

Baptists Meeting Today At Chapel Hill In Shallotte

First Day Session Of Brunswick Baptist Association Underway At Shallotte Church; Meeting Tomorrow At Mill Creek

REPORTS MADE ON WORK DURING YEAR

Meetings Being Attended By Outstanding Church Officials For North Carolina And Other Leaders

The twenty-seven Baptist churches comprising the Brunswick Baptist Association are meeting today and tomorrow to review their work during the past year, to listen to reports from leaders and representatives of the various institutions supported by the Baptist of North Carolina, and to formulate objectives for the coming year.

Preliminary reports indicate that the churches of the Association have made commendable advances during the past year in all phases of their work. Several churches have made physical improvements to their plants and others are planning to enlarge or build in the near future. A year ago the churches were short of pastors, but during the past year several new pastors have assumed work in Brunswick County and practically all of the churches now have a pastor.

The first day's session features reports by various leaders in Brunswick County, and representatives from the Baptist Hospital, the Baptist State Convention and the Baptist Colleges of North Carolina. Rev. Earle Bradley is representing the Baptist State Convention at this session of the Association, and Dr. W. K. McGee is representing the hospital. Rev. R. K. Redwine will bring a report of the work of the Baptist Assemblies at the meeting today in Chapel Hill Church.

The second day's meeting will be at Mill Creek Church Thursday, and will feature reports on the work of the orphanage, the W. M. S. report and the reports of the Associational officers. Rev. B. E. Morris, pastor of the Grey-stone Baptist Church, Durham, and chairman of the Committee on Evangelism of the Baptist State Convention, will speak at Mill Creek on the evangelistic campaign to be undertaken by all Baptist churches East of the Mississippi River in the spring of 1951.

Thursday night there will be a meeting of the Youth Association at Chapel Hill Church. This meeting begins with a picnic supper at six-thirty, and following the

Brunswick 4-H Boys Make Good Showing

Five Boys From This County Entered Calves At Junior Dairy Cattle Show In Wilmington Last Week And All Did Well

SOUTHPORT BOY GETS BLUE RIBBON

Four Others Win Red Ribbons With Their Animals And Marvin Bennett Placed Third As Best Herdsman

Five Brunswick 4-H Club boys won their share of honors at the first Southeastern Junior Dairy Show held in Wilmington last week reports County Agent A. S. Knowles. The boys entered their calves in the grade class as they did not have registered calves old enough to be eligible.

This is the first such show that any of the boys had taken part in. The show was planned only a few weeks ago and in view of the time the boys have been working with their calves in fitting them for the show, they have done a remarkable job, according to County Agent Knowles.

Marvin Bennett, son of R. B. Bennett of near Thomasboro, won third place in herdsmanship out of the eighty-five boys and girls taking part in the show. The boys winning first and second place were from Cumberland County and they had taken part at three shows this year before the one in Wilmington. This award was made for keeping the calf stall clean, the calf fed and watered and in general good management practices while at the show. Marvin's calf was the first to arrive at the show.

The calves shown by the Brunswick 4-H boys compared very favorably to the better calves shown in their class. David Swain of Southport, had his calf placed in the blue ribbon group composed of four calves and won $12.00. Bobby Swain and Joe Price of Southport, Marvin Bennett of Shallotte 4-H Club, and Donald Secrest of Bolivia 4-H Club all had their calves placed in the Red ribbon group and won $10.00 each. In all the boys won $57.00 in prizes, but even more important was the experience and information attained.

Most of these Brunswick boys

Thirty Thousand Attend Big Yam Event In Tabor

Town Thronged With Visitors During Three Days Of Third Annual Carolinas Yam Festival Last Week

MISS ALIECE HILL IS CROWNED YAM QUEEN

Chairman A. C. Edwards Of Yam Festival Committee Is Praised For Outstanding Job During Program

TABOR CITY, Oct. 16—The third annual Carolinas Yam Festival, most successful in the history of Tabor City's special promotions, closed Saturday night after an estimated 30,000 people had thronged the sweet potato capital for three days.

Spokesmen for the Tabor City Merchants Association said today that the event had proved so outstandingly excellent that plans would be developed almost immediately for another festival next year.

The festival got underway with an exciting program Thursday when the exhibit hall was opened, a parade was staged, and Representative F. Ertel Carlyle spoke to a large crowd on the plaza here.

Miss Aliiece Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hill of Boardman, was crowned Yam Queen of 1950 at the beauty pageant here Thursday night. The 17-year-old Evergreen High School Junior was chosen from more than 25 candidates in one of the greatest displays of pulchritude ever witnessed here.

Miss Hill, winner of the Columbus County Dress Revue several months ago, won out over Miss Elsie Lewis, 20, of Fairmont who took second place. The Yam Queen was presented prizes valued at several hundred dollars.

The runner-up, a Fairmont secretary, received a number of prizes, including a Hamilton wrist watch.

Contests of various kinds were held during the three days of the festival. The winners will be announced this week as soon as a complete list is compiled.

The public relations dinner Thursday night, bringing together representatives of the North Carolina Extension Service, newspaper men, representatives of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, and numerous other dignitaries was one of the highlights of the festival program.

A football game, dances, and music by the Carolina Jubilee Boys of Mullins were among the

Contractor Will Construct Span

Salisbury Man Reports That Delay In Connection With Walden Creek Bridge Has Been Caused By Highway Order

The contractor who bid on the Walden Creek bridge project hasn't skipped his contract.

J. Ray Wilson of Salisbury reported last week that he plans to start work on the bridge, and two other jobs tied with it in the same contract, the week after next.

Some Southport residents had expressed fear that Contractor Wilson had given up the contract because he could not build the bridge for the price quoted in his bid.

The paving contractor finished his work on N. C. 130, the road on which the Walden Creek bridge is located, about two months ago. (Continued on page five)

Gymnasium Bids Over Estimates

Bids opened for construction of two gymnasiums last week by the Brunswick County Board of Education revealed the fact that the cost will be about $13,000.00 each above the amount available. There was an increase of about $4,000.00 each above bids received several months ago. Bid totals for each gym amounted to about $38,000.00.

With only $49,000.00 available for construction of gymnasium buildings at Waccamaw and at Southport, the board met here Monday and decided to divide this amount and make it available for use for gymnasium construction at each school. This leaves the option of erecting a frame structure, or of patrons of the community supplementing the funds to the point where a gymnasium of masonry may be built.

Not Exactly News

Jerry Ball appeared on a program in Wilmington Thursday night, and used the trip as an excuse to slip off down here to Southport for a fishing trip with James Arnold. They had no luck, but that didn't faze the petroleum publicist. He wants to come back early in November, taking off a full week from his labors "in order to be here on some of those 'good' days you folks are always telling me about."

Jerry told us that on the previous Sunday night he was in New York and appeared on the "Stop The Music" radio show. They asked him a question-duck soup for this guy who spends about one-half his time proving that he not only can identify tunes, but can play them. He won an attractive piece of furniture as his prize.

New Moon tides on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week were only fair for marsh hen hunting, and so most of the hunters will have to wait until the next full moon for their first chance to go gaming for the marsh birds. Those who study the water say that there may be no suitable tides until the new moon in November.

Farm Machinery Demonstration Is Set For County

Demonstration Of Latest Equipment And Manner In Which They Fit Into Farm Program Will Be Demonstrated Wednesday

The Brunswick County USDA Council is sponsoring a farm machinery demonstration at the Elmore Willetts farm 2 miles from Bell Swamp on highway No. 303 on Wednesday, October 25, according to County Agent A. S. Knowles.

Six farm implement dealers will put on the demonstration beginning at 10 a. m. and lasting until 3 p. m. They will use the various pieces of equipment necessary in preparing land and seeding a pasture.

The various agricultural workers have been making plans with Elmore and Joseph Willetts for several weeks on the proposed demonstration. Each implement dealer will be given an opportunity to show how his equipment fits into the pasture program. Some of the equipment that will be used includes tractor, bottom plows, bush and bog disk, gang disk and field cultivator for pulling in new ground. Other equipment will include section harrow, fertilizer and lime spreader, cultipacker and seeder and ditcher.

Among the feature equipment will be the field cultivator for pulling stumps and the cultipacker to be used in proper seeding of grass and raking part in the demonstration are S. L. Fuller, the Case tractor dealer of Whiteville; Dink Huggins, dealer of Allis Chalmers of Chadbourne, Cape Fear Motor Sales, the Ford dealer, Marks Machinery Co., the International dealer, R. F. Hall, John Deere, dealer, and J. P. Newton, the Massey-Harris dealer all of Wilmington.

Harmony Reigns At Party Rally In Whiteville

National Committeeman Jonathan Daniels Pledges His Support To Willis Smith In November Election

THOMPSON WELCOMES LEADERS TO MEETING

Governor Scott Advocates Approval Of Amendment To Provide Better Pay For State Legislators

Democrats of the Seventh Congressional District held the greatest "love feast" in the history of district politics at the Court House here Friday as they came together as one big happy family determined to roll over their traditional Republican foe with unprecedented majorities in the election November 7.

Governor W. Kerr Scott, Senator Frank Graham, Jonathan Daniels, Senator-nominee Willis Smith, Representative F. Ertel Carlyle and other party spokesmen may have been on different sides of the various political fences in the primaries, but they were in accord Friday on the theme that the Democratic party is the party of the people and that they must march together against a common enemy—the GOP.

From National Committeeman Jonathan Daniels came a pledge of support for Willis Smith and a declaration that "the frontier of freedom is the community."

Governor Scott unleashed the full force of his dynamic personality in support of his "Go Forward" program and sounded one new note as he declared that "the time has come to harness the Cape Fear River and put it to work for the people of this area."

Speaking of the good roads program, he said half of it would be completed by January 1 next year, and added, amidst a burst of applause, that "the State budget is balanced."

A cheering note for teachers was struck when Scott said "teachers will get the checks in December which they ought to have had last school term."

The Governor said he had talked with Representative Carlyle regarding Congressional support for controlling the flood waters of the Cape Fear and that Carlyle had pledged his backing. Scott went a step farther, however, and indicated his interest in a power project on the river.
