Continuing where we stopped last week, with suggestions concerning suitable house plants, we add these to the list: geraniums and Martha Washington geranium, ferns ficus-elastica (rubber plant), elastica variegata (variegated rubber plant), pandurata (fiddle-leaf fig), pumila (climbing fig), sansevieria-hahnii (Hahn's devil tongue), laurenti and zeylanica (snake plant).

This is not a complete list, as many of you will know, but it is a rather good one from which to choose.

This is not a good time to plan anything, with the temperatures very high, but better days are ahead for our enjoyment. So take a seat in the shade, with your favorite cold drink and make notes with me.

From my vantage point I can see three bad spots in the lawn. These must be given attention and needs added organic matter, aeration and re-seeding.

Some of the shrubs, Burfordi holly, flowering quince, ligustrum
