Sunday Service At Saint Phillips Attracts Throng

First Commemorative Service Is Held With Guest Speaker Dr. E. Lawrence Lee

The use of Old St. Phillips Episcopal Church at Brunswick Town for two services Sunday was one of the highlights of the Fourteenth Annual Azalea Festival and brought about the active participation of many Brunswick County citizens.

Chief among them was the Rev. Thomas C. Clarkson, rector of St. Phillips Episcopal Church in Southport, who conceived the idea for this observance several months ago and set about the task of organizing the program.

Participating on the program was the man who started the excavation of the ruins of Brunswick Town three years ago; the man who now is in charge of the project, a leading contemporary historian and a band and chorus from Camp Lejeune.

There was an early morning service at which Holy Communion was celebrated at the church for the first time in more than 100 years. The linen for the communion service, sent over to this country more than two centuries ago by Queen Anne of England, were used in this service.

For the afternoon program a musical setting was provided by a band and chorus from the Marine Corps, and for a special flag-raising ceremony a color guard dressed in Confederate uniforms participated.

The Rev. Mr. Clarkson presided at the afternoon service. He introduced Louis T. Moore of Wilmington, and the Rev. L. A. Bridges of Wilmington before Stanley South, archaeologist in charge of the Brunswick Town excavation, introduced the speaker.

Dr. E. Lawrence Lee Jr., who began the excavation work at Old Brunswick in 1959, was the principal speaker for the occasion. Dr. Lee explained four primary

TIME and TIDE

Remember Camp Sapon, and remember Capt. Fred B. Leitzsey? Well, on the front page of the Pilot for April 15, 1938, there was an announcement that his relief was Lt. John L. Malone. An appropriation had been made for locating and marking wrecks in the Southport shrimping grounds.

The final link of the Intracoastal Waterway had been completed and ceremonies on the previous Saturday had marked the occasion. Blue mold was posing a threat to Brunswick county tobacco production; Easter had been fittingly observed in Southport, with the editor taking his pen in hand for words of praise concerning local activities of the day.

The front page picture in our issue for April 16, 1941, showed the USE Dredge Comstock at a Philadelphia shipyard where she was being converted into an Army cargo vessel. There had been a holiday invasion of Bald Head Island by students, under the guise of "educational field trips." What they had learned was still in question, but all were high in their praise of this tropical hideaway.

Both Shallotte High School debating teams had emerged victorious in preliminary triangular competition and the members were going to Chapel Hill for the State finals. Members were: Burgwin Hewette and Betty Lancaster, affirmative; Ernest Parker, Jr., and Virginia Russ, negative.

The year was 1946, and there was a political campaign in progress. The Republicans were planning to nominate their ticket in the primary and servicemen's votes were being explained by the

Praises First Efforts Sunday At St. Phillips

President Of The Brunswick County Historical Association Praises Efforts Of The Rev. Thomas C. Clarkson

The Rev. L. A. Bridges, president of the Brunswick County Historical Association, warmly praised the commemorative services held at Old St. Phillips Episcopal Church at Brunswick Town Sunday afternoon.

"I think that the Rev. Thomas C. Clarkson deserves a great deal of credit for a very fine event," he said.

Following is the text of a letter he wrote The Pilot with regard to this special event of the Fourteenth Annual Azalea Festival:

"As President of the Brunswick County Historical Society and as a citizen of the county, I would like to express my sincere appreciation to the Reverend Thomas S. Clarkson for the Commemorative Service held at St. Phillips Church at Old Brunswick Town this past Sunday.

"The Service was a wonderful tribute to this historic site, and I am proud that one of our citizens had the foresight to plan this observance, and to enlist the support of so many people.

"In spite of threatening weather literally hundreds of people attended and expressed deep interest in the Commemorative Service and in the site. This interest vividly points out that our area and county is not wholly dependent on imported tourist attractions to draw tourists into our county.

Important Farm Meeting Planned

Ralph Price, manager of the ASC office at Shallotte announced today that public meetings for the purpose of explaining the details of the "new feed-grain" program have been scheduled for Thursday night at Shallotte and Friday night at Bolivia.

Price says that notices have been mailed to all farmers giving their base acreage and rate of payment. He says that the average payment per acre for the first 20-percent of acreage on each farm is $25.30 and that the average for the second 20-percent will be $30.30 per acre. Price says that prices for individual farms may range from 50-percent to 130-percent of these amounts, depending upon past production records.

Farmers are urged to attend one of these meetings, as this program will affect every man who grows as much as one acre of grain on his farm.

Louis Parrish Receives A Grant-In-Aid For Summer Study At Syracuse University

Louis Parrish, biology and natural science instructor at Centenary College for Women, is an appointee with a grant-in-aid to the National Science Foundation-Atomic Energy Commission Summer Institute at Syracuse University for the summer of 1961. Parrish's selection by the committee for the six-week institute was one of 20 out of 150 candidates.

The institute is designed to expand the scientific background of the participating teachers through instruction in the principles of radiation and its biological effects; give teachers practical laboratory experience in using radiation sources and radiation detectors, including instrument kits which can be used in their teaching; strengthen the capacity of the teachers to motivate able students to consider careers in science.

Parrish will take two courses—radiation biology and introduction to modern physics—for which he will receive seven graduate credits. In addition to the formal instruction and informal discussion groups, he will attend a series of special lectures by visiting scientists and go on field trips to centers of radiation research, including Brookhaven National Laboratory.

As a participant he will receive stipends, tuition allowances, and teaching equipment (a pro

Advisory Committee Meeting Is Scheduled For Friday And Decision Expected To Be Made At That Time

A decision on the matter of a permanent location for the Battleship North Carolina may be reached Friday at Chapel Hill where a meeting of the Battleship Advisory Committee is being held.

This meeting has been called by Chairman Orville Campbell at the request of Governor Terry Sanford, who has expressed the thought that the site selection should be left up to the committee named last fall by Governor Luther H. Hodges before he went out of office.

Campbell said the committee will meet from noon to 1 p. m. to discuss the battleship. A delegation from Wilmington will be heard at 2 p. m., another from Southport at 2:30 p. m. and a group from Morehead City at 3 p. m.

Campbell said the commission will discuss the proposed sites at 3 p. m. and "it is very likely a decision will be reached." Campbell added, however, there is a possibility something might arise to prevent a decision being reached at that time.

Several Southport citizens are making plans to attend this meeting, among them being James C. Bowman, who is a member of the advisory committee. Also planning to attend will be E. B. Tomlinson, Jr., who presented the invitation from Southport citizens to the committee when it met in February at Wilmington. City Manager C. D. Pickersell, who has been active in every promotional phase of this local undertaking, will make the trip to Chapel Hill.

Since the February hearing, Governor Terry Sanford has flown over the site near Southport and

Negro Students Hold Career Day

Union High School Is Scene Of First Event Of This Kind In History Thursday

The first Career Day ever held in Brunswick County for the benefit of students of the consolidated Negro schools was conducted Thursday at Union High School, with juniors and seniors of that school attending, along with seniors from Lincoln and B.C.T.

The principal speaker was Dr. Ray Thompson of the faculty of North Carolina college in Durham, who urged his young listeners to have a respect for work. He urged them to seek an education so that they might learn how to work, but never to be guilty of seeking an education so they would not have to work. He cited several new doors that have been opened to youth today and urged them to prepare themselves so they could fill openings when they became available.

Home & Garden Tour Sunday Is Called Success

Hundreds Of Visitors Were In Southport Sunday And Many Of Them Made Tour

A brisk breeze off the Cape Fear River chilled nearly 200 visitors who came from far and near for the first Home and Garden Tour of Southport Sunday afternoon. Even the skies were ready to weep, but the warmth of the gracious hospitality of the entire community and the colorful blooms of the azaleas nodding gracefully in the gusty winds, baffled the elements.

The initial effort of the Woodbine Garden Club was acclaimed a huge success.

It was with the cooperation of the entire community that Southport earned the title, "City of Hospitality". One visitor remarked "I have attended many Home and Garden Tours, but I have never witnessed such genuine, gracious hospitality extended by everyone with whom I have come in contact. It makes me feel that I must return to Southport in the not too distant future, and you can be sure I shall bring many more with me for your next Home and Garden Tour".

Members of the Junior Garden Club conducted these visitors around the city and drew praise for their efforts. They were ambassadors of good-will, and are in training as future hostesses of forthcoming tours.

Registrations showed visitors from Asheville, Raleigh, Durham, Winston-Salem, Farmville, Lumberton, Whiteville, Elizabethtown, Beaufort, Burgaw, Shallotte, Wilmington, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Virginia, and one person from England. Lady Witherby was accompanied by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy (State Representative from Charlotte). The press was represented by Dotty Cameron and Lawrence Wofford of The News and Observer.
