 closets, cisterns, rain barrels, sagging roof gutters, and similar containers. Ponds can be drained, stocked with fish or oiled regularly. Ditches can be kept open and drained, thus eliminating surface water for the eggs to hatch. Screens on the house, kept in good repair are essential to help reduce the number of mosquito bites. "Remember, most mosquitoes must have a blood meal before they can lay their eggs," the health official said. "You can help eliminate mosquitoes around your home by cleaning up, draining, screening and spraying your own property."

CONFUSION OVER

 to be certified from one township, even though only one person would be eligible for election from that township.

The question of restricting nominees to the high man in each township was suggested, but was immediately thrown out as being unworkable, since this would automatically preclude the possibility for a second primary for those candidates. The possibility also would exist that the second candidate in one precinct might have more votes than the high man in another precinct.

These perplexities are not confined to the Democrats, for the Republicans have a primary contest for commissioner in more than one township.

Election board members are due back here Thursday, at which time they will meet with registrars and judges to instruct them in the performance of their duties in connection with the forthcoming primary. The matter of what to do about the five-man board candidates also is due for another round of discussion.

 joined National Geographic the same year he left the Navy. Early in his career, he wrote a handbook for motion-picture cameramen.

Mr. Rideout fondly recalls when Dr. Melville Bell Grosvenor, now president and editor of the Society, was a young midshipman at Annapolis. As a former Navy man himself, Mr. Rideout dubbed Melville Grosvenor "Skipper"—an informal title still used occasionally by old colleagues.

The executive officers and staff members of the Society honored Mr. Rideout at a reception on April 13 in the Society's Explorers Hall. Among the messages from well-wishers was a letter from Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr., (D-N. C.) welcoming Mr. Rideout to North Carolina.

From Southport, Mr. Rideout will keep in close touch with his long-time home, Alexandria, Virginia, the historic town on the Potomac. He is a member of the Alexandria Association for the Preservation of Antiquities, an organization that has helped to preserve the city's historical monuments.

One of his sons, Prentiss Rideout, is an insurance representative in Alexandria. The other, Joseph M. Rideout III, is a Naval officer on shore duty at Moline, Illinois.
