Cows Consume Great Volumes

"Each year the stomach of a 1000 lb. cow giving 7,500 lbs. of milk will have to handle the equivalent of about 6 tons of No. 1 alfalfa hay", said A. S. Knowles. "In terms of slage, this would be 15 to 18 tons. Of course, no one feeds all hay or slage, but this gives some idea of the amount of fuel needed regardless of the form. When thinking on an individual cow basis, we must remember that many of our cows weigh over 1000 lbs. and are giving much more than 7500 lbs. of milk, so there is a bigger fire burning in a bigger furnace. The beef cow needs fuel too. "In stoking this cow's furnace, roughages are still regarded as the cheapest single source of fuel. We always have the problem of producing better roughage as cheaply as possible," said the County Agricultural Agent. "Now is the time to make preparations for seeding permanent pastures. First thing, take a soil sample to determine the amount of lime to use and the amount of fertilizer needed," he concluded.
