William Beaman Sellers Retires From Duty With U. S. Army Engineers After 40 Years Service

SHALLOTTE-William Beaman Sellers, steam and diesel engineer, retired April 30 after 40 years of continuous service with the Wilmington District of the Corps of Engineers.

Beaman, as friends and acquaintances know him, steps down to a well deserved rest with the distinction of being the oldest employee of the District in point of years among 450-odd fellow workers. Otherwise, no one would take him for the 60 that he is.
