Local Parent Writes Board

Following is a copy of a letter written this week by William Ross, Southport citizen and patron of the local school, to members of the Brunswick County Board of Education:

"Last year when the children started asking why they had to be cold when they were in school, they were told that they would not have to be cold too long; the people of Brunswick County were going to vote for a Bond Issue and build them a new school that is warm and has a playground and has a warm bathroom, and that they should be in it in another year. About two months ago they asked when they were going to have a warm classroom to go to school in, and they were told that the Board of Education was going to finally start them a school.

"Now I know that other young children in the county have warm classrooms and bathrooms and have blackboards and desks, but we have to keep telling our children that they have to wait and wait and wait.

"If the people in Bolivia or anywhere else in this county feel that they would like to have their kids trade places while they agree on the location of the schools, then we would be glad to change places with them and let them argue as long as they like; but I am tired, and I think a lot of other people are tired of seeing their children come home cold and unfed from school. The opposition as to the site of the schools of Brunswick County is only an excuse to further delay their education, and we all know that their education has already suffered enough.

"Please Mr. Chairman and citizens of Brunswick County, start our schools."

We walked up the beach on the north bank of the Cape Fear River Sunday afternoon for the first time in several months, and there have been some noticeable changes in the shortline. When we reached the ferry slip at Price Creek we watched a wild duck take flight, and when we returned our gaze to objects near at hand we discovered that there still were at least 20 ducks swimming in the boat basin.

Across the inlet which leads to the ferry slip there was a clear view of the old Price Creek Lighthouse which continues to deteriorate and crumble. This is one of the significant historic landmarks of the blockade running era and it is a shame that some intelligent, concerted action is not being made to preserve it permanently.

It all of the discussion about marshland or tidaland areas, we wonder who has claim to the little man-made islands along the river channel that resulted from the last dredging operation. Several of them stand out high and dry at low tide.
