Brunswick Offers Site For Battleship

Local Representatives Will Appear Before N. C. Battleship Advisory Committee To Make Offer

Southport citizens, acting through the Southport Development Corporation, are planning to offer two free sites to be considered by the North Carolina Battleship Advisory Committee as a location for the permanent berth for the Battleship North Carolina.

Last week Governor Terry Sanford asked members of the committee which had been appointed to study the offer to visit the site of the Battleship Texas at Houston.

Governor Sanford has stated that he considers the first two important steps to be a decision as to where the Battleship North Carolina will be permanently berthed; and how to raise the necessary funds to bring her to this State and install her in a landlocked berth without having to resort to use of tax money.

It has been estimated that it will cost about $250,000 to do this, but once the ship is in place, there is good reason to believe that it actually will be a profitable venture. That at least has been the experience of the Battleship Texas.

Bowman said this week that he is expecting to be called to a meeting of the committee within a few days.

Representative In Raleigh For Session

S. Bunn Frink, Southport Attorney, Serving Fifth Term In Legislature, First In House

S. Bunn Frink is in Raleigh today for the opening session of the North Carolina General Assembly, and although he is a veteran legislator he is a freshman member of the House of Representatives.

That comes from the fact that although he has served on four previous occasions as a member of that body, his previous service has been in the State Senate.

Frink appeared with Ben McDonald on television Saturday night and said that one reason he wanted to go to Raleigh this year is to see why some move has not been made to spend the $500,000 which was made available for use by the State Ports Authority during last session.

Frink succeeds James C. Bowman, another Southport attorney, as representative from Brunswick County. Bowman served during the 1957 and 1959 sessions. Frink was a member of the

S. BUNN FRINK

State Senate in 1959, but since Brunswick was not entitled to a State Senator this year under the rotation plan, he decided to become a candidate after Bowman announced that he would not seek reelection.

Gives Advice To Newly Eligible

Social Security Representative Gives Hints As To How To Speed Processing Claims

By Doris H. Moss (Field Representative, Social Security Administration)

The Wilmington, District Social Security benefits because of the 1960 Social Security Amendments.

To speed the payment of your first retirement check, bring the necessary proofs with you to the first time you come in to file a claim for benefits.

Any social security office can furnish application forms and assist you in the completion of your claim. However, it is a good idea to know something about what information and proofs you will be asked to furnish. A telephone call to your social security office to find out what proofs are needed will solve the problems in most cases.

When you apply for payments on your own account, you will need proof of your age and the amount of earnings for last year. The best evidence of age is a birth certificate issued shortly after birth, but if you do not have a birth certificate, you can prove your age in a number of other ways. A baptismal record is almost as good as a birth certificate. Marriage certificates, birth records in a family Bible, World War I discharges, voting records, old insurance policies, and other old documents may also be acceptable. Usually the Social Security Office will be able to suggest some document that will be reasonably easy to get.

To furnish proof of your earnings, you can use your 1960 Form W-2 (withholding statement given by your employer) if you worked for wages. If you are self-employed, bring a copy of your 1960 income tax return including the self-employment schedule and some evidence that the return was filed, such as a cancelled check.

TIME and TIDE

There was a snow scene on the front page of The Pilot for February 12, 1936, as Southport residents enjoyed one of the infrequent visits of that evidence of winter weather. A group of officers from the 321st Infantry under the late Col. Edgar H. Bain, had planned a 3-day encampment at Fort Caswell.

The forest warden was urging landowners to take advantage of the recent wet spell to do controlled burning of woodlands; the local constabulary had cracked down upon pinball machines; and Chevrolet advertised its 1936 models for $495, and up. (P.S. We will be fair enough to add that this was an f.o.b. quotation on a strip-down job.)

The front page photo for February 12, 1941, showed a couple of farm wives getting the water pot boiling in preparation for a hog-killing. W.P.A. forces were straightening dangerous curves in highway No. 74-76 at Maco; and Representative J. W. Ruark of Brunswick county was co-sponsor of a bill in the State Legislature which would raise the pay of State Highway employees.

Johnnie Simmons had won his opening bout in the Wilmington Golden Gloves Tournament; the Kings Daughters were getting ready to observe the anniversary of their organization; and both Bolivia High School basketball teams were leading the standings in Brunswick county pre-tournament play, each with a perfect 4-0 record.

Back in the thirties the Comstock was a dredge in the service of the U.S. Army Engineers, and not only did she do a lot of
