Vereen Defeats Strong; Bowles, Rose, Nick Win

Wayland Vereen, who held a slim 13-vote lead after the May 6 primary, defeated Herman Strong in a run-off Saturday for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner from Smithville Township.

Vereen enjoyed an easier victory on the second ballot, receiving 2,251 votes to 2,018 for his opponent, according to the official canvass of votes here Tuesday. The winner joins Lonnie C. McCoy, Jr., of Northwest, Ernest M. McGee, Jr., of Town Creek, W.A. Stanley of Shallotte and John W. Reeves of Lockwoods Folly as the Democratic candidates to oppose the incumbent Republican commissioners in November.

In other voting Saturday, Republicans favored Jim Gardner over Jim Holshouser by a 533 to 204 margin, although Holshouser edged the Brunswick County winner for the gubernatorial nomination in the state.

Brunswick County went with state winners Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles for the Democratic nomination for governor, and Nick Galifianakis for U.S. Senate, as well as 7th District Congressional winner Charlie Rose. Local voters favored Russell Secrest as Commissioner of Insurance, but state voters picked John Ingram.

Vereen won 12 of the county's 18 precincts from Strong, who finished more than 100 votes ahead of the winner in Southport voting. Vereen made up that deficit in his home Oak Island precinct, however, and enjoyed strong support in the western half of the county.

In the Democratic gubernatorial race, Bowles received 2,379 to 2,053 for Lt. Gov. Taylor. Bowles finished on top in only ten precincts, but enjoyed good support in Leland, Town Creek, Southport and Oak Island. Taylor's stronghold was Secession, where he came out on top 272 to 173.

In the race for the U.S. Senate seat, Galifianakis won 11 Brunswick County precincts in unseating veteran B. Everett Jordan. The popular House of Representatives incumbent easily won Frying Pan, 254 to 97, and enjoyed 50-vote margins in both Southport precincts and Oak Island.

In the Commissioner of Insurance race, Secrest barely edged Ingram, 1,814 to 1,806, picking up an easy win at Oak Island but losing badly in Secession. Each candidate finished on top in nine precincts, more evidence of the closeness of the race.

Creel beat Brooks for the Commissioner of Labor post 2,043 to 1,578 in the county. The winner captured 14 Brunswick precincts, lost three and tied Ash.

For the Congressional seat, Brunswick County again showed its support of Rose, giving him a solid 2,450 to 2,043 victory. The first-

Erosion Control Hearing Set Next Friday

A public meeting concerning shore protection plans for Yaupon Beach and Long Beach will be held next Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Brunswick County courthouse.

The meeting will be conducted by the district engineer of the U.S. Army Engineer office in Wilmington.

In 1966, Congress authorized construction of hurricane protection and beach erosion control projects for the Brunswick County Coast, including the municipalities of Yaupon Beach, Long Beach, Holden Beach, Ocean Isle Beach, and Sunset Beach.

The authorized projects involved the construction of dunes to an elevation of 20 feet above mean sea level fronted by beach restoration fills along the ocean fronts of each of the towns. The projects also include programs of periodic beach replenishment for long-term stabilization of the fills.

Project preconstruction planning has been undertaken by the Wilmington District with funds contributed by the state and the towns of Yaupon Beach, Long Beach, Ocean Isle Beach, and Sunset Beach. Total funds contributed amount to $270,000.

A considerable amount of work has been accomplished on the study of the entire

Hospital Has EKG Service

J. Arthur Doshier Memorial Hospital is offering a new service to its patients—long-distance electrocardiograms (computerized EKG).

The hospital has a special EKG machine connected with a computer system located at Rockville, Maryland. Information is transmitted from Doshier Memorial Hospital by telephone cables, and within 45 minutes an interpretation of the EKG tracings is teletyped back to the hospital.

The computer is programmed for all possible EKG variances and is capable of making a diagnosis. The service costs approximately five dollars per tracing, but represents no added cost to the patient.

The benefits of this service are:

1. Immediate, accurate and legible reports.
2. More time for the physician to devote to patient care and to keep abreast of new developments in the field of medicine.

Brunswick County shore. On the basis of priorities set by the state, preconstruction planning is most advanced for Yaupon Beach and Long Beach. Detailed information will be presented during the June 16 meeting regarding plans for shore protection at Yaupon and Long beaches; however, this information is also relevant to future planning of similar projects at Holden Beach, Ocean Isle Beach, and Sunset Beach.

A thorough study of the authorized projects, as well as alternative protection schemes, has been performed for Yaupon and Long beaches.

Alternative 1. (Authorized Project): A grassed dune constructed at an elevation of 20 feet above mean sea level along the entire shore, fronted by a beach fill which would advance the shoreline to a position 185 feet seaward of its present location. Periodic beach replenishment would be provided for shore position stabilization.

Alternative 2. A grassed dune constructed at an elevation of 15 feet above mean sea level along the entire shore, fronted by a beach fill which would advance the shoreline to a position 125 feet seaward of its present location. Periodic beach replenishment would be provided for shore position stabilization.

Alternative 3. A grassed dune constructed at an elevation of 13 feet above mean sea level along the entire shore, fronted by a beach fill which would advance the shore to a position 100 feet seaward of its present location. Periodic beach replenishment would be provided for shore position stabilization.

Fund Raising Report Made

A total of $2,461.60 was collected in the annual March of Dimes drive, in Brunswick County according to Chairman Mrs. Marie Rourke.

The money will be divided three ways: 25 percent to the Medical Research Fund; half of the remaining 75 percent to the National Foundation; and the balance to the Brunswick County Chapter.

The local share is used for hospitalization and therapy for local birth defect patients and to help maintain the Birth Defects Clinic at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill.

The county participated in the March of Dimes telethon and provided two telephone

Lewis Attends Special School

Elmer Alexander Lewis, II, a student at Brunswick County-Southport High School, is one of 100 high school students from across the state selected to participate in a six-week summer Leadership School sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction and the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.

The School will be held at Mars Hill College in Mars Hill from June 11 to July 12. According to Bryce Cummings, director of the Leadership School, the program is designed to develop potential leadership abilities in the students selected. Students will be involved in identifying and analyzing specific problems and concerns facing young people today.

Once the problems have been identified, says Cummings, the students will learn to develop programs and activities to involve students, teachers, and others in the community in resolving them. One of the most important emphases of the program will be the development of decision-making skills, he noted.

A variety of methods are planned to help the students gain insight into the roles of leaders—independent study, open discussions, interviews in the community, local and outside consultants, audiovisual materials, and self-evaluation. The student's local community will benefit, says Cummings, in that part of his study will be to work throughout the school year with a faculty adviser on a leadership project in his own school or community.

State Superintendent Craig Phillips noted that the undeniable need for leadership in all segments of society demands special focus on this aspect of education. The schools of the state do not intentionally overlook leadership development, but it is believed that concentrated attention on preparation for may provide a quality of leadership not normally emerging from the public schools.

Time And Tide

Judge Sam Ervin was to hold court in Southport the week of June 9, 1937. There was a weekend rush to rent small boats for fishing, and many fishermen had to fish from the shore. Inquiries about the coming boat races were being received, and a party of Wilmington fishermen returned with a good trout catch after going out with Capt. H.T. Bowmer.

An average of 106 children attended Bible school during the preceding week; and a table radio was offered as grand prize in a photo contest sponsored by this newspaper.

Twenty-five years ago this week was a period for the extermination of several types of wildlife around here. C.E. Brown killed 22 snakes while clearing his lot, and the late W.B. Keziah came by on horseback and complained that those were the snakes that he used to rid his feed bin of rats.

An alligator hunt was conducted by several local youths, three State College students and the same Mr. Keziah. Three alligators were captured and Mr. Keziah was nipped on the wrist by an angry gator.

Scrap metal was being collected to aid the armed services.

During the week of June 11, 1947, it was announced that Dr. L.C. Fergus was leaving for California. Two new shrimp boats arrived in Southport that week and 17-year-old Billie Wells was named captain of one of them.
