AMPHIBIAN—This is a U.S. Army BARC, the largest vessel-vehicle operated by the armed services. It was one of two engaged in the maneuvers conducted on Bald Head Island last week by the Transportation Corps, and spent from Thursday morning until Saturday midnight as a major object of interest on the Southport waterfront.—(Staff Photo bb Allen.)

Halloween Help Goes To UNICEF From This Town

Trick Or Treat Will Have More Serious Meaning In Southport This Halloween

Southport children will devote their Halloween fun to a constructive purpose when they wear the masks of witches and goblins, skeletons and spacemen on Wednesday night, October 31, to erase the more fearful masks of hunger and disease from the faces of millions of the world's needy children whose hope rests with UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund.

The local phase of the nationwide UNICEF Trick or Treat program will be sponsored by Southport P. T. A. The children will go out in groups under the supervision of adults and teenagers. Collection areas have been mapped out, and no doorbell should ring more than once for UNICEF except by mistake.

Children will gather at the Southport School immediately after the costume parade. They will be given their containers and be assigned their block at that time.

Trick or Treaters sharing their fun with less fortunate children in other parts of the world will be officially identified by a sticker and tag showing the silhouette of a mother and child in black on an orange background. Only bearers of this identification are authorized to collect "treats" of coins for UNICEF.

Following the collection, a party will be held at each church for their children.

Last fall, about three million American boys and girls in some 115,000 communities Trick or Treated for UNICEF and raised $2 million.

"We want to have our share in an even more successful program this year," Mrs. Susie Carson said. "For one dollar, UNICEF supplies 17 hungry children with a daily glass of milk for a month. One dollar can also mean the vaccine to protect 100 children from tuberculosis, or the insecticides to protect eight children from malaria for a year."

Scholarship Aid At N. C. State

Talent For Service Is Name Of Scholarships Being Offered For North Carolina Students

In order to aid talented North Carolina students train in any field of study offered at N. C. State College, Talent For Service Scholarships are now being offered by the school, according to Superintendent John Long.

The chief purpose of the financial aid program at the college is to help superior students achieve an education which might be denied them because of insufficient resources.

HOSTESSES—Cheryl Rogers, left, Miss Brunswick County, and Lois Jane Sellers, right, were hostesses at the Boiling Spring Lakes booth last week in the Commercial Building at the N.C. State Fair in Raleigh. Thousands of North Carolinians had an opportunity to learn about Brunswick county in general, and Boiling Spring Lakes in particular, as they visited this attractive display. Both Miss Rogers and Miss Sellers are employed at the business office at Boiling Spring Lakes.—(Staff Photo by Allen.)

Tabor City Is Scene Of REA Annual Meeting

Crowd Estimated At 3,500 Attends Annual Meeting Held In Tabor City On Friday Afternoon

The Brunswick Electric Membership corporation hosted approximately 3,500 persons Friday at Tabor City in its annual meeting.

Those attending heard reports from officials, singing by Ernest Tubbs and his Texas Troubadours and had a chance to visit with friends and neighbors.

One of the highlights of the session was the naming of the annual essay contest winners. First place went to Thomas Gore of Nakina and son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gore. He received a $30 cash prize. Second place went to Patricia Lewis of Bolivia and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lewis of Leland R2. She received a $20 second prize and a $10 cash award for being first in her school. Third place went to John Ganus of Shallotte and son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis F. Ganus. He was awarded a $10 cash award and also a $10 cash award for first place in his school.

Corporation President C. D. Branch of Evergreen reviewed the duties of the board of directors. He pointed out that the board is not salaried and added "Our Brunswick REA is now of age and it must play its part in the power industry of today." He said that the local co-op will meet its obligation in the expanding rural economy.

General Manager E. D. Bishop noted that the local REA began in 1939, "And has shown a steady growth each year, in people served, plant facilities and equity." He said the annual report for 1962 shows no changes.

Bishop reported that during the past year, 550 new service connections were added bringing the total to 11,227. He said crews had approximately 4,000 service and 1,000 trouble calls during the previous year and that during the course of a month some 23,000 pieces of mail is distributed from the business office.

Youth Drowns On Bolton Road On Beach Trip

John Archie Long, III, Dies In Accident On Lonely Green Swamp Road Early Saturday

Tragedy marred a weekend hunting trip by three N. C. State College students when one, a junior from Haw River, died after his 1962 Ford convertible plunged into a canal alongside NC 211 in the Green Swamp, five miles south of Bolton, early Saturday, pinning him underneath it.

John Archie Long, III, 22, drowned when the soft-top of the car collapsed after flipping into the canal with its wheels upward, according to Coroner J. B. Long, Jr. The coroner said no inquest would be held in the accidental drowning death.

Checks on the time of the fatal accident show that it occurred around 12:30-1 a. m., Saturday. Both Coroner Long and State Trooper L. H. Baker estimated the time of accident as approximately 1 o'clock, while a check on the broken clock in the almost demolished vehicle showed it stopped running at 12:29.

Baker said that young Long, traveling alone, was moving at excessive speed when the car went out of control on a curve and plunged into the 18-foot wide

Storm Cuts Army Maneuvers Short

Operation Smith Island Observed By Capt. C. N. Swan, Who Knows Island Better Than Any Other Man

"I saw things on Bald Head Island last week that I never expected to see in this world."

That was the way Capt. Charles Swan, 89-year-old Southport resident, described the U. S. Army Transportation Corps training mission on Smith Island this morning. Capt. Swan, who lived on the island for 30 years while he served in the U. S. Lighthouse Service, together with Mrs. Swan and his son, Reece, who is caretaker of the island property of Frank Sherrill, were civilian observers during the three-day operation.

The maneuvers had been planned to extend through the entire week, but when hurricane advisories started coming in from the Miami Weather Bureau, a decision was made to withdraw the 1,400 troops and the large force of amphibious equipment.

This was carried out Tuesday night, and by daylight Wednesday only one vessel remained. Capt. Swan and his folks came back to the mainland before noon Wednesday. Even though the full force of the hurricane passed well off-shore, Capt. Swan said that the sea had become very rough by Wednesday morning, due to heavy ground swells. The last loading operation was carried out on the river side of the island, he said.

"I wouldn't miss it for anything," Capt. Swan declared emphatically when asked what he thought of the mock invasion. He loved Bald Head Island and knows it better than any living man, and in answer to the question of what effect the maneuver was (Continued On Page 5)

Superior Court In Session Here

Three divorces were granted as Brunswick County Superior court opened its civil term in Southport Monday with Judge Leo Carr presiding.

Richard D. Hancock was granted a divorce from Dora Drew Hancock, Stanley L. Rogers from Sadie Mae Rogers and Dolorise Budkofsky from Harold Budkofsky.

The court is expected to adjourn by the end of the week.

Brunswick Town Topic Of Talks

Archaeologist Stanley South Will Be On Program In Alabama Early Next Month

Brunswick Town will be the subject of two different talks by Archaeologist Stanley A. South at the Third Annual Conference on Historic Site Archaeology which will be held in Moundville, Alabama, on Thursday, November 1.

During the morning session of the conference, South will talk about "Interpreting the Brunswick Town Ruins". "Some Notes on Bricks" will be the title of his afternoon speech.

Archaeologist South was one of the founders of the Conference on Historic Site Archaeology three years ago.

Smith will also present a paper on Brunswick Town at the Eastern States Archaeological Federation meeting in Athens, Georgia, on November 10. This paper will be about the research Smith has been doing in connection with smoking pipes and ceramic types.

King Mackerel Catches Start Following Ella

Off-Shore Trips By Local Charter Boats Indicate Some Of Best Late Fall Fishing In Years

King mackerel catches reached the peak attained prior to last week's threat from Hurricane Ella when the three Idle-On charter boats of the Watts fleet had a combined catch of 124 of these fish Tuesday.

These boats had been chartered by Hunt M. Whitehead of Chatham, Va., and came in with the following results: Capt. Basil Watts had 42, Capt. H. A. Schmidt had 41 and Capt. Hoyle Doshier had 41.

Out the same day with Gene Kelly and party from Kingsport, Tenn., Capt. Fred Fulford reported a catch of 35 king mackerel. There appears to be little doubt that catches of these fish will be good as long as favorable weather holds out. Based on experience of other years, it is even likely that the daily catch of these fish may go even higher before winter weather sets in.

Fishing on the shoals is another matter. Thus far the water has been muddy following the storm, and no good catches of bluefish and Spanish mackerel have been reported. Prior to the storm, even small boats going out (Continued On Page 4)

Boiling Springs Has Big Weekend

Hurricane Ella Misses This Area

Hurricane created a great deal of apprehension among Brunswick county residents on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week—but nothing more.

This big and dangerous tropical storm had appeared at one time to be heading in this direction, but cooling temperatures caused it to veer to the northeast and out to sea, leaving the North Carolina coast unscathed.

Since the storm had stretched over such a wide area, it had been feared that heavy winds, and probably some rain, would result; but there was no cause for alarm. Winds on Thursday reached gale force, and storm warnings were flown by the U. S. Weather Bureau. On Friday and Saturday the weather was calm again.

Democrats Will Hold Meetings

Congressman Alton A. Lennon Will Speak Saturday Night At The Waccamaw School

Congressman Alton Lennon will make the feature talk at a Democratic Speaking at Waccamaw Saturday night at 7:30 and three more party rallies will be held before the general election, according to Chairman Kirby Sullivan of the Democratic Executive Committee.

Other county Democrats and candidates will appear with Congressman Lennon at the Waccamaw rally.

On Thursday night a Democratic speaking will be held at Shallotte Village at D. E. Tripp's place. Leading Brunswick county Democratic will take part in the program, which starts at 7:30.

A Democratic rally will be held at Bolivia high school Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. All the local candidates will be present and will speak.

Following this meeting the Democratic Women's group will meet in a short business session, and the Young Democratic Club will do the same. This will be to dispose of matters peculiar to these two organizations.

John J. Burney, who leaves his post as district solicitor in January, will make the main speech at a rally at Hickman's Crossroads on Saturday night, November 3, at 7:30. All party candidates running in the general election will be present.

TIME and TIDE

Twenty five years ago this week there was a picture of the U.S.S. Blue, a Navy destroyer that recently passed through the Southport harbor enroute to Wilmington. The craft was brought safely into port by local pilot Bill Styron.

Joseph Rourke, a Brunswick native, was named head of the Wilmington Police department; a minor clean-up campaign was started in Southport. A few of the weather beaten houses were receiving a new paint job; the third anniversary of Camp Sapona here in Southport was observed.

Twenty years ago this week a local boy away in service in the Solomon Islands in the South Pacific survived the sinking of the ship on which he was a crew member. The destroyer U.S.S. Little, was sunk, and after spending hours in the water he was rescued by another passing U.S. ship.

A Shallotte boy was on board the aircraft carrier Wasp when the craft was last heard from; a telephone call to board headquarters had made it possible for the local ration board to clean its retreat files.

Fifteen years ago this week, Sheriff John G. White had died suddenly and W. M. Stanaland had been named to fill this office. After a local survey, it was decided that the two things that Southport needed most were a hotel and a yacht basin. Also given was the opinion of a local charter boat captain who thought that the fishon rodeos to be held here in the future would never be a success without these accommodations.

Ten years ago this week fishing for the coming month of November was predicted to be one of the finest ever here, based upon the first fishing reports. Catches of king mackerel in excess of fifty and catches of bluefish over 200 were already being reported. Excluding the possibility of stormy weather, the abundance (Continued On Page 2)
