Mrs. Taylor Is Speaker Before Women's Group

Mrs. H. Pat Taylor, Jr., wife of the Democratic nominee for Lt. Governor, was the guest of Democratic Women of Brunswick County on Tuesday at a luncheon at the Ebb-Tide Restaurant at Holden Beach. Mrs. Foster Mintz, vice-chairman of the Brunswick Democratic Executive Committee, planned the meeting and presided.

A number of visitors from both Columbus and New Hanover counties joined with the Brunswick women to welcome Mrs. Taylor.

Mrs. A. P. Henry, Jr., gave the invocation and Mrs. Clinton Bellamy welcomed the group. Mrs. James M. Harper, Jr., state vice-chairman, introduced Mrs. Taylor to the women. Mrs. Taylor was accompanied from Wadesboro by Mrs. J. B. Cameron.

Following Mrs. Taylor's remarks, Mrs. Mintz appointed members of a nominating committee and asked that they call the next meeting of the group and have a slate of officers chosen so that an organization could be revived.

This committee is comprised of Mrs. Odell Williamson, chairman, Mrs. Clinton Bellamy, Mrs. Catherine Clark, Mrs. Dinah E. Gore, and Mrs. Jean Fullwood.

Two Die Today In Auto Crash

A former Naval Reserve member, separated from active duty less than a week, and his wife both died in a two-car traffic collision a mile south of Bolivia on US 17 at 11:05 Wednesday morning.

State Trooper Larry Canipe identified the victims as Herbert C. McCarthy, Jr., 20, and his wife, Mrs. Emily J. McCarthy, 19, of Key West, Fla. Seriously injured was the driver of the other auto Bobby Gerald Johnson, 35, of 501 North Street, Greenville, S.C.

Canipe said the head-on collision, which demolished both cars, occurred as one vehicle, driven by McCarthy, the other by Johnson, traveled in opposite directions. Because of the death of the Floridians and the immediate condition of Johnson, the trooper said it was difficult to determine which of the cars was traveling south, which north on the through highway. The mass of twisted wreckage, made up of parts of both cars, lay in the north-bound lane, he said.

The 1964 Chevrolet in which the McCarthys were riding was left in one-piece, said Canipe. "But it was just a mass of twisted metal. The late model Oldsmobile driven by Johnson was towed away in pieces, the front-end being separated from the hood out."

McCarthy was originally of Massachusetts, his wife from Maryland, according to the trooper. It is thought that they had been visiting in the Camp Lejeune area and were returning home. However, Canipe said, this had been verified late Wednesday. He said McCarthy had been separated from the active Naval Reserve on Oct. 26.

Johnson suffered multiple fractures and lacerations and was in a semi-conscious state at New Hanover Memorial Hospital in Wilmington, where he was to undergo surgery.

Brunswick County Coroner Lowell Bennett had made no announcement concerning an inquest into the deaths, pending the outcome of the investigation. —(JIGGS POWERS).

Chadwick Is Farm Bureau Head Again

"Farmers have to cultivate good laws as well as good crops in order to be successful today," Ira D. Chadwick, president of the Brunswick County Farm Bureau, said Saturday night during the annual dinner-meeting at the Henry C. Stone Cafeteria of Shallotte School.

The farm leader pointed out that farm prices are lower at the present time than they have been since depression days. "At the same time," Chadwick said, "the cost for farm equipment and supplies is higher than ever before. It is high time the farmers took the bull by the horns and joined together to fight this bad situation."

"Brunswick County Farm Bureau has grown 35 per cent over the past year and we have hopes of having 700 members by the North Carolina Farm Bureau Convention. Only by uniting solidly in Farm Bureau can farmer make their voices effectively heard in our North Carolina legislature and Congress."

Don Shackelford, North Carolina Farm Bureau Field Representative, was guest speaker. He noted that practically every piece of meaningful farm legislation that has passed in recent years did so with the full force of Farm Bureau behind it. "Farm Bureau is fast becoming a strong organization," he said. "With only 6 per cent farmers and 94 per cent consumers, the farmers must realize that organization is the only way to demand attention."

The welcome address was given by Roney W. Cheers, mayor of Shallotte. Rev. C. L. Turner, pastor of Shallotte First Baptist, gave the invocation.

Dealers Take Another Step

A five-man board of directors was elected for the Lockwoods Folly Farm and Seafood Freezing-Processing Plant Friday night at the Cedar Grove Satellite Center.

Harry L. Varnam of Supply was named chairman of the group with Lee Hewett, Miles Hewett, Herman Grissett and John H. Johnson as members. Another two-man team will be elected at a later date.

Roy Stevens, Director of the Resources Development Commission, and the State Seafood Specialist are on the program for November 12, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the center, said Varnam.

"I beg and urge all farmers, commercial fishermen and other interested persons to be at the center and let's get together for this industry. Everything looks in our favor," the chairman said.

"We are gathering information pertinent to the farm and seafood co-op in order to have information and facts to present to the SENCLAND Board of Directors", Varnam said.

"We have the potential, the resources, and the labor force. We need a plant and then we have more jobs, more money, and a better economy in Brunswick County," he said.

Time And Tide

It was October 26, 1938, and the winner of the first (annual) Southport-Wilmington outdoor marathon was pictured on page one of that week's issue of The Pilot. With his boat, the Typhoon, Fred Goldston of Lake Waccamaw had covered the 25-mile course in 53 minutes. And on the same page a story which obviously wasn't concluded bore this note at the bottom of the column: "Continued from page one." Two Shallotte boys, Cornelius Thomas and Harry Mintz, were enrolled at the University in Chapel Hill; Southport shrimpers had come off strike just in time to catch the current run off Little River; and a local dog had trailed his master 30 miles in one day.

The Southport school had gained another teacher for its faculty; a Columbus county man had run down a live doe deer and was in some doubt as to what was to become of his new acquisition; and our editorial writer had spoken out against swing music.

It was November 3, 1943 and our "Not Exactly" editor had (Continued On Page Four)

Library Dedication

Dedication Of New Library Held Sunday

The new Southport-Brunswick county library was dedicated Sunday afternoon in 2:30 ceremonies.

The building, a tribute to both Southport and Brunswick County people working together has been proclaimed as an example for other small communities to follow.

Architects for the structure was the firm of Ballard, McKim and Sawyer of Wilmington and the general contractor was C. T. Chauncey of Lake Waccamaw.

The library, modern in all respect, is capable of handling 40,000 volumes with areas for leisure reading, browsing and studying.

In his dedicatory address, Stick said that North Carolinians had not been getting the kind and quality of library service to which they were entitled, and this led to the appointment of a committee to study library resources. The principal cause, he said, was that not enough money has been available for these services.

It was discovered, he said, that the principal support for libraries has come from local sources and he expressed the thought that the State must help to a greater degree before the desired standard can be attained in North Carolina.

Stick says that he believes important gains have been made, and he says that he plans to hand-deliver a summary of the findings of the Library Study Commission to every member of the next State Legislature.

The speaker then mentioned briefly a trend in library administration which he believes will be important to future growth. This is the creation of regional library staffs, with three or more counties joining in this effort. He says that a similar effort involving his own county of Dare is proving to be successful.

Greetings and tributes of accomplishments were brought by Rep. Alton A. Lennon who pointed out that federal funds of over $50,000 from the U.S. Library Services and constitution act had been a dominant factor as well as an inspiration in making the dream a reality.

Guest speaker for the occasion, however, was David Stick of Kitty Hawk who is chairman of the North Carolina Legislative Commission To Study Library Support.

Chairman Stick, an author of note and authority of history of the Outer Banks, outlined the value of the center and how it will serve all ages in their search for diversion and knowledge.

Mrs. James M. Harper, Jr. presided and these additional persons spoke on various phases of the library:

The invocation was offered by Rev. Mark Owens, pastor of Calvary Baptist church of Shallotte.

The welcome was tendered by Eugene B. Tomlinson, Southport mayor.

Carolina Power And Light Files

Carolina Power & Light Company has filed with the North Carolina Utilities Commission an application for a "certificate of convenience and necessity" for the construction of two nuclear-fueled generating units at a site to be acquired near Southport, N.C. Each unit will have a net generating capability of 821,000 kilowatts.

In the application, the cost of the new Brunswick County facility is estimated at $290,000,000.

Pauk Colby, senior vice-president of the company, said that the first unit is scheduled for completion by March 1973 and the second unit by March 1974.

The application to the Commission states that the new units are needed to meet the estimated increased requirements of CP&L's customers. The company's present total system capability is 2,907,800 kilowatts. Peak demand during this past summer was 24.8 percent greater than the year before.

The company is presently constructing a nuclear-fueled generating unit at Hartsville, S.C., with an initial capability of 700,000 kilowatts. It is scheduled for completion in 1970. In May of this year, the company completed a 650,000 kilowatt coal-fired unit at Roxboro.
