Two Northwest Stills Captured

Another couple of Northwest township stills fell under the axe this past week. Sheriff Elbert Gray, Deputy Leon Galloway, Deputies Pike and Perry and Special Deputy Thomas raided and captured a 150-gallon submarine type still. With this outfit they also got 3700 gallons of mash and destroyed it.

Following up on this same raid they located and destroyed another 100-gallon submarine type still and 400-gallons of mash.

John Sikes Resigns As Editor Of Star

WILMINGTON — John Sikes, who has been managing editor of the Wilmington Star and the Sunday Star-News for the past three years, has resigned to become editor and publisher of The Field in Conway, S. C.

Sikes' resignation became effective Sunday and he assumed his new duties Monday, May 2.

The Field, published twice weekly, is a publication of the Atlantic Publishing Co., owned by Horace Carter, Tabor City, and Mark Garner, Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Sikes, a veteran newspaperman, will be in charge of the full operation of The Field. He was former editor and publisher of the Northwestern Press, North Wilkesboro, and the Edenton Daily News.

NEW DEVELOPMENT

by the new company it is understood that another organization is planning an airport a little further west on the same tract. It is said that this field will have a runway 500-feet wide and 2,500-feet in length. Although part of this landing area is very fertile and capable of developing a good sod runway in time, it is planned for the runway will have an asphalt surfacing for all-weather use.

Both the new sub-division area for residential purposes and the proposed airport will add to the present interest in development of Long Beach.

Meanwhile it should not be forgotten that the developed beach strand area is plugging ahead with the rebuilding of old homes and building of new ones.

such ports as Cocoa Beach, Fla., Savannah, Ga., Charleston, S. C., Wilmington and Morehead City in North Carolina.

This gives the terminals at Southport an extremely high rating in Army matters. A report made several months ago indicates that the position here may eventually get a higher rating through other branches of the service using SPAALT.

GOOD PROGRESS

usually, he knew in advance what it would do. Nevertheless, he has spent two weeks here checking on everything under actual working conditions.

The Georgia Iron Works Company builds a large number of these small vessels and they have been found satisfactory under all conditions, except on rock ground. With no rocks here the dredge should be able to execute a lot of badly needed work at the beach and also here around Southport.

With 1500-feet of piping, the dredge is able to move its disposal for quite a distance. This may result in the elimination of a lot of sandy places on the beach by pumping earth over the sand from Davis Creek. This will also serve the good purpose of deepening the creek and creating facilities for boats.

The machine will dig to a depth of 12-feet.
