United Auction Sales Ending

Higher prices and better quality marketings marked sales in the Columbus County portion of the N. C.-S. C. Border Belt tobacco auctions during the second week when compared with the opening week. Blocked sales prepared throughout the county last week, and volume is expected to continue heavy through the selling period which ends Wednesday.

Offerings of tied leaf on the four Columbus markets during the first two weeks have been almost negligible. Of the 781,057 combined pounds sold in Whiteville, Chadbourn, Tabor City and Fair Bluff, farmers have been paid $596,974, for an average of $76.43.

United sales for the period on the four markets totaled 16,120,695 pounds, bringing $10,750,877, averaging $66.68.

Sales on individual markets through Friday totaled:

TIED
Chadbourn--228,768 lbs., $162,297; $70.94 average.
Fair Bluff--43,598 lbs.; $30,279; $69.45 average.

Revival Services At Ocean View

Rev. Johnnie S. Huggins, pastor of Ocean View Methodist Church, Yaupon Beach, announces plans for a revival meeting September 11 through September 16. Services will be conducted by Rev. C. Everette Price of Wrightsboro Methodist Church.

Rev. Mr. Price is well known as an evangelist in North Carolina, having conducted many revivals. He is a native of Gastonia and has served as a pastor in Wilmington and Clarkton for the past 6 years in addition to his evangelistic duties.

Soil Service Program Varied

There are many conservation practices with which the soil conservation service assists the Brunswick County farmers. There are some practices, such as drainage, that may cost several hundreds or thousands of dollars. Also there are practices that only cost a few dollars. These low cost practices, however, may be worth many hundreds of dollars to the farm in a very short time.

One such practice is field-border plantings. This is done by seeding a border of grass from ten to twenty feet wide along the edge of a field.

The vegetation is established according to the soils and the use of the field border. Some valuable uses are turn rows, farm roads, ditch banks and gullies for stabilization, wildlife cover, wildlife food, hay, and grazing.

One such field border planting has already paid big dividends to one Brunswick county farmer, Elmore Willets of Bolivia. He states, "After clearing a field a few years ago, I notice there were steep slopes along the edges of the new field. It was not long before I began to notice much of my topsoil was being washed down into the woodland of the swamp.

"Something had to be done and done quickly. Since Joseph, my brother, and I had Coastal Bermuda pastures and knew what an excellent grass it was, we went to work sprigging a border of approximately twenty to twenty-five feet wide around the eroded places. The one and a half acre field border stopped the erosion, we also use it for a turn row and farm path and treat it as we do the other pastures. I just cut it in July for the first time and got about 75 bales of nice Coastal Bermuda hay. I intend to use Coastal

Visitors Board Gerig For Trip

The Wilmington District Engineer, Colonel Beverly C. Snow, Jr., has invited a group of local officials and navigation interests to go aboard the U. S. Hopper Dredge Gerig for a tour of the Engineer vessel today (Wednesday). The Gerig, a regular visitor to these waters, is one of a fleet of 15 hopper dredges now operated by the Corps of Engineers, and is based in the Jacksonville Engineer District. Captain Josiah Dunlap, Master of the Gerig has 26 years' experience at sea.

The hydraulic hopper dredge, an American development, has a history going back to 1877, when the initial hopper dredge, the General Moultrie, was built by the Engineers for service on the Charleston bar. The Moultrie was a casualty of the Civil War, and the next hopper dredge, the Henry Burden, was built in 1872, and had a capacity of 50 cubic yards. The Gerig's capacity is 3060 cubic yards. Hopper dredges differ from pipeline dredges in that they can operate in exposed waters, and are not dependent upon the availability of nearby spoil disposal areas, as it fills its hoppers and goes to sea to dump the spoil. Dredges such as the Gerig have made it possible to open shallow Atlantic harbors to deep draft vessels, and this contributed significantly to the development of the United States as a great maritime nation.

Long Principal At Waccamaw

John G. Long, who once before served as principal at Waccamaw High School, is heading this Brunswick county school again this year. As school opened this morning he reported that he only has one vacancy, a math teacher in high school.

Other faculty members include Mrs. Betty Long and Mrs. Doris Ward, first grade; Mrs. Louise Walton, second grade; Mrs. Daisy Long, second and third combination; Mrs. Jean Brenzle, a new teacher, third grade; Miss Thelma Little, also new, fourth grade; Miss Lillian Watts, fifth grade; Mrs. Thelma Faulk, fifth and sixth combination; Mrs. Zelma Hewett, sixth grade; Mrs. Mildred Lewis, seventh grade; Mrs. Lola Haynes (new) and Mrs. Muriel Bennett, eighth grades. In high school Mrs. Myrtle Evans and Mrs. Janice Gore are special education teachers. Other high school teachers include Mrs. Lois Gupton, 12th grade; Mrs. Bernice Odon, new, 11th grade; James Dew, 10th grade; Harold DeBoe, new, 9th grade; Mrs. Clara Evans, librarian; Mrs. Lorraine Soles, home economics, and Michael Russ, new teacher, in charge of vocational agriculture.

It was the last week in August, 1946, the 28th day, to be exact, and three schools still were looking for teachers. The September term of Superior court was slated to convene on Monday, with the late Judge John J. Burney presiding.

Charter had been received for the Brunswick Cold Storage Corporation. Dr. Jasper L. Stuckey, State Geologist, had sent word that he hoped to be able to visit Brunswick within a few weeks for an experiment; and beach fisheries were back in business, lining the resort (Continued on Page 4)

Good Results Reported On Heart Drive

The Brunswick County Heart Association reports a total of $1914.55 for the 1966 fund raising drive held in the month of February, Aubrey Johnston, treasurer, announced this week.

"Many fund raising activities were held, the Heart-O-Rama Shows, under the direction of Earl Milliken, Ballroom Days, a 4-H Club Project, and the Heart Dance, under the direction of Mrs. Harvey Evans, help aid the drive," stated Johnston.

Stan Knowles, president of the local association, says that he is sure more Brunswick people are aware of Heart now than ever before. "With the educational publicity that we received, we think more people will go for check-ups when necessary and take better care of themselves afterwards," stated president Knowles.

Donations For Building Fund

Mrs. Annie E. Francis, co-chairman of individual solicitation for the Southport-Brunswick County Public Library Building Fund, reports that committee members have collected $218.57 to date.

Assisting Mrs. Francis in house to house solicitation were Mrs. Viola Denkins and Mrs. Josey Smith of Winnabow, and Mrs. Edna M. Gause of the Cedar Grove Community near Supply.

Workers in Southport were Miss Lilly Mae Gore, Mrs. Alnetta Eagles, Mr. Charlie Swain, Mrs. Ada B. Mimmis and Mrs. Ruby Roberts.

Response to the personal solicitation was extremely good, Mrs. Francis stated. She added that everywhere the workers went they were met with genuine interest and concern for an adequate library building to serve Brunswick county.
