"My farm drainage canal that I cut during the spring really paid off during the heavy rains around the first of the month," said J. Roland Simmons, a prominent farmer of the Ash community. He and I visited the farm soon after the heavy rains ceased and looked over the canal and the field in which it was located. We were greeted by a fine field of corn and soybeans.

"Look at the crop on the lower side of the field," he said. "This is the first year since I have owned the place that I have made anything down there on account of it drowning."

While in this community, I visited George Cox, conservation farmer, and checked on his tile system. This tile was installed in the spring of 1949 and is now in its second season. "I really believe it worked better the second year than it did the first," Cox said, adding, "naa i not had it in, I am sure that I would have had some drowned tobacco". The tobacco growing in this field certainly looked good and a good crop of high quality tobacco is now being harvested by Mr. Cox. This tile system and Mr. Simmons' canal was planned and designed by Soil Conservation Service technicians assigned to the Lower Cape Fear Soil Conservation District, and was part of a complete soil and water conservation program being carried out by these two farmers.

BRUNSWICK ROAD
Among the roads for which bids were asked by the State Highway Commission Tuesday was an 8.41-mile stretch extending from Old Dock east and southeast, crossing Juniper Creek and connecting with the present paving. This route runs through the Freeland community.

RECORDING FEE
One of the largest fees collected by Register of Deeds Amos J. Walton for recording instruments was received recently from the Atlantic Coastline Railroad for a 60-page mortgage. The fee was $27.00 and this did not include the cost of copying the paper, which was received in printed form.

Shalotte Man Rolled For Money

Six-Day Investigation Is Ended With Charge Of Robbery Against Three; One Held As Material Witness

A six-day investigation of the alleged robbery of an 85-year-old Brunswick County Negro was completed today with the arrest of four Whiteville Negroes. Charged with "rolling" Willie Hill of Shalotte for $160 are Taft Goss, 44, Asbury Flemings, 26, Nevada Jackson, 25, and Geneva Powell, 33.

City Policeman J. R. Faircloth, who tracked down the alleged thief, said the Powell woman may not have been a participant in the robbery but that she had been in the party during the course of the day last Tuesday when Hill was "taken" for his tobacco money. She was placed under bond as a material witness.

The Faircloth sleuthing story started Tuesday when the policeman noticed that Hill was either sick or drinking. He placed the aged Shalotte man in jail for his own protection and released him Wednesday.

The officer began to hear rumors that a Negro woman was attempting to cash a battered $100 bill. Unsuccessful in two tries, she was reported to have given the bill to one of her confederates who got it changed. The woman was identified as Nevada Jackson who claimed that she was given the $100 bill by mistake for "shacking up" with a man. She inferred that the man thought he was giving her a $10 bill.

Policeman Faircloth went to Shalotte and obtained an admission from Hill that he had been rolled and the arrest of the quartet followed. The officer said Goss, Flemings and the Jackson woman admitted taking the money from Hill.

RETURN FROM TOUR

Miss Avis Evans and Florine Evans of Ash recently visited Mrs. Myrtle H. Evans and Miss Lillian Watts at Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, where Miss Watts joined them for a trip throughout western North Carolina and eastern Tennessee. They reported that Black Bear Inn, West Jefferson, is excellent for delicious home-cooked food. The handcraft in the Blue Ridge Mountains of oxen and covered wagons, hooked mats and pine needle work baskets is organized on a non-profit basis.

Flames Destroy Home In County

One Of Three Week-End Fires In Lower Brunswick Destroyed Home Of Mr. And Mrs. Dayton McLamb

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Dayton McLamb at Hickmans Crossroads was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. None of the contents were saved. According to information, the fire resulted from an explosion of an oil stove in the kitchen of the home, which was a 5-room bungalow that was only about two years old. Flames spread quickly, and it was impossible to do anything about removing furniture and personal belongings.

Mrs. McLamb was covered with smoke and soot as a result of the explosion, but was uninjured.

Two other fires in that section of the county during the week-end resulted in the loss of two valuable tobacco barns. One was a new structure on the farm of Johnnie Bell Smith, which went up in flames Friday. The other was a tobacco barn on the farm of L. C. Bland near Longwood which burned Saturday.

JONES TO PREACH

Reuben Jones, evangelist who has gained a wide following throughout this section of North Carolina, will conduct a meeting at Whiteville beginning Thursday evening. Members of all denominations are invited to attend.

RECEIVES DEGREE

Harold F. Aldridge, son of Mrs. Mammie Aldridge and the late Harry Aldridge of Southport, received his bachelor of science degree from Wake Forest College with the graduating class at the summer session during the past week-end.

JUNIOR DAIRY SHOW

Brunswick county has been asked by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce to show some dairy calves in a show to be held early in October. 4-H Club boys and girls and FFA boys will show 4 to 6 animals says A. S. Knowles, county agent.

SUFFERS BURNS

Mrs. Dora Grainger sustained painful cuts and burns Monday afternoon when a jar of beans on which she was tightening the top exploded. She was brought to Doherty Memorial Hospital for treatment.
