Protection Is The Theme Of Cancer Drive This Year

Educational Material Is Being Handed Out By Persons Soliciting Funds During Crusade

The three-word imperative, "Guard Your Family", is again the theme of the American Cancer Society Crusade which opened its house-to-house solicitation in Brunswick County on April 15.

For the third successive year, the family theme will be used in conjunction with the life-saving phrase, "Fight Cancer with a Checkup and a Check", it was announced by Bill Smith, crusade chairman.

"The combined slogan sums up the cancer problem and what to do about it," said Smith in discussing plans for the Society's 1961 educational and fund-raising crusade. "Two of three families here and in the country at large will eventually be struck by cancer. Regular health checkups are their best protection against the disease, and checks are the means to support the scientists who are searching for a cancer cure or preventive."

Pointing out that 85,000 Americans die needlessly of cancer each year because they went to their doctors too late, Smith the Society gives top priority in its April Crusade to its educational effort to prevent the tragic loss of life. "The free literature distributed by volunteers in their house-to-house calls," he said, "is designed to stimulate regular health checkups among all adults for early detection of cancer, when most cancers are readily curable."

The fact that more than 1,000,000 Americans now living have been cured of cancer, Smith said, is dramatic proof of the effectiveness of the educational program of the American Cancer Society, the national voluntary organization fighting cancer through research, education and service to cancer patients.

"We need more funds to save more lives today and to support research which will find the cure we all pray for," said Smith. "Remember the slogan—'Guard Your Family. Fight Cancer With A Check!'"

Discussion Concerning A Fence And Additional Equipment For Playground Area Attracts Attention

The Leland P. T. A. held its monthly meeting April 10 with Shelton Rooks presiding in the absence of President James Thompson.

Drainage Meeting Set In Whiteville

There will be a hearing in Whiteville at the court house on the Waccamaw River Drainage project on Thursday, April 27. It will begin at 11 a. m., says A. S. Knowles, Brunswick County Agricultural Agent. Farmers and others having knowledge of the losses that occur on the river watershed should be there to get it in the report.

B&PW Members Aid Scholarship

Shallotte Club Members Participate In Program To Encourage Higher Education

The Shallotte Business and Professional Women's Club is sponsoring various projects to promote career advancement. A scholarship loan fund has been established and will later be available to girls who merit such aid toward their higher education. Another loan fund available is the state-wide Elsie G. Rittick Loan Fund for which the local club can take applications. Information on scholarships offered at each college in all the fifty states was prepared and made available for high school students at "Career Day".

In addition to scholarship information the club's reference list also gives a variety of general information which may be helpful to students and parents who are considering college training. The study of all these colleges reveals the fact that there are many colleges besides the more popular ones, offering quality training at less expense. The listed sixty-five colleges in North Carolina and over 2200 colleges and universities in this country offer uncounted opportunities for all types of training. For most careers the colleges in North Carolina offer adequate training; however, a few types of training are offered only in schools outside this state.

The Career Advancement Committee of the Shallotte BPW club will continue to make available the variety of information on college education and vocational training.

Recommendation Made By Advisory Committee Following Hearing In Chapel Hill Friday

Members of the N. C. Battleship Advisory Committee met in Chapel Hill Friday and voted to recommend that the USS North Carolina be located at a permanent berth in Wilmington.

The next step in connection with the effort to return the famous ship to this state is for Governor Terry Sanford to name a Battleship Commission comprised of 15 persons. This group will be charged with the responsibility of raising funds with which to finance the project and for working out the business and technical details for bringing the ship from Bayonne, N. J. It has been estimated that $250,000 will be required for this purpose, and no tax money may be used to do the job.

The Friday hearing in Chapel Hill was the last in a series of meetings that have been held for the purpose of studying the proposition. Members split into two groups last fall, with one-half going to Houston, Texas, to see how the folks down there had made use of the Battleship Texas and the other half going to Bayonne to see the North Carolina. Upon their return they recommended that the Governor of North Carolina make a request of the Navy Department that the ship not be cut up into scrap and that consideration be given to bringing it to this State for use in the establishment of a permanent historic shrine.

Bunn Frink relative to the distribution of profits from the Shallotte ABC Board. "The newspaper article said that I was asked three times before I would say how I stood on this matter. I was asked three times, by three different people. The first two times I answered that I was opposed to the bill. The third time I never even bothered to answer because I felt like I had already made my positions Continued On Page 4

TIME and TIDE

Three members of the Cape Fear Pilots Association had had a thrilling experience on the Thursday before our issue for April 22, 1936. The water pump on the little pilot boat, the R. R. Stone, had become disabled and the craft had filled with water. The men of the Oak Island Coast Guard station saw the distressed craft and rescued all hands aboard. The late Dr. Roy C. Daniels had been elected president of the Southport Building & Loan Association, succeeding his father, the late J. N. Daniels, in that office.

Dr. Ralph McDonald, candidate for governor, was coming to Southport for a Saturday speech; the thermometer had dropped to a cool 39-degree reading during the previous weekend; and Ira Chadwick had been named the most athlete boy at Shallotte high.

The paving project on the road to Long Beach was nearing completion, or at least it said so in the front page of The Pilot for April 23, 1941. Early truck crops produced in an experimental farming operation on Bald Head Island were harvested and on their way to market.

The late John Erikson had been nominated for a fourth term as Mayor of Southport, young Joel Moore had decided to give up alligator hunting for the season after he had almost grabbed a rattlesnake by mistake; and Mrs. George Cannon of Bolivia was leading the Cancer Crusade for Brunswick county.

A letter from the White House revealed that the name of Mrs. Harry S. Truman had not been placed on the registration books at Orton Plantation by the First Lady, but by some prankster. Continued On Page 4
