Brunswick Men District Winners

Brunswick county's two entries in district contests come home winners in Saturday's Democratic Primary Election, with James C. Bowman winning nomination for reelection as 8th District Solicitor and Odell Williamson being one of the two nominees for the 13th House District.

Otherwise, the big news was the wide margin piled up Sheriff Ed V. Leonard over David Swain, second place winner in this five-man race. There was news, too, in the fact that two of the five members of the present board of county commissioners were casualties in Saturday's voting.

Paired with Williamson as a winner in the house race was Clyde Collier, who upset Representative Arthur Williamson of Columbus county. Mrs. Crutchfield, also of Columbus, finished a strong fourth. In Brunswick voting Odell Williamson was way out front with 3107 votes, followed by Collier with 1743, Arthur Williamson with 1445 and Mrs. Crutchfield with 757.

Bowman led all vote-getters in Brunswick when he received 3728 votes to 692 for Napoleon Barefoot in their contest for district solicitor.

In the race for sheriff Leonard piled up 1973 votes, Swain had 972, Daught Tripp 864, Woodrow Russ 820 and Johnnie Corbett 90.

In the contest for county commissioner George T. Rourk had 2267 votes to 1680 for Dillon L. Ganey for commissioner from Northwest township. V. A. Creech, Jr., had no opposition from his own Town Creek township and his 2324 votes won for him a place on the ticket this

Long Beach To Have Own Post Office Facility

The Post Office Department is accepting bids to operate a rural branch at Long Beach, which will be administratively attached to the Post Office at Southport. The rural branch will be conducted at a fixed annual rate by a private party through agreement with the Post Office Department.

The person designated as clerk in charge of the rural branch will be required to: Furnish bond of at least $3,000, provide adequate quarters and equipment convenient for the public; conduct the branch under the supervision of the Southport Postmaster for an indefinite period; provide service required by the postmaster, including the sale of stamp supplies, transaction of money order business and acceptance, delivery and dispatch of ordinary, registered, insured and COD mail. Nonpostal money orders, checks, etc. will not be sold.

Persons interested in submitting proposals to conduct the branch under contract should promptly notify the Postmaster, Southport, by letter, giving pertinent information such as the proposed location of the branch, the type of business in which the bidder is engaged and the submission of a bid or agreement showing the annual rate of compensation expected in the event the agreement is awarded.

Major Fisher Decorated

HONORED — Army Maj. Paul D. Fisher, 31, (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fisher, Sr., Southport, receives the Bronze Star Medal at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., as Maj. Gen. Harry J. Lemley Jr., pins the award on. Major Fisher was cited for "outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations" against the Viet Cong from January 1965 to January 1966. He entered the Army in 1956. General Lemley is the commanding general of Fort Leavenworth. The major is a graduate of Southport High School and a 1956 graduate of The Citadel in Charleston, S. C.

Local People At Workshop In Wilmington

Representatives of the Resources Development Commission for Brunswick County were participants in the N. C. Department of Conservation and Development Workshop held last week at the Holiday Inn at Wilmington.

William A. Powell, chairman of the commission, outlined the procedures that were used in the formation of the organization and Roy A. Stevens, director, outlined the operation of the commission to the representatives from 13 Southeastern counties who attended the workshop.

The workshop, which was organized by Albert Calloway of the Conservation and Development staff, covered in addition to the organization and operation of a Development Commission, the requirements for housing development corporations, small business administration loans, the business development corporation loans, revenue bond financing and conventional financing. Other items covered during the workshop were industrial sites and water and sewerage facilities.

The workshop at Wilmington was one of five that were held in North Carolina. A workshop was held in each of the five regional areas, which have recently been established by the Commerce and Industry Division of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development.

Plans are now being made to hold similar one day workshops in each of the 100 counties.

Honorary Degree To Judge R. I. Mintz

North Carolina State University conferred honorary degrees Saturday on two industrialists, an educator, a judge and an author for notable achievements in their fields and for service to humanity.

Honored were J. Gordon Hanes Jr. of Winston-Salem, state senator and chairman of the Hanes Corp.; Dr. James Herbert Jensen, president of Oregon State University; Judge Rudolph I. Mintz of Wilmington; Charles S. Mitchell of Port Washington, N. Y., president of Cities Service Co.; and Frances Gray Patton of Durham, short-story writer, teacher and author of the best seller, "Good Morning, Miss Dove."

The honorary doctorates were bestowed at William Neal Reynolds Coliseum during N. C. State University's commencement ceremonies. Judge Mintz, an alumnus of North Carolina State, studied to be an engineer and turned later to the law. He first went into the court house as register of deeds of Brunswick county from 1931 to 1939. During that period, he studied law and, without formal training, passed the bar exams in 1939.

During World War II, Mintz left his Brunswick law practice to serve as a lieutenant colonel in the Army Air Corps. After the war, he served a term in the

Time And Tide

Back in 1936 Vacation Bible School in Southport was a cooperative venture, with all Protestant Churches cooperating. Our June 3 issue reported that the Rev. J. D. Withrow was serving as superintendent that year. May had been a dry month with just 12-inches of rainfall reported. The following Saturday was the date for the Democratic primary election.

Register of Deeds R. I. Mintz was at a loss to explain the drop in the number of divorce actions and marriages in Brunswick during the first five months of the year; on the society page there appeared a lengthy writeup of the Kopp-Johnson wedding; and the editor was praising the efforts of his staff of country correspondents--in the obvious hope of adding to their number.

June 4, 1941, and the menhaden boats were in operation here. In fact, a headline in The Pilot called the "Fish Boat Whistles Music In The Air." A group of Greensboro fishermen, taking advantage of the fishing fee plan at Orton pond, had come away with record catches of crappie and goggle-eye perch.

Joe Leighton had played for the Southport Flower Show Ball during the past week and had made such a big hit that he and his orchestra had been booked for an engagement at Long Beach Pavilion. Marrying was in the news with a headline pointing out that "No Advantage for Couples To Leave State To Marry." And once more May had been a hot, dry month.

There was distressing news on the front page of The Pilot for May 29, 1946: Oak Island Coast Guard Station had gone on caretaker status, with only two men in the crew. However, there was an added word that this move possibly was only temporary. The Democratic primary had been held on the previous Saturday, and a second race was in prospect.

A Southport couple, the late Mr. and Mrs. R. Will Davis, had observed the 60th anniversary of their wedding; Governor Gregg Cherry had proposed that the State acquire Fort Caswell for use as a State Park; and merchants still were having trouble supplying the demand
