Local Camellia Exhibitors Win In Greensboro

A Southport city official and a Bolivia nursery took top honors Saturday at the Greensboro Camellia Show, which is one of the biggest in the Carolinas.

Hubert Livingston, director of public works for the city of Southport, won a silver cup for having the best minature entered in the Greensboro show, which attracted growers from throughout the United States. He placed one tray of three flowers in the court of honor and two blooms on the memorial table.

Elmore Nursery of Bolivia won the display table honor in the professional division of the show.

The name of Livingston's winning flower was "Angle Blush." It was the second cup he has won in camellia shows throughout the Carolinas.

Livingston also won 10 first place blue ribbons, 7 red second place ribbons and 12 yellow third place awards. He entered 45 blooms in the show, winning 29 prizes.

Southport City Manager C. D. Pickerrell picked up two first places and one second. He entered 13 blooms. A former Southport resident, Dr. Allen Graham of Ramseur, won numerous ribbons and placed a bloom on the memorial table. The last camellia show of the season will be held in Elizabeth City Saturday.

To Amend Charter For Long Beach

ROBERT L. KING

Brunswick Man College Prof

A 26-year-old biology professor, native of Columbus County and now calls neighboring Shallotte home, is the first fulltime instructor to be hired by Southeastern Communiyt College.

Robert Lee King, who was born and raised in Western Prong Township, will report for fulltime duties with Southeastern in Au-

Currently teaching at the College of the Abermarle, King will be chief instructor in the field of biology, zoology and botany in Southeastern college parallel division and comes highly recommended by Dr. Warren Land, college president.

King's employment by Dr. Land was unanimously approved by the college's board of trustees at their Thursday night session

1956 graduate of Shallotte High School, King obtained his bachelor's degree from Elon College in 1960 and in 1961 he gained his Master degree in biology from Appalachian State Teachers Col-

He has been teaching at the College of the Abermarle, located in Elizabeth City, for the past four years. His work there includes instruction at the college's Hatteras Marine Laboratory.

In other business, Dr. Landreported to trustees that satisfactory progress was being made on applying for $326,000 in federal funds for the college building program.

These funds, if granted, will enable the college to construct four buildings instead of three in the first phase of construction. Total construction funds, if the federal monies become available, will amount to $1.3 million.

Dr. Land also reported that he and Bob Sawyer of the architectural firm of Ballard, McKim and Sawyer of Wilmington, were in Raleigh Friday to confer on the building proposed for construction and Dr. Land said the plans were near final approval stage.

missioners, pressured by beach seeking home rule, adopted a compromise proposal to eliminate freeholders or nonresident property owners from voting in two town elections at a meeting Saturday.

A bill will be submitted to the General Assembly shortly "entitled an act to revise and consolidate the Charter of the Town of Long Beach,"

Provision in the new charter will call for the board members to be residents and qualified voters in the town.

It also will provide that a new registration of all qualified voters will be conducted for the 1965 municipal election which will be held May 4. The charter will allow incumbent non-resident commissioners to continue in office until their elected terms expire, At present, four of the six members are non-resident freeholders. The charter will be presented to the State Senate by Sen. L. P. McLendon, Jr., of Greens-boro and Senator Carl Meares of Fair Bluff. Representative Odell Williamson of Shallotte will submit it to the House. The board was pressured into accepting the proposal in the face of a pending civil lawsuit in Brunswick Superior Court which was submitted by a citizen's committee of Long Beach. The constitutionality of the old charter was questioned in the civil suit opened by the citizen's

The body of a Southport man who fell into the icy waters of the Cape Fear River from the City Pier more than two weeks ago was found at Yaupon Beach Monday.

Raymond Lewis' body washed up at Yaupon Beach east of the fishing pier sometime Monday. A woman looking for seashells first saw the body about 12-feet bove the water line at Mercer

The body was discovered about eight miles from where Lewis, 34, fell into the river on March Officials believe the last high tide Sunday washed the body upon the beach. Brunswick County Coroner Lowell Bennett of Shallotte ruled that Lewis died from drowning. The body was first identified by Harold Spencer, a brother-in-law of Lewis, Southport Police

Chief Herman Strong also identified the body. Funeral services were held at Harkers Island Tuesday at 11 o'clock at the Virgie Mae cemetery with graveside rites conducted by the Rev. L. D. Hayman of Southport, Lewis is survived by his father, Captain Walter Lewis of Southport; two sons, David Lewis and Robert Lee Lewis; one brother, Walter Preston Lewis, of Morehead City; and two sisters, Mrs. Harold Spencer of Southport and Mrs. Louis Youman of Harkers

Maintenance Of School Plants Is Major Job

Efforts to provide additional classroom space of a temporary or portable nature and efforts to keep old school facilities in a good state of repair are major items in the report that Superintendent of Schools A. W. Taylor recently submitted to the Board of Education on progress in the Brunswick county schools during the past two years.

Pointing out that needs are far in excess of funds available for maintenance and construction, Taylor said that the lack of adequate classrooms remains the greatest problem faced by the school system.

In the way of new facilities three mobile classroom units have been purchased, one at Leland High School and two at Union High School, and three semiportable units have been constructed at Southport High School. A new boiler room was constructed at Bolivia High School, a new gymtorium recently completed at Lincoln High School, and a storage room built for the Southport School Cafeteria.

"We have a total of nine maintenance employees," Taylor said. "From three to five of these have been kept busy on new construction almost continually for the past two years.

"The county maintenance force built the boiler room at Bolivia, the three temporary units and storage room at Southport, installed the heating system in the Lincoln gemtorium and reconstructed the grandstand at BCHS," Taylor continued. "All of these projects would not ordinarily be considered to be a part of maintenance work, but we did them in the effort to make our money go as far as possible."

While part of the total maintenance force has been occurred with new construction, the remainder have had to take care of all regular and emergency maintenance items according to the superintendent's report.

Expand Limits Of Ocean Isle

A bill calling for the first annexation in the history of Ocean Isle Beach passed the State House of Representatives Monday and moved on to the Senate.

The new proposal will annex to the town of Ocean Isle Beach an area including some eight cottages. If approved it will be the first expansion at Long Beach since the town was incorporated in 1959.

The measure, introduced by Rep. Odell Williamson, describes the proposed annexation as an area beginning at the Homer L. Johnston property at the Old Sound Creek and running with the Johnston line to the low water mark of the Atlantic to Tub's Inlet and back to the Old Sound Creek and the Western line of Johnston's property.

Honor Members Of School Band

The Brunswick County High School band had six members of its senior band selected to the All-District Band of the Southeastern District Band and Orchestra Association. They are Janice Gore, Brenda Galloway, Joseph Douglas--trumpets; Patricia Price, Gloria McKenzie--clarinets; and Agnes Bernard--horn. These students were chosen at the district clinic which was held February 28 at E. E. Smith Senior High School at Fayetteville. Selections were based the execution of scales, articulation patterns, sight reading and general musicianship with all selections made by a group of clinicians from the Army band at Fort Bragg.

Some two hundred bandsmen participated in the clinic with the hope of being chosen as a part of the sixty-five piece concert band. It should be noted that the clinic was not designed for competition, but to have specialized instrumentalist point out to the students their weaknesses and relate to them helpful hints to help raise the calibre of musicians in this area. As a climax to their selection the group went to Fayetteville

Four Brunswick StudentsWork In Legislature

By Rep. Odell Williamson The most important thing that took place this past week in the General Assembly was Gov. Dan K. Moore's revised budget speech. All the members of the Assembly were interested in knowing what the governor was going to advocate for the spending of the money in the next two years. It was no surprise to the lawmakers for Governor Moore to stick by his guns in regard to the 10 per cent raise for state employees. I feel sure that most of his recommendations will be carried out. However, it is still the responsibility of the Legislature to divide the revenue up where it is needed most.

Some people frequently accuse some of the lawmakers of introducing legislation for the purpose of getting publicity. About ten days ago, a bill that carried this label was introduced in the House that would require a person who is 65 years old or older to get his automobile driver's li-cense renewed once every year. A lot of people of course feel that the bill has some merit as a highway safety measure, and it might in some isolated instances. But would like to point out that some people are older at 35 than others are at 65 in many respects. I see no reason to cause this particular group all this trouble, and I can assure you I will vote against this bill.

We were able to get rid of one bill in which I was very interested, and that was the bill to double the minimum requirement for compulsory liability insurance. This bill created some long debate prior to the time of its defeat.

Several other bills that had created considerable interest were also killed during the past week. Among them were the bill to have Daylight Savings Time during the summer months and the bill changing the day for holding a primary election from Saturday to Tuesday.

Last week there was a bill introduced in the House that calls for a constitutional amendment to have the General Assembly meet once every year instead of every two years as we do now. The state of South Carothis arrangement, bu frankly I am against it. The North Carolina General assembly has been getting along very well by meeting on a pien-(Continued On Page Four)

Scholarship To Shallotte Girl

A honor student at Shallotte high school has been awarded merit scholarship to attend Methodist College in Fayetteville, says Principal Winfred Brenda Tripp, 18, daughter of Mrs. Pauline Tripp of Shallotte, received word Monday that she had been awarded a $575 scholarship to attend Methodist College. Miss Tripp is a senior at Shallotte and one of the leading candidates for valedictorian honors at the Brunswick county school. She has been an active student for four years, serving as president of several clubs, editor of the yearbook and as a cheerleader. Principal Johnson said 13 members of the senior class at Shallotte have been accepted for college for next year. Miss Tripp is the first one to receive a scholarship, he added.
