Tour Of Swine Farms In Area Shows Potential

Expansion Of Hog Growing Being Pushed As Means For Increasing Farm Income In Brunswick

Several farmers interested in swine production made a tour and study of marketing facilities at the two livestock markets in Shallotte and three farms in Bolivia and Winnabow areas last Tuesday, reports A. S. Knowles, acting county extension chairman.

Brunswick County farmers are being asked to more than double the number of hogs to feed out for market during the next 5 years in order to increase the farm income, Knowles said. It was pointed out that good markets prevail in the area, and it is believed that the price of hogs would remain high enough to justify raising more hogs for income purposes.

Farmers on the tour visited Layton Swain's farm near Bolivia where he feeds out 3 to 4 hundred hogs per year. He has a feeding parlor where he gets good feed conversion even in summer. His parlor is equipped with sprinklers to keep hogs cool. At the time of tour, he had about a hundred feeder pigs on corn in field. Swain handles his operation like many others should. He says, "I feed and handle my hogs so that I can get the most out of them for the least amount of feed and labor. The market gives me a premium for feeding out meat-type hogs."

The group visited the J. B. and Alden Potter farm near Winnabow where the owners take pride in raising pigs in a central farrowing house. They can look after the pigs at farrowing time and keep them in a sanitary condition for the first six weeks. They have been weaning about 10 pigs to the litter. They too have a feeding parlor to feed out hogs part of the time. They sell feeders when they think the market will return more income in this manner. They follow a definite breeding program, using some of the best blood line meat-type strains. They have been crossing Poland China on their sows for the past two years. Now they are beginning to cross Duroc on the offspring gilts. This insures big litters of fast growing pigs.

The last visit was at the Joseph and Elmore Willetts farm where they have been specializing in producing and selling quality feeder pigs. They feel they get a premium for producing thrifty pigs that will feed out meat-type.

The next opportunity for farmers to get information and gain knowledge in hog production will be on December 10-14. A meeting will be held each afternoon at 2 p. m., at the Extension Service Building in Supply where a different phase of the program will be discussed. Topics will be (1) Economics of Hog Production (2) Housing (3) Feeding and

Dolphins Defeat Belhaven On Breath-Taking, Last-Minute Touchdown On Long Pass Play

It took a miraculous, last-minute touchdown play to give Southport a 14-7 victory over Belhaven Friday night and the first State championship ever earned in any sport by a Brunswick county team.

The game was played in Washington, more than 150-miles from home, but the stands on one side of the field were filled with Dolphin supporters, who had made the trip to see their favorites make their bid for the State title.

There had been reports that Belhaven was a mighty team, and for the first 47½-minutes of the ball game there was evidence that they were good enough to deadlock the Dolphins at 7-7. But then the magic of Murphy entered upon the scene.

Two pass completions from the Southport quarterback to Rodney Garner, the last one good for 52-yards and a touchdown, broke the tie, and when this same speedy halfback rammed over for the extra point, bedlam broke loose and the Southport delegation was happy.

The first Southport touchdown had come near the close of the first half on another Murphy-Garner pass, and Jerry Spencer had added the extra point for a 7-0 lead at intermission.

That success had been short-lived, however, when Belhaven captured a fumble following the second half kick-off and had scored on a pass from Johnny Cox to Mickey Leigh. The latter plunged for the point, tying the score; and that is the way it remained until the final spine-tling touchdown.

The team traveled to Washington by chartered bus, and another bus load of rooters followed. In addition, there was veritable motorcade in the City of Washington as a crowd estimated at about 400 from here attended the game.

Fire Department Under New Order

After December 1 Calls Outside City Must Be Covered By Insurance Rider Or Cash Bond

Beginning Saturday the Southport Fire Department will not answer any calls from outside the city limits unless the property owners have met the new insurance requirements, according to Harold Aldridge, member of the Board of Aldermen.

Because of the increased cost of equipment and insurance for personnel, the Board of Aldermen voted in September to curtail fire protection outside the city limits unless certain requirements are met. This policy goes into effect on December 1.

Fire protection will be extended only to property owners living outside the city who have a fire truck clause on their insurance policy or who have posted a bond with the city auditor. The protection will also be limited to a five mile radius of the city limits.

Thus, for county property owners with fire insurance living outside the city limits, fire protection will cost $1.50 per year. City residents pay approximately $6 per year in taxes for this same protection.

All names of property owners living outside the city who have

TIME and TIDE

Twenty-five years ago this week local shrimpers were busy with the problem of out-guessing the shrimp. Shrimpers all up and down the North Carolina coast were trying to relocate the large schools presently offshore. Evidence showed that shrimp do migrate a short distance southward, so all of the trawlers were en route to Southport to try to locate the giant schools.

Bruce Etheridge, Director of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, had announced that his department was standing by and willing to render assistance in the construction of the proposed yacht basin here.

Wild turkey hunting was a challenging sport for some of the folks in the county, and some were successful in their hunts for the wildfowl; the Christmas seal drive was under way; it was announced that the jobless of Brunswick county were to get wage benefits in the near future.

Twenty years ago this week almost 11,000 surgical bandages were made by the women of Southport during the month of November. The local Red Cross chapter, consisting of forty-nine women, worked a total of over 600 hours on the bandages for wounded soldiers overseas. The women had been busy on the project for several months.

Chief W. H. Barnett, the commanding officer at Oak Island Coast Guard Station for several years, had been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant; service men were urged to take our life insurance policies on themselves for the welfare of their immediate families; the rationing program for the county was being followed closely for the expected changes resulting in a shortage of certain items.

Fifteen years ago this week several more shrimp trawlers installed ship-to-shore radios to insure against the possibility of being lost at sea. Another advantage of the installations was
