New Directory Reflects Big Increase Here

The new telephone directories for Southport began arriving last Friday, and anyone who does not receive his directory by Friday of this week should call the business office and ask for the service representative who handles his account.

R. E. Nantz, manager for Southern Bell in Wilmington, said, "We plan to get the new directories to all of our customers as soon as possible. So that we may accomplish this, we would like for any customer who does not receive a directory by the 14th to be sure and let us know."

"However," he added, "if any of our Southport customers have a need to call friends or business associates in the Wilmington or Wrightsville Beach area, please do not use the numbers listed in these sections of your new directory until June 16. Approximately 1800 numbers in the Wilmington area will be changed, so please do not call numbers listed in the Wilmington section until June 16. Use the numbers listed in the old telephone directory until this time."

Nantz asks that after June 16, the customers please throw away their old directories. That way there is no chance of getting wrong numbers by looking in the old directory by mistake. "Also," Nantz said, "please check the directory to make sure of the numbers you want before calling information. This will save you time and inconvenience and help you get the best service."

A quick check of the new directory indicates much progress. This year in the Southport-Long Beach area 2730 directories were ordered for distribution, new connects, and replacements, as compared to 2438 last year. This is an increase of 292 directories.

Dally Gainey Drowns Friday

LELAND -- John Dally Gainey, Sr., 65, a native of Leland, drowned in Cape Fear River near here, Friday.

Brunswick County Coroner Lowell Bennett said that the body of the well-known Leland man was spotted by an unidentified man as the body floated in Cape Fear River. It was reported to the Leland Volunteer Rescue Squad about 5:45 p.m., Friday.

The rescue group pulled the body from the river in the vicinity of Navassa.

Coroner Bennett said there was "no evidence of foul play in the vicinity of the body" and said he had ruled the death came from accidental drowning.

Bennett said the body was floating, when discovered, in a location near where the victim had a cabin on the river-bank.

Graveside services for Mr. Gainey were held Sunday at 4 p.m. at Northwood Cemetery by the Rev. W. S. Davenport.

Survivors include a son, John Gainey, Jr. and a daughter, Mrs. Jean Gainey Fullwood, both of Southport; a brother, Eugene Gainey of Wilmington; three sisters, Mrs. Charlotte Yopp and Mrs. Peggie Peterson, both of Wilmington and Mrs. Jewell Dissenell of New Bern; and five grandsons.

Active pallbearers were D. L. Gainey, Sr., D. L. Gainey, Jr., Elmer D. Gainey, Ormond Gainey, Hubert Long, Jr., W. W. Skipper, Paul McLamb, Royal Hayes, J. A. Sanders, John T. Gainey, Keith Hewitt, Jimmy Cochran, Sam Cochran, and Ernest F. Gore.

Barge Aground At Southport

This big barge ran aground near the old city dock at the foot of Howe St. Monday and when the tide fell the huge hull was left high and dry. Billy Fortiscue is shown here climbing up a rope to board the vessel from the land side. Later he performed underwater operations to remove a wire that had fouled the propeller of the tug shown behind the barge. With this work completed, the tug was able to pull the barge off the beach at the next high tide. (Photo by Spencer)

Plan Schedule Of Recreation For Southport

The summer city recreation program will begin Monday and run for eight weeks, ending August 9. All children ages 6 to 12 are invited to enroll for the program.

Registration will begin Monday, at 9 a.m. in the Southport High School gymnasium. The entire day will be devoted to registration.

This year's program will be conducted by Miss Esther Hankins and Miss Nellie Hewett. Miss Hankins will be a sophomore this fall at Johnson C. Smith University and Miss Hewett will attend Appalachian State University.

This year's recreation program will include arts and crafts, field trips and nature study, athletic games and sports. Parents of children attending this year's program are asked to give full cooperation to the directors and their helpers. These will be selected from the older children who take part in the program.

Navigation Aids Being Destroyed

LORETTA GAIL MCBRIDE

Brunswick Girl Is Graduated

Loretta Gail McBride of Shallotte was among the 911 persons to receive degrees from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro during the 76th annual commencement exercises June 2.

Miss McBride received a Bachelor of Science in Secretarial Administration. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McBride of Shallotte.

The record number of UNC-G graduates heard commencement speaker Dr. Max Lerner, professor of American civilization at Brandeis University and noted political commentator, discuss "America in the Stormy Present."

Present at the ceremonies were Dr. William Friday, president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, and Gov. Dan K. Moore, Chancellor James S. Ferguson of UNC-G conferred the degree.

The hunter often becomes the hunted in the eyes of the law and fellow taxpaying Americans and for good reason. The Coast Guard announced that over 31 Aids to Navigation have been damaged in the past 8 months in North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland. The offenders being hunters. "We know that hunters are responsible for quite a bit of damage," said Commander J. A. Dearden, 5th Coast Guard District Chief of Aids to Navigation Section. "This conclusion is easy he said, because of the heavy rifle holes drilled in the structures during deer season and the shotgun pellet patterns during duck season."

The lights that aren't shot up are often a prey to thieves and their gain is worthless. The batteries in the lights look like auto batteries but don't work the same. If you put one in your car

Time And Tide

It was June 8, 1938, and that week The Pilot was full of primary election returns. It was also fairly charged with returns concerning the baby show held in Southport the preceding Wednesday. In fact, the entire fourth page had been devoted to pictures of the young entrants, complete with equipment and costume. Among the winners: Gertrude Gause McNeil (prettiest girl under two), and Clarke Fergus (handsomest boy under two); second place (William Watts White). The Civic Club was making an effort to have a Navy warship visit N. C.'s only natural harbor, and the headline of the week read: "Quality Hay Is Better As Feed." And another read: "Here's Way To Save Dead Trees."

In the advertising department that week, a Wilmington firm was announcing the sale of women's dresses (values to $1.00) for 47 cents; men's slub pants for 97 cents; and double-bed sheets for 68 cents each. And a Southport billiard parlor, in keeping with the baby-show feel of things, advised: "You Tell Your Dad Where To Enjoy Clean, Healthy Recreation." Another headline: "Gas Officer Tells What To Do In Case of Attack." Date line: June 16, 1943. This issue of The Pilot announced that a leading entomologist of the Department of Agriculture had rated Pitcher Plants above Venus Flytraps in bug catching ability. June must be baby show season, for another was being planned for the near future; the Battery Island rookery was again seen to be pro-

Citizens Plan Hartsville Trip To CP&L Plant

Citizens of Brunswick county have been invited to visit the nuclear power plant of Carolina Power & Light Co. at Hartsville, S.C.

A new Visitor Center at this facility has just been opened and Carolina Power & Light is anxious for Brunswick county citizens to see first hand what is planned for this area.

In order that all citizens who are interested can visit the facility, a trip by chartered bus is planned for Tuesday, June 25.

Busses will depart: Wilmington at 7:30 a.m.; Southport at 8 a.m. from the Southport Boat Harbor; Shallotte at 8:30 a.m. from Clem's Texaco station.

Cost will be $12 per person which includes bus fare, lunch and dinner. In order that proper arrangements can be made, reservations must be made with the Resources Development Commission for Brunswick County. A check for $12 will make your reservation.

Reservations must be made by June 19.

State Officials Give School Plan

Dr. J. L. Pearce, head of the School Planning Division of the State Department of Public Instruction, and Dr. John Justice, also of the State Department, came to Brunswick county Monday night to report the findings of a survey committee which recently conducted a study of consolidated school needs for this county.

The recommendation of the committee is for two high schools to be erected at points in the county to serve the greatest number of students with a minimum of travel. Dr. Pearce made it clear that his agency comes into a county only by invitation and that its function is to serve in an advisory capacity. He pointed out that the final authority rests with the local Board of Education. "Develop written policies dealing with all aspects of the educational program; make the policies available to lay persons and to all personnel employed by the Board."

"House all administrative and supervisory personnel in a single facility on one site to improve the system for planning and for better administration.

"As the Board and Superintendent continue to study, evaluate, and improve the curriculum, the committee suggests; that art, music, industrial arts, and physical education be improved in the elementary schools; that vocational programs be diversified and closely related to post-secondary programs in nearby technical institutes as well as other schools of higher education; industrial arts and prevocational programs be instituted where they are not now in effect; that plans be developed for a kindergarten program using existing facilities where possible. Programs can now be identified and developed on paper. Needs can now be enumerated and costs can be discussed with the Board of County Commissioners so that they too may be aware of needs and will be in a position to do some long-range planning of their own in terms of finance and the attitude of the public; that the pupil-staff ratio be reduced, gradually; and that a pay supplement
