Workers Council Hears Specialists Discuss Future

Brunswick County Agricultural Extension Workers Hear Outsiders Praise Prospects

The Brunswick County Agricultural Workers Council was treated to two important talks on economic development for the county last week in their regular monthly meeting at the Extension Service Building in Supply.

The first talk was by Paul S. Stone, of Raleigh, Extension Economist in Area Development, who spoke on the over-all economic development potential for Brunswick county. He pointed out that this county had countless amount of resources that could be developed for increasing income.

Marion Holland, District FHA Supervisor for the Goldsboro area spoke on the Recreational Potential for Brunswick County, pointing out that their organization can make loans to farmers for recreational improvements that could be used in increasing income. Brunswick County has recently been designated by FHA to push development of recreational facilities as an income producing venture.

The resources and potentials are here, according to A. M. Benton, FHA Supervisor for the area, and Grover C. Dobbins as they summarized the talks and observation made during the meeting. "All that needs to be done is make good plans for developing the resources and implement them," they said.

Resource Meet Being Planned Next Wednesday

Leaders From Various Agencies Will Be At Supply Meeting To Discuss Development

There will be an important Resource Meeting in Supply at Extension Service Building next Wednesday at 7:30 P. M. according to A. S. Knowles, Acting County Extension Chairman.

This Resource meeting should be of great interest to individuals and groups as they participate in the over-all economic development of the county. C. D. Pickerrall, City Manager of Southport, and a Director of SENCland Development Association, will preside.

Sponsor of the meeting on the state level is the Farmers Home Administration, in cooperation with the Governor's office and the Agricultural Extension Service. On the local level it is sponsored by the County Agricultural Worker's Council which urges leaders from all segments of the economy to attend and get first-hand information on the type of assistance available from certain state and federal agencies. The county leadership needs to know more about the agencies set up to furnish aid for developing our resources for more income.

There will be representatives at the meeting from Community Facilities Administration, Small Business Administration, Defense Procurement Administration, N. C. Department of Conservation and Development and perhaps other. These agencies will explain the types of services they have to offer in community and area development. Fred Graham of Wilmington, President of SENCland Development Association, will summarize the discussion and explain how individuals and groups can take advantage of these services.

The agencies representatives will be available after the meeting to discuss with individuals or groups any problem relating to their agency and how to overcome it.

Referendum On Hog Sales Set

Brunswick Farmers Will Participate In Statewide Vote To Authorize Promotional Assessment

There will be a swine referendum held in Brunswick County and throughout North Carolina on October 1, reports Wilbur Earp, Chairman of the Referendum Committee for the county.

He states that leading swine farmers have wanted such a referendum for several years in order to promote the swine industry to its fullest potential.

Should the swine referendum carry by two-thirds, farmers selling hogs for slaughter would contribute 5 cents per hog to (1) create a greater demand for pork, (2) increase income from swine, and (3) help solve swine problems. This would be done through research and educational projects.

Those eligible to vote are farmers who sell hogs for slaughter and all other persons who receive income from such sales, or Continued On Page 4

Big Additions At Long Beach

Number Of Property Owners More Than Doubled At Brunswick County Development Since 1960

The number of property owners has more than doubled at Long Beach since 1960, according to tax records released by Town Manager Dan L. Walker.

Manager Walker reports that 2,396 people own cottages, homes or lots in the Long Beach area and the total tax evaluation for the property amounts to $3,349,075. In addition, 3,006 more persons are in the process of purchasing property on the installment plan. The property has not yet been added to the town's tax records, he added.

Manager Walker said that 256 new property owners were added to the tax list during the first three quarters of this year.

Long Beach has been growing steadily since 1957 when there were 560 property owners and the town had a tax valuation of $502,000. In 1960 when the Tranquil Harbor section was annexed to Long Beach the town grew to 1160 property owners. The number increased to 1418 in 1961, 1747 in 1962 and to 2396 so far this year.

Board To Stress Lot Maintenance

Ordinance Adopted At Thursday Night Meeting Would Require Clearing Certain Property Of Undergrowth

The adoption of a city ordinance governing the clearing of vacant lots located next to developed areas highlighted a meeting of the Southport Board of Aldermen Thursday night at the City Hall.

The ordinance, which was drawn-up by City Attorney Kirby Sullivan, requires that owners of vacant property control the underbrush and weeds on their land within 100 ft. of a home when the homeowner complains. City Manager C. D. Pickerrall will determine when the work must be done. After that date, the city will charge the vacant property owner $1 per day for every day the work is not done. The motion to adopt the ordinance, which will go into effect within 30-days, was made by Johnnie Vereen and seconded by J. A. Gilbert. The vote was unanimous.

Grand Jury Asks For Improvement

Toilet Facilities At Court House And Jail Should Be Improved Says Grand Jury Report

Recommendations to improve the toilet facilities at the court house and improve the plumbing at the county jail highlighted a report of the Brunswick County Grand Jury after a two-day session here this week.

The grand jury, which met Monday and Tuesday during the Superior Court session, recommended that the toilets in the court house be repaired and placed in a sanitary condition.

The jury said the plumbing at the county jail was in need of repairs and hot water needed to be installed.

The Shalotte City Jail was found in "excellent" condition, the report said.

The Grand Jury, under Foreman Tom Gilbert of Southport, found 61 true bills and took no action on four other bills for lack of witnesses.

They examined the returns of the Justices of the Peace and found that they had been made as requested to proper authorities. They found the reports of guardians, administrators and executors maintained in the Clerk of Court's office to be in "good order."

TIME and TIDE

Five years ago this week advertising in state and national publications by the Southport Development Corporation was beginning to bring results as inquiries were being received from as far away as Albuquerque, New Mexico, concerning Southport's utilities, taxes, etc. Mayor Tomlinson was personally replying to each in hopes of arousing further interest in Southport.

The Atlantic Telephone Membership Corporation held its first annual meeting with Judge R. Mallard the principal speaker; Lt. Col. W. S. Norman was promoted to the rank of Commanding Officer at Sunny Point.

Ten years ago this week Brunswick county speedsters were warned to keep within the speed limit as Corporal C. H. Lynch obtained an unmarked patrol car, the first of four Brunswick patrolmen to do so. Previously, a speeding driver could avoid arrest by slowing down when a patrol car came into view. Now the speeder could be timed and stopped before suspecting arrest.

Bids were opened on the construction of the multi-million dollar railroad facilities to be located throughout the Sunny Point Army Terminal. The network of tracks would include numerous sidings on which cars could be kept.

Fifteen years ago this week 69 refugees from Estonia, ended a two-month, 7,500 mile trip to freedom in Southport and were to be sent to Ellis Island, New York. This was the second group of refugees that had sailed into Southport in recent months from the Northern sector of Europe but there appeared to be no con- (Continued On Page 4)
