Fashion Forecast For Spring

Spring opens with a new feminine fashion image: Soft, pretty, beguiling. The understated "little nothing" dress is gone. In its place is the "something dress," the dress that makes a statement.

Clothes are more elaborate—in basic construction, in detail, in shape. And the shape is no longer based on the straight lines of the rectangle. It moves, it flows, it sways. It clings to the body through bias inserts. It is unmistakably feminine.

These fashion trends for spring, 1962, have been summarized by Women's Wear Daily fashion editors after reviewing manufacturers' spring collections.

Some components of the new shape: Little jackets that float, ripple, flutter, some shaped like a capelet with the sleeves worked in, some true capes, some panels that form capes in the back alone. In the same feeling are backs that blouse or backs that are draped.

Ruffles are a strong softening ingredient, setting up a storm at the hemline (balancing the explosion at the shoulders), climbing up a skirt from hem to waistline or even shoulders. Others trail around in horizontal tiers or extend vertically bordering a jacket or a bodice. And along with the ruffles are godets, low flares, deep flounces.

Plaits are strong. Some hang crisp and straight, breaking open only in motion. Others are diaphanous, set up their whirl at the hint of a breeze or a gesture.

The majority of skirts flare gently, sometimes echoing the flare at the top. Many feature fullness under the control of a wide, soft front panel, many have the fullness set low, reinforced by the ruffles and frills. Skirts are often worked on the bias so the figure is not concealed by a tent of fabric, but the fabric clings, no matter what its width.

Costuming takes many forms, planned to constitute a related whole or to stand on any of its parts, each part with a specific purpose. There are full-length coats that not only complement a dress but can serve as a dress itself. There are overblouses, tunics, the new little fly-aways that provide a dress with its own wrappings, frequently a change of pace.

Fabrics have never been so thin, so drenched with color, so supple. Crepe stars, made for the softness of the hour and lending itself to the gentle flow of fabric, not only in black but in pale colors as well. It is balanced by night with chiffon, in innumerable prints that mingle pale watercolor pastels or deep tones in patterns of the utmost delicacy or boldest strength.

Also featured are the lacy, open woods, often in colors of equal lightness . . . the knits appearing even for evening.

Veazey of Wilmington and the grandson of Mrs. Nellie Dasher, formerly of Southport.

port announces the engagement of her daughter, Ella Mae Gore, to William Wesley Gray, the son of Mrs. Dortha James Gray of Hatteras.

Social Security Changes Listed

Many older people in this area who are still employed do not understand that recent changes in the social security law now make it possible for a considerable number of them to collect some benefits in addition to their earnings.

Unfortunately, a number of older people continue to think that they cannot collect any social security benefits at all if their earnings are over $1,200 for the year. This is not true.

To show how recent amendments to the social security law have increased the amount an older worker can earn and still collect some benefits, the following example is given:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who are both over 65, could upon application become entitled to a combined benefit of $150 monthly, based on Mr. Smith's average earnings under social security of around $3,200 to $3,300 a year.

Up until this year, this couple could not be paid any of their benefits if Mr. Smith's annual earnings amounted to over $2,080.

With the recent change in the law, Mr. Smith could have earnings of $2,500 in 1961 and the couple would have at least $750 in benefits coming to them for the year. If his earnings were $3,000, the couple would get at least $250 of their social security benefits; even if he earned as much as

Be sure to read "Dixie Dynamo," a beautifully illustrated and well done story about North Carolina, its people and resources. You will find it in the February issue of your National Geographic Magazine.

What's new for '62? First the flowers. Chrysanthemums—Flameburst, an early decorative type with red flowers. Knockout—a dwarfish, symmetrical cushion type with double rose pink flowers.

Zinnias—Redman and Old Mexico. Redman is an exceptionally large-flowered type with scarlet flowers. Old Mexico is a compact type with mahogany and gold flowers.

A new variety of Dianthus, Bravo, is a compact dwarf annual with scarlet red single flowers.

Three new gladiolus varieties come from the All-American selections Ben Hur, Thunderbird and Horizon. Ben Hur is a soft rose-pink, Horizon a rosy lavender and Thunderbird, a deep persimmon color.

Two new peach varieties are of interest, Polar and Nuevo. Polar was developed in Minnesota where it is reported to withstand very low temperatures without injury. Someone may wish to try this variety in some of our high mountain country. Neuvo is of considerable interest because of its low chilling requirements (cold hours, below 40 degrees F. required during the winter months to break the rest period). This characteristic is not of two much importance to us in North Carolina but necessary in Florida and similar climates.

Three new everbearing strawberry varieties are Ozark Beauty, Honey Lump and Geneva. Ozark Beauty topped all everbearers in 1961 at Iowa State, yielding 12,665 quarts per acre. Honey Lump originated in Minnesota and is reported to be very hardy and exceptionally sweet. Geneva is an introduction of the N. Y. Fruit Testing Association. We only recommend everbearing sorts for the mountains.

Two new single (May or June) crop types are Dabreak and For-

Tuesday—Hot dogs, chili, chopped onions, cole slaw, baked beans, apple crisp, butter, milk; Wednesday—Vegetable-beef soup, cheese slice, corn bread, butter, one-half orange, cookies, milk.
