Terry Sanford Speaks Before Large Audience

Democratic Nominee For Governor Speaks Of Plans To Keep North Carolina Progressive

Terry Sanford, Democratic nominee for Governor, rode into Brunswick county Monday night at the head of what he described as "the largest motorcade I have been in during my entire campaign" and was accorded an enthusiastic welcome by a crowd of more than 500 persons at Shalotte High School.

The meeting was opened by E. J. Prevatte, chairman of the Brunswick County Democratic executive Committee, who introduced the Democratic candidates for county offices. S. B. Frink, candidate for the House of Representatives, made a few brief remarks.

Prevatte then presented Ernest E. Parker, who introduced Hector McGeechey, Jr., of Fayetteville, Democratic nominee for the State Senate from the 10th district. He in turn introduced Terry Sanford.

The Democratic standard-bearer started off speaking from a prepared ext, but he soon abandoned this material and spoke to his Brunswick county audience about the things they wanted to hear.

One of these expressed a concern for the inlet situation, when he recalled that while serving in the State Senate he had introduced a bill which would allow unclaimed tax refund money to be used to finance dredging and maintenance operations. Orell Williamson, serving at the time in the House of Representatives, had introduced a campaign bill. At another point Sanford drew spontaneous applause when he said "If you elect me to serve as your governor, don't send a Republican to Raleigh; send Bunn Frink to the House of Representatives, because I need his help."

With regard to the road situation, a subject in which the Brunswick county people have shown great interest, Sanford promised that he will get road matters back closer to the people, especially secondary road matters. He said that it ought to be possible to attend to these without having to make a trip to Raleigh. Sanford once more dwelt at length upon the school situation, saying that North Carolina has

Southport Man Returns

E. C. Blake was back home Thursday from a trip he would never forget.

The Southport merchant had spent the past 10 days on a whirlwind tour of points of interest in England, France and Spain as guest of Hotpoint. The trip had been made possible through an unusual sales record of these appliances at Blake Builders Supply.

The Hotpoint tour had taken off from New York on October 17, and the jet airliner which took the men abroad landed first at London. After sightseeing tours about the English capitol city, the party flew across the channel to Paris, where their stay was prolonged when bad weather closed in the air fields. Once they were able to take off, their next destination was Spain, where they visited the cities of Seville and Madrid. They also had a side trip to Tangiers, North Africa.

Following this interlude, the party returned to Paris, from whence they took off for their return flight across the Atlantic and to their homes.

The Southport man purchased a camera especially for this trip and took 35-mm color slides at all points of interest. Just to be on the safe side, he purchased a few commercial slides from time to time, so that he will be able to show results of his trip as soon as he gets his slides back.

The best black and white photo he came up with was one in which he is shown being swarmed by a flock of beautiful white pigeons in the plaza in the business district of Seville.

Bishop said he expects the power demand to double in the next five years, that membership of 12,700 is expected by 1970. He said new facilities will be needed to meet these demands.

Among those presented on the station were Avery Thompson, a director of the state REA; Harry Mintz of Shalotte, a former state REA director; Congressman Alton Lennon, and GOP candidate for Congress, Joel Clifton.

Gwyn B. Price, state REA chairman, introduced Dr. James. James talked about the changing world in which we are living and said that people must be willing to modify their ideas so everyone can get a fair share of goods, services and needs.

For Next Tuesday—

County Voters Ready

Special Vote Being Held Tuesday On Industrial Development Commission For Brunswick, With Tax Authorization Needed

Brunswick county voters will have an opportunity next Tuesday to vote on a special proposal, the establishment of a Brunswick County Industrial Development Commission.

The proposed carries with it the provision that the board of commissioners shall levy a tax not to exceed 10-cents per hundred dollar valuation, to finance the activities of the commission in the campaign to bring in new industry and to advertise and publicize existing natural advantages of Brunswick county.

The proposal has drawn a wide berth from candidates of both parties. Neither side has made a political issue of it, but no candidate nor any leading official of either party has come out endorsing the plan.

It is based upon a special act passed at the session of the Legislature, giving the citizens of Brunswick an opportunity to vote on this proposal. Similar action has been taken in other counties, including Bladen and Robeson, where it has been approved by the voters this year.

Only one county in North Carolina which has voted on a similar proposal has voted it down. Those who favor the measure were encouraged by the fact

Unusual Amount Of Interest Being Shown In State And National Races By Brunswick County Voters

This is one election where the chief interest in Brunswick county has been diverted from the local ticket to the State and National races, and the largest turnout in history is expected Tuesday.

This situation has been brought about not only because of the extensive use that has been made of television, but because both parties have brought in some of their best talent in an effort to influence the voters.

For instance, this is the first time in memory that both candidates for governor have spoken in Brunswick in the general election campaign, and both Robert L. Gavin and Terry Sanford have been here within the past 10-days. In addition, Senator Sam J. Ervin has spoken at a Democratic rally and William E. Cobb, chairman of the Republican State Committee has spoken for his party.

On the local ticket S. Bunn Frink will be seeking election for his first term as a member of the House of Representatives after having served for four terms in the State Senate. His opponent is Cleyon Evans, Shalotte businessman and chairman to the Brunswick County Republican Committee.

Earl Bellamy, now serving his third term as Judge of Recorder's court, will be opposed for this office by Walter Wilson, Waccamaw township merchant and farmer.

Durwood Clark, member of the present board of county commissioners, is the Democratic nominee for Register of Deeds. He is a farmer and businessman from
