Lakes appearance body thanks 'Sweep' helpers

(This report from the Boiling Spring Lakes Community Appearance Commission appears regularly in The State Port Pilot.)

At the Boiling Spring Lakes Community Appearance Commission November meeting city clerks Barbara Cumbee and Regina Alexander, as well as commissioner Bert Buckbee, were thanked for their assistance during the Big Sweep project.

Violations of codes regarding unkempt properties may be reported to commission members, who will try to fix the problems.

Several commission members worked on landscaping at City Hall, the post office and the city entrance gates where Christmas lights will be hung on trees and shrubs.

To further citizen participation in community affairs the commission learned that the Boiling Spring Lakes Volunteer Fire Department, under the guidance of its newly elected board, is encouraging residents to use the improved fire station on N. C. 87 for meetings and other events.

The fire department also needs city residents' help in preparing a list of shut-ins and homes where oxygen is used. Members will hold a fund-raising raffle on December 19 when a television, which is currently on display at City Hall, will be awarded. Tickets are one dollar and proceeds will be used to purchase gifts and food baskets for families and to sponsor a dance for youths in the community.

Charles Schneiders of the city parks committee reported at the meeting that a survey of city parks shows several in need of repair. The committee invites residents to offer their suggestions for improvements and whether ownership of small lakes should be transferred from the developer to the city.
