far off. We play our first game December 3 with Topsail, there. Practice hasn't started yet, but we are expecting it to in about two weeks.

The two health classes are meeting in the gym. Reason: We have eight high school teachers trying to use six class rooms. We could sure use some class rooms.

The girls of Mrs. McNeil's sixth grade have divided themselves into two groups to play softball. Yvonne Lewis and Lillie Jane Burnett are the captains.

Mrs. Toomer's sixth grade should be commended for the fine job they did during Fire Prevention Week. They won the Junior Fire Marshall Banner, therefore, we know they did a fine job.

We would like very much to welcome our new 7th grade teacher, Mrs. Ballew. She also teaches Spanish I and II in high school. Mrs. Ballew, we hope you enjoy this year at Bolivia with us.

The 7th grade was split this week into two classes, 23 remaining with Mrs. Sherrill and 21 going to Mrs. Ballew. Mr. McClure teaches Mrs. Ballew's class while she teaches Spanish I and II.

Don Cyphars has returned to our eighth grade after a year's visit to England with his family where his father was on duty with the armed forces. We are very happy to have him back and looking forward to his telling us all about his trip.

Mrs. Williamson's second graders made some very happy looking jack-o-lanterns, using finger painting.

We hope that as many fans as possible will attend.

Well, "Hazel" did us very little damage (much to be thankful for). One window was broken in Mrs. Merritt's first grade room and the sign that the Senior Class of '49 left in front of the school house was blown completely down.

No report cards went out to the high school this six-weeks because of the revised schedule. Next six-weeks they will be graded double. Reports for grades one through eight went out Monday.

High Times

By Carol Stanley and Jeannine Kincaide

Thursday night we had a football game at Elizabethtown. Our team just couldn't seem to get into the swing of things and the final score was 44 to 0, with ETown holding the upper hand.

Everyone was very sleepy Friday morning after the game and we don't believe they studied very much, either.

The juniors received their play books this week and have begun practice. Members of the cast are: Dr. John Ashley, a small town doctor, Jimmy Harper; Harriet, his wife, Carol Stanley; Claire, their daughter, Betty McGlamery; Richie, their son, Lee Cashwell; Laurie, their niece, Jean Thompson; Tony Mitchell, a neighbor, Charlie Splawn; Owen Forbes, a medical student, Leslie Garner; Susanne, Richie's girl, Butch Harrelson; Crazy Mike, a mystery, Claude Gore; Mrs. Duffy, the cook, Brookie Newton. They believe their play is going to very good. The name of it is "Little Miss Somebody".

Paul Cochran debunked the talk about a painless dentist by whom he was once treated. "He's not painless at all," said Paul, "He put his finger in my mouth and I bit it, and he yelled just like anybody else."

Seen Around: Lorraine White feeding her apple to a wasp . . . Neil Lewis, trying to find somebody to chew his gum for him. He just can't stand to see it go to waste . . . Woodrow Piney doing a good job at straightening the encyclopedias in the library for Mrs. Lackey . . . Jimmy Harper singing for the literature class . . . Claudia Webb with a charley horse . . . Everybody wondering why Teresa was so hysterical last Thursday . . . Leon Fullwood arranging the books in the library upside down . . . Butch Harrelson and Button Cashwell having a race in typing . . . Claude Gore working hard in the annual . . . Jackie Hewett showing off her new pocket book. She said she spent all her money to buy it and now she doesn't have any to go in it . . . Mr. Sanders keeping his car motor running. . . Helen Mallison with the silly giggles . . . Margie Hewett fashioning her new skirt.
