admit, and we've often wondered about it ourselves. In fact, it is the greatest of mysteries—that the good God allows all kinds of trouble to run rampant in His world.
A mystery, you see, is something which is away over our heads. We hold two truths—one in each hand, as it were—and we can't seem to hook them together at all. So we rack our brains and go on puzzling our whole life long.
The trouble is that some poor people try to solve the mystery by throwing out one of the truths. Our friend in this case, has thrown out God. But that's wrong, because we know there is a God—there had to be someone to set this old world spinning, to wind up the clock so to speak. Someone had to make the first chicken, the first egg, or the first germ cell, as you wish
