

Annual Flower Show Will Be Held Saturday

Everyone Invited To Enter Exhibits In Show Being Sponsored By Live Oak Garden Club

The Live Oak Garden Club will sponsor a Standard Flower Show Saturday from 3:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. at the Community Building based on the theme of "A June Day", according to Mrs. Roscoe Rogers, chairman.

There will be two divisions, horticulture and artistic arrangements. Entries are open to the public with the exception of No. 9 and No. 12 in the artistic arrangements. Horticultural entries must be grown by the exhibitor. Accessories will be permitted in all classes of artistic arrangements. No artificial, tinted or dyed material will be permitted and arrangements can be no more than 24"x24"x18" in size.

Classes in the division include "Dewdrops," an arrangement in miniature not exceeding five inches; "Daybreak," a composition suggesting dawn using a bird as an accessory; "Green Pastures," a foliage arrangement; "High Noon," an arrangement featuring yellow flowers; "Summer Breeze," a composition suggesting motion; "Leisure Hours," a composition using driftwood with dried material permitted; "Coffee Time," a large or small arrangement for a coffee table; "Drifting Clouds," a hanging arrangement using dried and/or fresh material; "Sunset," an oriental arrangement; and "Full Moon," a buffet table arrangement featuring white flowers.

"All persons who have flowers blooming at this time are encouraged to participate in either or both divisions," Mrs. Rogers said.

All entries must be at the Community Building before 12 noon and removed by 9 p. m. The club will not be responsible for material and containers that are left in the building.

Shallotte Meeting

PLANNING—G. E. Henderson is shown here as he presides over a tourist planning meeting at Shallotte Thursday evening. Plans for an advertising folder, sponsored by Brunswick County Chamber of Commerce were discussed.

Brunswick Will Participate In Area Promotion

G. E. Henderson Of Shallotte Will Head Temporary Committee To Set Up Permanent Organization

G. E. Henderson, Shallotte pharmacist and real estate developer, has agreed to serve as temporary chairman for the Brunswick county committee for travel and industry of the SENCLEND Development Association.

Plans call for a county-wide organization to cooperate with promotion plans aimed at stimulating the tourist and travel business in Brunswick. Chairman Henderson has named an advisory committee to work with him in setting up a permanent organization.

W. K. Dorsey of Wilmington and Glen Tucker of Carolina Beach attended the meeting and stressed the importance of having this county tied in with a program which will include 34 eastern North Carolina counties. They pointed to the many natural attractions in this area and listed some of the benefits which may be expected to result from organization and cooperation with the over-all program.

The group also considered a project now being sponsored by the Brunswick County Chamber of Commerce, the preparation and printing of a color folder and a business directory.

President Phillip Thomas reported on the financial progress made in connection with the project, and pointed out that most of the money raised up to that time had come from the Shallotte area. Mayor E. B. Tomlinson, Jr., of Southport and Dan Walker, Town Manager at Long Beach, agreed to help secure financial backing in their respective communities.

J. D. Griffin, who heads the promotion committee for the Brunswick County Chamber of Commerce, exhibited a dummy of the folder that had been prepared by Art Newton and reported that final preparation already is underway. It was estimated that the material will be ready for distribution by late June.

Baptist Hold Bible School

Two Weeks Session Got Underway Monday With Enrollment Of 140 Children

More than 140 children will be attending Bible School at the Baptist church for the next two weeks, according to Rev. Mark Owens.

The two week school started Monday and will run until Friday, June 7. During this period, classes will be held between 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. The school begins with worship services, departmental Bible School studies and activities, refreshments and finally creative activity programs.

"Children receive as much Bible study during the two-week school as they do during the whole Sunday School program," Rev. Owens stated. The church offers classes for students from 3 years old to 16. Department heads include Mrs. Jim Johnson, nursery; Mrs. O. N. Clevenger, beginners; Mrs. O. W. Carrier, primary; Mrs. O. W. Faulk, juniors; Mrs. Mark Owens, intermediates; Mrs. Mary Hewitt, refreshments; Assistant Pastor Horace Hawes, creative arts; and 35 more volunteer help.

Sale Of Bonds To Pay Indebtedness

Sale Of $1,700,000 In Brunswick County Bonds Held In Raleigh Tuesday To Refund Present Bonds

A $1,700,000 refunding bond issue was sold for Brunswick county Tuesday in Raleigh by the Local Government Commission.

The Commission sold the Brunswick bonds for 3.818 per cent interest to a Charlotte syndicate headed by the R. S. Dickson Company.

The bonds were issued by the county for refunding $525,000 of the principle of a valid subsisting bonded indebtedness of the county which was originally incurred before January 1, 1929 for road and bridge purposes. The bonds will also be used to pay on $225,000 indebtedness of the county which was originally incurred for school purposes. In addition, the bonds will be used for the purpose of refunding $420,000 of the principal of the valid subsisting debts of the county.

Williamson Is Backing Museum

Brunswick County Representative Thinks Legislature Will Give Favorable Action

By ODELL WILLIAMSON
Last Thursday the House and Senate Appropriations subcommittee recommended to the full committees of both House and Senate the $80,000 item for a museum at old Brunswick Town. It will be necessary now to get this recommendation through the committees and also to have the bill passed in the House and also in the Senate. Our chance of getting this appropriation through the General Assembly looks pretty good, although you never know until the bill has passed both houses, I can assure you that both Senator Walton and I are doing all we can to bring this about.

The Senate failed to concur in the House amendment to the so-called "elected officials' salary raise" bill. For all practical purposes, I guess this means that the bill is killed. As I understand it, under a separate bill passed in 1955, the county commissioners still have the authority to raise the salaries of all elected officials 10 percent in case they see fit. Under my amendment they would have been able to raise any one or all by this amount.

After having succeeded in the early part of the session in eliminating two Board of Education members who were put on by our present system of preferential vote in the primary and confirmation by the Legislature, Senator Walton has introduced a new bill. The bill that he has introduced would let the various candidates from the school districts run in the primary on what is known as a non-partisan ballot. The winners would be placed on the general election ticket for confirmation. If this bill passes (and as of now, I am inclined to be for it), it would in effect keep the Legislature from being able to override the preference of the people. I assume that the three members who would not be running in the 1964 general election would still be subject to juggling by the Legislature, if it so desired, as they were appointed prior to the enactment of this bill.

TIME and TIDE

Five years ago this week the boating of two sailfish by local boats in the wake of Southport's first marlin catch aroused hopes that this would be the banner season for billfish. The interest was also shown by the number of parties coming here for offshore fishing trips in search of the larger fish.

Bids for the statewide stream clearance projects were invited by the U. S. Army Engineers. The project would include the removal of all debris left by the hurricanes in the past few years. The clearance in Brunswick county was to cover 36 miles of inland streams.

Ten years ago this week two pieces of heavy highway machinery were saved from complete destruction by the quick thinking of Mrs. Fred Stevens and her daughter, Mrs. Gladys Johnson. A wind-swept brush fire that escaped from the trash dump boundary was threatening two large highway department vehicles parked in a nearby field. Not knowing how to operate the machines, they rushed into Southport for help. Returning in time, the machines were moved, and the fire was brought under control.

The Southport-based menhaden boats came into the Southport harbor in search of large catches. Six of the boats were spread about the river, where the menhaden occasionally come to seek cooler waters.

Fifteen years ago this week a front page story and pictures appeared concerning the Frying Pan Lightship, lying 35 miles offshore from Southport. The lightship, which only moves when it returns to shore for maintenance, marks the outermost boundary of one of the East Coast's most popular fishing grounds.

Jaycees Publish New Industrial Folder Material

Brochure Prepared For Distribution To Prospects For Industrial Development In Area

An attractive brochure advertising the advantages of Southport for industrial development has been published by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, according to President G. W. Fisher, Jr.

The brochure, called "Come to a Central Location, Southport, North Carolina," and subtitled "Naturally a Great Mid-Atlantic Seaport Situated In the Balance of the Eastern States", is divided into five loose-leaf sections.

Subjects discussed in the booklet include the Port; Market, Transportation and Labor; Water, Electric, Government and Taxes; Live Where the Pine Meets Palm; and Tourist Resort Since 1764. The five-page sections are enclosed by a cover depicting an over-all scene of Southport's waterfront.

The Jaycees had 1,000 copies of the folder printed for distribution. Some have already been mailed out to prospective industries. More will be printed when the need arises.

The primary objective of the Jaycees now is to obtain the greatest possible distribution where it will do the most good.

Pictures and written material for the brochure were all gathered locally. The project was financed almost entirely by the local organization. Eddie Hahn, Ronnie Hood, David Swain, H. A. Schmidt, President Fisher, Roger Ward and Kirby Sullivan as well as other members played a major role in drawing up the booklet. The brochure was produced by Art Newton of Southport.

The Commerce and Industrial divisions of the State Department of Conservation and Development helped with the booklet. Former Division Chairman William Henderson also worked with the Jaycees.

Local Couple Graduate Again

The Rev. and Mrs. L. D. Hayman Will Celebrate 50th Anniversary Of College Graduation

Rev. and Mrs. L. D. Hayman will return to their Alma Mater this weekend and be "graduated" again on the 50th anniversary of their graduation in 1913.

The Fifty Year Honor Class will take part in the graduation exercises of Duke University in Durham and the Haymans are among some thirty graduates who will renew old acquaintances and receive diplomas again. Of the 54 graduates almost twenty have died in the intervening years and several have been lost sight of.

The returning graduates will attend the Class Dinner on Saturday, a special breakfast on Sunday, and will be honor guests of the occasion.

Lee. Wolfe was selected by the Scholarship Committee of the School of Business Administration for the award. He was also presented $75 in cash for his accomplishments. The insurance award was presented to Wolfe by William T. Beaty.

Area Librarians In Session Here

Study Made Of Films To Be Made Available For Lending Through Libraries

Librarians from Scotland, Pender, New Hanover and Brunswick Counties met with a representative of the North Carolina State Library for an all-day session of film previewing in Southport last Thursday.

Purpose of the meeting was to view films under consideration for purchase by the State Library to be added to those already available without charge through North Carolina's public libraries.

Films to be chosen at the Thursday meeting were all in the fields of family, home, church and community life. At similar gatherings in other parts of the state, librarians selected films on foreign travel, history, government, applied science, business and industry; fine arts and literature, and United States travel, history and government.

There are already more than 800 motion pictures in the Adult Film Program collection. Special emphasis in the selection of films has been placed upon subjects which lend themselves to group discussion, such as intercultural relations, international under-

Education Board Still Trying To Find New Man

Pinehurst Man Hired Thursday Night Decides Not To Leave Present Employment

A new superintendent of Brunswick County Schools was appointed Thursday night by the Brunswick County Board of Education but he resigned Saturday. Another attempt to fill the vacancy will be made at a meeting set for Friday night.

Lewis S. Cannon, superintendent of Pinehurst City Schools, was interviewed and was approved by the board Thursday. He signed a contract to be the superintendent of schools in Brunswick county for the next two years.

Cannon informed the Board Saturday that he could not accept the job. He said the Pinehurst School Board had given him a substantial raise in salary, and he could not turn it down.

In addition to Cannon, two other men were interviewed for the job Thursday.

The board will meet again Friday at 7:30 p. m. to interview more applicants.

In other action, the board directed Superintendent John G. Long, who is leaving at the end of June, to conduct a survey of the number of students in the county schools. This will be used in drawing up a new budget for next year to be submitted to the Board of Commissioners in mid-June.

Miss Barbara Ann Lamb, John T. Piner and Miss Ruby Mae Suggs were unanimously approved to teach at Leland High School next year.

Bookmobile To Add Schedule

Expanded Summer Schedule Will Go Into Effect In Brunswick County June 1

A changed and expanded summer schedule for the Brunswick County Bookmobile goes into effect as of June 1st, it is announced by Mrs. Philip King, Acting County Librarian.

The present Leland route will be split in two and an additional half-day of Bookmobile service given residents of that area. This brings to eight the number of routes covered regularly by the bookmobile in the county.

Other changes effective during June, July and August include a stop on the Long Beach Route at Johnson's Vegetable Stand, Route 211; a one-hour stop at Cedar Grove on the Holden's Beach route, and a stop at the Red Bug grocery on the Supply run.

New Brittain Church will be included on the Waccamaw Route this summer; and the new half-day route being added will permit stops at Skipper's store, Elah, and at Applewhite's in Maco.

Mrs. Charlotte Hart, Bookmobile Librarian, states that there is an approximately 50 percent increase in books borrowed from the mobile library during school vacation months. It is hoped that the changed and expanded schedule will permit even more residents to make use of this county-operated library facility.

While every effort has been made to publicize the changes in schedule, it is hoped that the changes will be publicized in the future.
